L.A. quake could kill 20,000, report says

Knight News Service

PASADENA—As many as 20,000 persons could be killed if a major earthquake hit the Los Angeles area, according to a report by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Taking the most severe case, the study projects 80,000 needing hospitalization, 600,000 with minor injuries and 183,000 homeless, in addition to the 20,000 fatalities. Some 1,300 buildings would collapse.

Authorities could take several steps which would save lives and aid in reconstruction, the study says.

"Engineering rescue operations should be concentrated principally in older congested central regions of cities where there would be difficulties in bringing in equipment because of debris in the streets," the report says.

Blocked streets and broken water lines will hamper fire fighting, so high fire-risk areas of cities should be evacuated, the study adds.

Authorities should be prepared to evacuate as many as 100,000 persons from areas threatened by dam collapses. Fire and flood evacuees could amount to 400,000 persons, the report says.

Because hospitals could be damaged or cut off from utilities, beds in nursing homes should be considered for use. Routes to hospitals would have to be cleared as quickly as possible. Supplying auxiliary power to vital medical units is a priority.

Law enforcement personnel must be prepared to deal with crowd control problems caused by evacuating 100,000 people, the report warns.

The report says there will be enough earthquake-safe buildings, mainly schools, available to handle refugees.

Sustaining the population then becomes a major task.

Damaged sections of the water system should be isolated to stop the flow of water into the streets. Electric power would have to be restored to provide power for water pumps.

A prolonged disruption of electric power could be expected and would require several days to fix.

The sewage system of the basin will be severely damaged, creating sanitation problems. Alternative methods of sewage disposal for a period of from three to six months should be planned.

Transportation will be crippled, mostly on freeways and railroads. A major effort will be needed to provide access to damaged areas to bring in supplies and evacuate the injured, according to the report.

Public health officials will be hard-pressed to deal with removal of bodies, possibly requiring methods used by military forces after a large combat engagement.

Carter's amnesty plan draws heavy fire, little praise

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — President Carter's pardon for draft resisters drew sharp denunciations Friday from major veterans' organizations and only qualified praise from pro-amnesty groups, which called it insufficient because of its exclusion of deserters and veterans with less-than-honorable discharges.

Among members of Congress, Democrats generally said the pardon was long overdue. Conservative Republicans said it would undermine military discipline and the rule of law.

PEACE, religious and antiwar veterans groups called it a positive step, but said it would cover only a few thousand individuals. They noted, too, that the review ordered by Carter of the cases of deserters and veterans with qualified discharges would only prolong employment problems and other difficulties confronted by these individuals.

Carter, on his first day in office, kept a campaign promise by granting a full, complete and unconditional pardon to all Vietnam-era draft evaders who were not involved in any violent acts.

The new President acted less then than a week after outgoing President Ford decided not to grant any new pardons.

CARTER, although not pardoning military deserters, is ordering immediate Pentagon review of their cases, and a review of less-than honorable discharges, to determine whether they can be improved.

At the Justice Department, spokesman John Russell said, "We calculate that around 10,000 people will be affected" by Carter's pardon.

Department officials are working on a system to notify those people about the pardon and hope to have the procedure ready to submit to Griffin Bell when he is confirmed as attorney general.

Russell said most of those affected are the 8,700 who have been convicted of draft violations. Another 1,800 are fugitives — about 1,300 in Canada, 300 in other countries, and 200 whose whereabouts are unknown.

ABOUT 2,700 are under indictment on draft charges, including many of the fugitives, Russell reported.

Under the program of opening the way for draft evaders to return home, those who have become citizens of another country can come home to visit families, but if they wish to regain U.S citizenship they will have to apply under the same terms and conditions as any other alien.

In the case of less-than-honorable discharges, Carter press secretary Jody Powell spoke of "an expanded and accelerated review process."

There have been complaints that there is such a backlog of applications for review of discharges that veterans must wait months, while they have trouble getting jobs with the stigma of a less-than-honorable discharge.

THE ONLY unfettered praise came from some of the draft evaders who were pardoned. Others, however, expressed gratitude tinged with regret that the pardon was not a universal order.

Paralyzed East getting warmer

Combined News Services

Temperatures rose much nearer normal winter levels on Friday in a break in the cold wave which has caused fuel shortages, layoffs, and heavy crop damage in Florida.

Tens of thousands of workers have been sent home and plants have closed or reduced work hours because of fuel shortages brought on by the heavy demand for home heating.

From 15,000 to 22,000 coal miners remained laid off in West Virginia because coal already mined has frozen in the railroad cars. Coal shipping points at Norfolk and Newport News, Va., and Baltimore report ship loading was running up to 75 per cent behind schedule.

The delays mean there are no empty railroad cars for coal loading in West Virginia.

But if the eastern half of the nation was suffering from too much winter, the economic impact came from the opposite side of the coin in the West.

In Idaho, Key Airlines has laid off half its employes because of reduced ski traffic to Sun Valley. James Bacon, vice president and general manager of Key, said the airline dismissed 43 of its 99 employes.

"Every week we're going without snow at Sun Valley, it's costing Key Airlines about $50,000 worth of revenue," Bacon said.

In Minnesota, having power troubles because of the bitter cold, Gov. Rudy Perpich and top state officials decided Friday to adopt a four-day, 40-hour work week for state office employes as an energy conservation measure, beginning next week.

Perpich also directed state colleges and universities to adopt energy conservation measures which would save a minimum of 20 per cent but he asked them to attempt to reduce

$4.5-million IRS liens hit S. Korea's Park

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has filed liens against property of South Korean businessman Tongsun Park, focus of an influence-buying investigation, charging that he owes $4.5 million.

The liens were for income tax for 1972 through 1975, a spokesman for the IRS Baltimore district said Friday night.

They were filed with the recorder's offices in Los Angeles and Washington and circuit courts in Arlington and Fairfax counties, Virginia, Alexandria, Va.; and Montgomery, Prince George's and Worcester counties, Maryland.

The liens total $4,500,619.20, the spokesman said. He said this amount could include taxes, penalties and interest, but added that he could not give specific details on the liens.

A lien is a notice served by the government that it is claiming an interest in any property the subject of the lien may own.

"All you can assume is that the IRS claims he owes this amount in money to the government. . . . It is filing the liens to protect the government's interest in any property he may have in these areas," the spokesman said.

He said two liens were filed in each location, one in Park's name and one in the name of his firm, Pacific Development Inc.

The Justice Department has been conducting an investigation of alleged Korean influence-buying among members of Congress. Several congressmen have acknowledged receiving gifts and contributions from Park.

Park is a wealthy rice broker known for his lavish party-giving, social life and luxurious homes during his years in Washington following his graduation from Georgetown University.

He has denied he was involved in a covert South Korean government scheme to buy influence in Congress.

Morris cat-naps his way to 'jail'

HONOLULU (AP) — Morris the television cat was taken into custody and placed in a cage when he arrived here to participate in a Humane Society fund-raising cat show, authorities said.

Morris, however, didn't seem to mind. He had jet lag and wanted some sleep.

But the star's trip to the slammer was not without dignity — he rode to the lockup in a limousine.

Morris, who built his career after being rescued from a Hinsdale, Ill., animal shelter, arrived Thursday and promptly fell victim to the state's animal quarantine law. He was hustled off to the quarantine station, where he will spend the week in a cage.

Officials said he would be allowed out only for his scheduled personal appearance.

Morris spent his nine-hour first class flight from Chicago curled up on the armrest which separated the seats of his owners, Gloria and Robert Martwick.

When he arrived in Hawaii he got the traditional lei of flowers, along with a news conference befitting a star.

Panel rejects nuclear theft prevention plea

By WARREN E. LEARY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nuclear Regulatory Commission Friday denied a public interest group's petition for emergency action to increase protection of nuclear material that could be the target of terrorist attack.

But the NRC said it shortly would begin considering new regulations to upgrade safeguard requirements on plutonium and highly enriched uranium which could be fashioned into crude weapons by terrorists.

The commission said it has been increasing protection of such material for at least a year at 13 fuel cycle facilities and that further improvements are under way. These facilities formulate and recycle nuclear fuels for military and civilian uses.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, a Washington-based group, petitioned the NRC to immediately protect strategic quantities of nuclear material against attacks by groups of up to 15 assailants. The council said the commission's own documents called potential attacks by 12 to 15 persons "credible."

J. Gustav Speth, a council spokesman, said the commission's petition denial actually was not a rejection of what the council was saying.

"The opinion looks two ways, with the first half saying we're exaggerating the problem and denying it," Speth said. "But the second half says they are going to immediately start public proceedings to strengthen safeguards.

"I can't help but believe they know we're right, but want to take longer to do it (increase safeguards) than we do," he added.

'My Town'

Belmont Shore airs pride, grievances

Even at night, Mrs. Lita Lease feels safe walking along Second Street. That's what she likes about Belmont Shore.

From nearby Naples, a woman writes to "My Town" about her neighbors:

"We actually smile at and speak to each other—also to strangers."

That's what she likes about Naples.

The old Second Street Bridge—officially the Lewis D. Reese Bridge—crosses Alamitos Bay at Bayshore Avenue and the Toledo to link Belmont Shore with the Naples-Marina areas.

It links more than geography. It links the eastern Long Beach communities with a common civic pride, as evidenced by replies to "My Town," a survey by this newspaper asking what's right or wrong with their neighborhoods.

There are also problems in common.

From Belmont Shore, 21 of the 57 "My Town" respondents complained about dogs and their owners. From Naples-Marina, eight of 30 replies singled out the issue as a major source of irritation.

"There is a total disregard for laws and other people by allowing either leashed or unleashed dogs to defecate on private lawns, driveways, patios and public grassed dividers, beaches, etc., resulting in poor neighborhood harmony and further creating a health hazard. This must be stopped," wrote Glenn A. Hubbard of Belmont Shore.

M. Ward of Naples was just as emphatic.

"Naples is a beautiful area. It's just too bad there are so many irresponsible dog owners.

"All it takes is one dog owner who doesn't pick up after his animal to spoil everyone else's stroll."

SPEEDING is a common problem.

In Belmont Shore, seven respondents complained.

"Traffic is too fast with boulevard stop signs at the end of each street," wrote Mrs. R. M. Hase.

"Noisy motorcycles going too fast down Ocean Boulevard," another letter specified.

"Speeding cars and motorcycles (Ocean Boulevard)," wrote L. Schwartz.

"Granada Avenue at Ocean Boulevard—car freaks use street as Ontario Speedway," wrote Stephen C MacLaughlin.

Belmont Shore's main thoroughfare, Second Street, was not included in the speeding complaints. Other traffic problems, congestion, cars intruding on pedestrian crossways and stoplights that changed too rapidly were listed.

On the Naples-Marina side of the bridge, Second Street was targeted as a speedway by five respondents.

An equal number complained about speeding on Sorrento Drive.

"It is a dangerous problem to our children," wrote Marylee Goyan. Two of the Sorrento Drive respondents suggested "bumps in the street" to slow traffic.

People in the news

Folksy, human start at White House

Combined News Services

Jimmy Carter chose his desk. A black mutt named "J.B." sniffed around the Oval Office. And harassed Carter staff people had trouble finding their way to the restrooms.

It was part of the busy, folksy, human beginning of Jimmy Carter's stewardship of the White House — disorganized, confused, funny and even playful.

Presidential spokesman Jody Powell, at his first White House press briefing, the like of which has not been seen in years, described the early-morning search for a high chair for Carter's only grandchild, Jason.

"WE DISCOVERED the White House has no high chair," Powell said, "so we got a chair that Jason could use out of the billiard room. I guess it's called the billiard room, but we're going to convert it to a pool room. Billy looked at it last night and said this place is so high class the pool table don't have pockets."

Powell also announced, as part of what he called "the day's trivia," that Carter had looked at a number of photographs and had chosen, for the Oval Office, a 100-year-old oak desk, made from the timbers of the H.M.S. Resolute, given to Rutherford B. Hayes by Queen Victoria and last used by John Kennedy.

As Powell briefed the packed crowd of reporters, upstairs in the mansion, the Carter family—including the President, his wife Rosalynn and his mother Lillian—were having a reunion with cousins and other kinfolk and nearly 1,000 men and women from throughout the country at whose homes the Carters stayed during their long presidential campaign.

THEY HAD come by bus to pick up their special invitations and tiny plaques that said: "A member of the Jimmy Carter family stayed in this house during the 1976 presidential campaign." And they walked through the long receiving line carrying their coats — from minks to ski jackets — because there was no place to put them — to meet the man they helped make President.

One Iowa woman told Carter: "My neighbors laughed at me when I took you into our home." At a later reception Carter, with delight and triumph in his voice, repeated what she said to Vice President Walter Mondale.

Out in the press room, Powell got more laughs as he described the Carter family breakfast (scrambled eggs, sweet rolls, bacon, sausage and "no grits") and Carter's entrance into the Oval Office at 9:10 a.m. with his son Chip and Chip's "small, black dog. 'J.B.', who is of indeterminate origin."

"WHO IS of indeterminate origin?" a reporter asked. "Chip or the dog."

"I meant the dog," said Powell.

The folksiness, the good humor and the easygoing opening day, seemed to be part of a studied effort — like the new President's walk in the parade Thursday — to change the atmosphere at the White House, while continuing to assert the power of the presidency.

And as the President acted, Powell's disarming "country boy" approach appeared to blunt the hostile skepticism of the press which was evident so often during the Nixon-Ford years.

Protester

Mister Simpson, the California Capitol's star protester who died this week after years of badgering the state's governors, won some praise from his old foes Friday.

Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown recalled that the crusty 96-year-old Robert Simpson had called him "every name in the book."

"He was a monument to free speech. Therewas no rationality to what he said, of course. But I don't think you'll have another Robert Simpson for a long time," Brown Sr. said.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan, whom Simpson called a "swindler," said: "He was one of a kind — colorful and irrepressible to the end."

Simpson, who died Thursday after a protest career stretching back to the early 1900s, had a strong disdain for almost all politicians and especially for Brown Sr.

Dummar

An attorney for Melvin Dummar said Friday his client will be in Las Vegas on Tuesday to testify about the "Mormon will" of the late Howard Hughes.

Dummar has admitted delivering the will to a Mormon Church office building in Salt Lake City several weeks after the billionaire's death, but he denies he wrote the document that grants him a slice of the estimated $2.5 billion estate.

Princess

In the English town of Alfreton Friday, a retired schoolmaster, a housewife and a garage owner formed a tribunal that fined Princess Anne $68 for speeding at 96 miles per hour on a 70-mile expressway. Princess Anne, who gets a government allowance of nearly $60,000 a year, was not in court, but a lawyer pleaded guilty in her behalf.

World's oldest profession has world's oldest motives

Excitement and big money drive many low-skilled or unskilled women into prostitution, says a University of Washington researcher.

"The desire for a higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle are the major motivating factors for most prostitutes," concluded a study by Dr. Jennifer James of the University of Washington's Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences Department, and researcher Jane Meyerding.

Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page report on female criminals.

Dr. James said Friday the income of call girls can run from $30,000 to $100,000 a year. On the street, prostitutes can earn up to $20,000 before expenses, such as legal fees and payoffs to hotel clerks and taxi drivers.

"But there are those on the street who don't make $5,000. It's like any sales business. It depends on how much energy you have and how good a saleswoman you are," she said.

Dr. James said she interviewed more than 300 prostitutes in cities all over the country, including Seattle, Spokane, New York, Boston, San Francisco and San Diego.

Despite fluctuations in the economy and the changing role of women in America, Dr. James said the demand for prostitutes appears to be growing.

"Before I did the study, I thought there would be less customers," she said, "but that's not the case. The younger men are not going but the older, middle-aged man is going more to prostitutes."

Older men apparently are frightened by sexual demands being made on them, she said, "and so many men feel safer with a prostitute where they can use money to control their sexual contacts."

Dr. James said the theory that prostitutes were hostile toward men didn't seem to be supported by the findings of her study.

"Looking at this objectively, it would seem . . . equally valid to suggest that some women become elementary school teachers in order to act out their hostility toward children," she said.

Carter orders push for gas-saving plans

Combined News Services

NATIONAL

WASHINGTON — President Carter Friday directed his new energy chief, James R. Schlesinger, to work with congressional leaders on legislation to cope with the natural gas shortage.

The President also made a public appeal to Americans to keep their home thermostats at 65 degrees during the day and lower at night. He said he was ordering that federal buildings observe those temperature limits.

Schlesinger, meanwhile, convened a White House meeting Friday, his first day in office, to consider proposals by natural gas pipeline owners for legislation to let them allocate scarce gas supplies among themselves. The pipeline companies also want permission for emergency sales of natural gas at unregulated prices, an idea that was ruled out by federal courts last year under existin law.

First flu outbreak

ATLANTA — The first outbreak of any type of flu in the United States this winter has been reported among Vanderbilt University students, the national Center for Disease Control said Friday. Authorities at the Tennessee school report they are seeing from 60 to 70 patients a day with a respiratory illness similar to the B-Hong Kong flu of several years ago.

More car rebates

DETROIT — American Motors Co. officials said Friday that the firm's rebate program was being expanded to include all 1976 and 1977 Hornet wagons, effective immediately. The $253 rebate has been offered on Pacer sedans and wagons since last November.

Spy charge denied

BALTIMORE — A former CIA employe accused of offering to sell secret documents to the Soviet Union pleaded innocent Friday to an espionage charge.

Edwin G. Moore II of Bethesda entered innocent pleas at arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Paul Rosenberg to eight counts of espionage and possession of stolen property. The FBI said Moore, 56, left a package containing photocopies of pages from a January 1973 CIA telephone directory on the doorstep of a Soviet diplomatic residence.

Italy abortion bill gains

Combined News Services

INTERNATIONAL

ROME — Over the objections of the Vatican and the governing Christian Democrats, the chamber of deputies Friday approved one of the most liberal abortion laws in Western Europe.

The legislation, which now goes to the Senate for expected approval, would, in effect, allow abortion on demand. It would replace the existing law, which was introduced under the Fascist era and which held that abortion was a "crime against the race."

The governing Christian Democrats and the Roman Catholic church fought vigorously against the liberal abortion bill, and Pope Paul VI spoke out several times in recent weeks against it, noting that the church regarded abortion as the killing of an unborn child. But the bill carried Friday night by a vote of 310 to 296.

The vote was the result of a campaign by reformers who have long pushed for a more liberal abortion bill. Early last year, they gathered more than 800,000 signatures on a petition calling for a referendum aimed at repealing the existing legislation.

Delight in India

NEW DELHI — India's political opposition reacted with delight Friday to the government's moves to ease the authoritarian rule of the last 19 months.

"It's a very good beginning for Indian democracy," Biju Patnaik, a former chief minister of the state of Orissa, said of the decision Thursday to lift press censorship and to step up the release of political prisoners. Patnaik, who was meeting with other opposition leaders under the direction of former deputy prime minister Morarji Desai to plan for the March parliamentary election, said, reflecting their common view, that he thought the government moves were "genuine."

The all-day opposition meeting, in Desai's comfortable white bungalow in the graceful old colonial section of New Delhi, had the mood of a college reunion, as politicians recently released from jail greeted one another with joyful whoops.

Canadian reform

OTTAWA, Canada — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has asked the provincial premiers for a renewed effort at constitutional reform that would formally transfer the country's basic law from Britain to Canada. Although Canada has been a fully self-governing nation since 1931, the basis of its constitution is still the British North America Act adopted in 1867 by the British Parliament.

Young to Africa

WASHINGTON — United Nations ambassador-designate Andrew Young Jr. will travel to southern Africa in the near future to reinforce the British-American quest for black-white peace there. Young, a black Georgia congressman, has been authorized to represent the United States at a Dar Es-Salaam celebration marking Tanganyika's union with Zanzibar. The occasion will bring key African leaders together, giving him a first chance for informal talks on the problems in his new ambassadorial role.

Egypt blames Reds

CAIRO — The government on Friday stepped up its attacks on Communist elements, blamed as the agitators of two days of bloody rioting earlier this week in which thousands of Egyptians demanded, and won, withdrawal of government-ordered price increases.

The official casualty toll from the clashes between demonstrators and police was revised upward to include at least 700 injured. At least 40 persons were killed and 900 were arrested.

Man-tiger fight off

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — A contest between a Japanese karate champion and a Bengal tiger has been called off, a Haitian official said Friday. Pierre Gouss, the government minister of information, said Haiti's president-for-life, Jean-Claude Duvalier, withdrew permission for the event after a deluge of protesting telephone calls from outside the Caribbean island nation.

PRESIDENT CARTER returns a young lady to the floor after he hoisted her into his arms Friday during a White House reception for his campaign workers, the Peanut Brigade. —AP Wirephoto

People in the news

Folksy, human start at White House

Combined News Services

Jimmy Carter chose his desk. A black mutt named "J.B." sniffed around the Oval Office. And harassed Carter staff people had trouble finding their way to the restrooms.

It was part of the busy, folksy, human beginning of Jimmy Carter's stewardship of the White House — disorganized, confused, funny and even playful.

Presidential spokesman Jody Powell, at his first White House press briefing, the like of which has not been seen in years, described the early-morning search for a high chair for Carter's only grandchild, Jason.

"WE DISCOVERED the White House has no high chair," Powell said, "so we got a chair that Jason could use out of the billiard room. I guess it's called the billiard room, but we're going to convert it to a pool room. Billy looked at it last night and said this place is so high class the pool table don't have pockets."

Powell also announced, as part of what he called "the day's trivia," that Carter had looked at a number of photographs and had chosen, for the Oval Office, a 100-year-old oak desk, made from the timbers of the H.M.S. Resolute, given to Rutherford B. Hayes by Queen Victoria and last used by John Kennedy.

As Powell briefed the packed crowd of reporters, upstairs in the mansion, the Carter family—including the President, his wife Rosalynn and his mother Lillian—were having a reunion with cousins and other kinfolk and nearly 1,000 men and women from throughout the country at whose homes the Carters stayed during their long presidential campaign.

THEY HAD come by bus to pick up their special invitations and tiny plaques that said: "A member of the Jimmy Carter family stayed in this house during the 1976 presidential campaign." And they walked through the long receiving line carrying their coats — from minks to ski jackets — because there was no place to put them — to meet the man they helped make President.

One Iowa woman told Carter: "My neighbors laughed at me when I took you into our home." At a later reception Carter, with delight and triumph in his voice, repeated what she said to Vice President Walter Mondale.

Out in the press room, Powell got more laughs as he described the Carter family breakfast (scrambled eggs, sweet rolls, bacon, sausage and "no grits") and Carter's entrance into the Oval Office at 9:10 a.m. with his son Chip and Chip's "small, black dog, 'J.B.', who is of indeterminate origin."

"WHO IS of indeterminate origin?" a reporter asked. "Chip or the dog."

"I meant the dog," said Powell.

The folksiness, the good humor and the easygoing opening day, seemed to be part of a studied effort — like the new President's walk in the parade Thursday — to change the atmosphere at the White House, while continuing to assert the power of the presidency.

And as the President acted, Powell's disarming "country boy" approach appeared to blunt the hostile skepticism of the press which was evident so often during the Nixon-Ford years.

Protester

Mister Simpson, the California Capitol's star protester who died this week after years of badgering the state's governors, won some praise from his old foes Friday.

Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown recalled that the crusty 96-year-old Robert Simpson had called him "every name in the book."

"He was a monument to free speech. Therewas no rationality to what he said, of course. But I don't think you'll have another Robert Simpson for a long time," Brown Sr. said.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan, whom Simpson called a "swindler," said: "He was one of a kind — colorful and irrepressible to the end."

Simpson, who died Thursday after a protest career stretching back to the early 1900s, had a strong disdain for almost all politicians and especially for Brown Sr.

Dummar

An attorney for Melvin Dummar said Friday his client will be in Las Vegas on Tuesday to testify about the "Mormon will" of the late Howard Hughes.

Dummar has admitted delivering the will to a Mormon Church office building in Salt Lake City several weeks after the billionaire's death, but he denies he wrote the document that grants him a slice of the estimated $2.5 billion estate.

Princess

In the English town of Alfreton Friday, a retired schoolmaster, a housewife and a garage owner formed a tribunal that fined Princess Anne $68 for speeding at 96 miles per hour on a 70-mile expressway. Princess Anne, who gets a government allowance of nearly $60,000 a year, was not in court, but a lawyer pleaded guilty in her behalf.

World's oldest profession has world's oldest motives

Excitement and big money drive many low-skilled or unskilled women into prostitution, says a University of Washington researcher.

"The desire for a higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle are the major motivating factors for most prostitutes," concluded a study by Dr. Jennifer James of the University of Washington's Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences Department, and researcher Jane Meyerding.

Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page report on female criminals.

Dr. James said Friday the income of call girls can run from $30,000 to $100,000 a year. On the street, prostitutes can earn up to $20,000 before expenses, such as legal fees and payoffs to hotel clerks and taxi drivers.

"But there are those on the street who don't make $5,000. It's like any sales business. It depends on how much energy you have and how good a saleswoman you are," she said.

Dr. James said she interviewed more than 300 prostitutes in cities all over the country, including Seattle, Spokane, New York, Boston, San Francisco and San Diego.

Despite fluctuations in the economy and the changing role of women in America, Dr. James said the demand for prostitutes appears to be growing.

"Before I did the study, I thought there would be less customers," she said, "but that's not the case. The younger men are not going but the older, middle-aged man is going more to prostitutes."

Older men apparently are frightened by sexual demands being made on them, she said, "and so many men feel safer with a prostitute where they can use money to control their sexual contacts."

Dr. James said the theory that prostitutes were hostile toward men didn't seem to be supported by the findings of her study.

"Looking at this objectively, it would seem . . . equally valid to suggest that some women become elementary school teachers in order to act out their hostility toward children," she said.

Aid for money-order victims

Thousands of Californians holding uncashable money orders are likely to be allowed up to six months to pay their utility bills following the collapse of the bankrupt Universal Money Order Co.

Sources close to the California Public Utilities Commission said Friday that, during its regular meeting Tuesday, the PUC will ask the state's telephone companies and electric and gas utilities to extend credit to customers who pay their bills with Universal money orders.

Thousands of Californians, including an uncounted number in the Southland, found themselves unable to cash Universal oney orders totalling several million dollars after the firm, seventh largest money order business in the nation, filed for bankruptcy Jan. 12 in federal court.

The PUC resolution would allow phone, gas and power company customers who usually paid their utility bills with Universal money orders, up to six months to make payment on bills presented before Jan. 12.

No opposition from PUC members or the affected utilities was expected, sources said.

The State Banking Department has already asked the same utility companies to honor Universal's money orders submitted by their customers before Jan. 12.

"Nobody's gas or electricity should get shut off because of this (bankruptcy)," said Ed Peterson, chief examiner in Southern California for the Banking Department.

The bankruptcy apparently hasn't affected the firm's food stamp sales in Long Beach. Sales of food stamps at the firm's three Long Beach outlets continued Friday without interruption, a Universal employe said.

Universal's food stamp activities, which are unrelated to the money order operation, came under investigation late this week by the U.S. Department of Agriculture after the firm filed for court protection under federal bankruptcy laws.

The story of Universal's bankruptcy began to unfold Friday and was traced to a New York affiliate's failure to repay a short-term loan made to cover last-minute payroll check-cashing on Christmas Eve.

A USDA official said his agency had not uncovered any evidence of wrongdoing by Universal. He said the USDA investigation was simply aimed at finding out what happened to Universal and what the implication is for the food stamp program for the poor.

However, three Ohio counties which include the cities of Cleveland, Dayton and Akron, have suspended the food stamp operations of Universal and its affiliates.

In California, USDA officials were working to release some food stamp funds that were frozen when the state last week seized Universal's assets.

In California, some 700 vending agents, including liquor stores and markets, sold Universal money orders until Jan. 12, when the state's Banking Department seized Universal's assets following the filing.

Light plane makes foamy emergency landing in L.B.

A single-engine private plane circled Long Beach Airport for 45 minutes Friday night before sliding in to a perfect emergency landing on 800 feet of foam, authorities said.

The pilot Robert Hopkins, 52, of Covina, alone in the plane, was uninjured in the landing of his two-passenger Piper Comanche at 7:30 p.m.

Hopkins radioed the Long Beach tower about 6:45 p.m. that he was returning to El Monte Airport, where he had taken off, before he discovered that his landing gear would not retract.

Seven Long Beach fire trucks slicked down the south runway with fire-retardant foam while Hopkins circled at 5,000 feet.

Police roadblocks on Lakewood Boulevard between Conant Street and Wardlow Road diverted traffic to Clark Avenue for 20 minutes.

Battalion Chief Craig R. Halker said the plane suffered slight damage. Halker added that bystanders applauded Hopkins after he bellied the plane onto the runway.

Amplifier and 2 guitars stolen

Long Beach police said Friday two guitars and an amplifier valued at $230 were taken by burglars who pried open the garage door at the residence of Victor Rauel Dorantes, 347 E. 19th St.

Skateboard parks

I'm 12 years old and I would like to know if there are any plans for the city or a private party to build a skateboard park in Long Beach in the near future. We young boys would like to have one. J.E., Long Beach.

The city's recreation department is studying the idea, but no plans for a public or privately operated skateboard park in Long Beach have been announced. "We've been studying the matter for the last month, but we don't want to jump into something that may just be a passing fad," said Robert Van Antwerp, director of the Long Beach Recreation Department. His staff has been looking at the Concrete Wave park, 950 S. Citron Ave., Anaheim, which is operated by a private firm in conjunction with the Anaheim Parks and Recreation Department. This 2.5-acre facility, which has banked runs and bowl-shaped areas, is currently open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., but lights are being installed, and within the next two weeks, the park will start staying open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week. The cost for each session, which lasts one hour and 50 minutes, is $2. Helmets, gloves and knee and elbow pads, which can be rented at the park for 25 cents per item, must be worn. Another skateboard park, The Runway, which will be located in Carson on South Main Street near the Goodyear Blimp Base, is scheduled to open in mid-March. The tentative admission fee is $1.50 an hour. You can call 323-1100 for more information on The Runway.

Last application

In 1975, my ex-husband died, and my son and I took care of the funeral expenses. The mortuary told us to apply for the $250 death benefit at the Whittier Social Security office, which we did, but we've never received payment. I have called, written to and visited this office several times with no results. If this goes on much longer, the deadline for collecting this benefit will have passed and we won't get the money. Can Action Line help? F.H., Long Beach.

Your original claim apparently was lost and the Social Security Administration is now having to start from scratch on a new application. After we contacted Social Security, a representative from the Whittier office called you and arranged for you to file a new claim at the Long Beach office since you live here. It probably will take at least three months to process the new claim, but it has been recorded as being filed before the deadline.

Police reserves

I'm in the Navy and have one more year to serve, then plan to go into law enforcement. I've heard that Los Angeles County has a volunteer police force where I can get some experience. How can I join that force? P.W.H., Bellflower.

The Los Angeles County sheriff's reserve forces bureau will accept locally based, active-duty military men and women who aren't officers, according to Sgt. Nancy Callanan, administrative officer with that bureau. Applications for membership are available at any sheriff's station. To join, you must be a U.S. citizen age 21 to 40, in good physical condition, neither over- nor underweight, have a high school diploma or its equivalent, have a California driver's license and pass a physical agility test. Your background will be checked to see if you will be a credit to the force, Sgt. Callanan said. If you sucessfully complete a five-month training program at the sheriff's academy you will be expected to work at least 16 hours a month alongside regular deputies. Your uniforms and weapons will be furnished but equipment needed for the training program will cost you about $200. You'll be paid a token $1 a year. The Long Beach Police Department and the Orange County sheriff's department also have volunteer forces, but neither accept active-duty military personnel. In Long Beach, the age range is 21 to 45. Uniforms and weapons are furnished. Further information is available from Dep. Chief M. Z. Wishon at 436-9811, extension 214. Orange County's reserve program is quite similar to the Los Angeles County sheriff's, but a reservist must buy his own weapon. Applications are available at any sheriff's station.

Aid for money-order victims

Thousands of Californians holding uncashable money orders are likely to be allowed up to six months to pay their utility bills following the collapse of the bankrupt Universal Money Order Co.

Sources close to the California Public Utilities Commission said Friday that, during its regular meeting Tuesday, the PUC will ask the state's telephone companies and electric and gas utilities to extend credit to customers who pay their bills with Universal money orders.

Thousands of Californians, including an uncounted number in the Southland, found themselves unable to cash Universal oney orders totalling several million dollars after the firm, seventh largest money order business in the nation, filed for bankruptcy Jan. 12 in federal court.

The PUC resolution would allow phone, gas and power company customers who usually paid their utility bills with Universal money orders, up to six months to make payment on bills presented before Jan. 12.

No opposition from PUC members or the affected utilities was expected, sources said.

The State Banking Department has already asked the same utility companies to honor Universal's money orders submitted by their customers before Jan. 12.

"Nobody's gas or electricity should get shut off because of this (bankruptcy)," said Ed Peterson, chief examiner in Southern California for the Banking Department.

The bankruptcy apparently hasn't affected the firm's food stamp sales in Long Beach. Sales of food stamps at the firm's three Long Beach outlets continued Friday without interruption, a Universal employe said.

Universal's food stamp activities, which are unrelated to the money order operation, came under investigation late this week by the U.S. Department of Agriculture after the firm filed for court protection under federal bankruptcy laws.

The story of Universal's bankruptcy began to unfold Friday and was traced to a New York affiliate's failure to repay a short-term loan made to cover last-minute payroll check-cashing on Christmas Eve.

A USDA official said his agency had not uncovered any evidence of wrongdoing by Universal. He said the USDA investigation was simply aimed at finding out what happened to Universal and what the implication is for the food stamp program for the poor.

However, three Ohio counties which include the cities of Cleveland, Dayton and Akron, have suspended the food stamp operations of Universal and its affiliates.

In California, USDA officials were working to release some food stamp funds that were frozen when the state last week seized Universal's assets.

In California, some 700 vending agents, including liquor stores and markets, sold Universal money orders until Jan. 12, when the state's Banking Department seized Universal's assets following the filing.

Light plane makes foamy emergency landing in L.B.

A single-engine private plane circled Long Beach Airport for 45 minutes Friday night before sliding in to a perfect emergency landing on 800 feet of foam, authorities said.

The pilot Robert Hopkins, 52, of Covina, alone in the plane, was uninjured in the landing of his two-passenger Piper Comanche at 7:30 p.m.

Hopkins radioed the Long Beach tower about 6:45 p.m. that he was returning to El Monte Airport, where he had taken off, before he discovered that his landing gear would not retract.

Seven Long Beach fire trucks slicked down the south runway with fire-retardant foam while Hopkins circled at 5,000 feet.

Police roadblocks on Lakewood Boulevard between Conant Street and Wardlow Road diverted traffic to Clark Avenue for 20 minutes.

Battalion Chief Craig R. Halker said the plane suffered slight damage. Halker added that bystanders applauded Hopkins after he bellied the plane onto the runway.

Amplifier and 2 guitars stolen

Long Beach police said Friday two guitars and an amplifier valued at $230 were taken by burglars who pried open the garage door at the residence of Victor Rauel Dorantes, 347 E. 19th St.

Ford golfs, rents desert home

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — While President Carter was granting amnesty back in frigid Washington on Friday, former President Ford was the premier attraction of the sun-blessed Bing Crosby Golf Tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Arnold Palmer were playing in the pro-am tournament, but the attention and the good wishes of the crowd clearly were with 18-handicap shooter Ford.

A ball hit straight down the fairway.

"ATTA BOY, Jerry. Good hit, Jerry."

A ball sliced off into the rough.

"Ah," murmured 2,000 watchers.

"I feel great; I had a good night's sleep," said Ford as he prepared to tee off on his first morning as a former president.

"I'm not going to predict anything on the golf course."

He was uptight, and his first shot didn't help. He took a mighty swing, the ball sailed 150 yards toward the green and arched right, off the fairway and into the crowd.

Ford bit his lip. He made a face. He looked grim. Partner Palmer looked grim. Ford got a bogey four on the first hole.

But he began to relax, and on the 17th hole he reached the green in two and two-putted for par. With his 18-stroke handicap, it was a net birdie for the team.

"All right, partner. You've got it going now," said Palmer, as they prepared to tee off on the next hole — Ford's ninth since they started their 18-hole game midway through the course.

ALTHOUGH Ford was more out in the open on the Monterey Peninsula Club Course than he had been through most of his last 2½ years, the trappings of the presidency still dogged him.

There were the machine-gun loaded station wagon, cameras trained on his every swing and Secret Service men trying to be unobtrusive in their golf caps and jackets and making a bad job of it.

Meanwhile, at Rancho Mirage in Southern California, it was disclosed that Ford will move next month into a secluded home in the exclusive Thunderbird Heights area across from the Thunderbird Country Club.

Ford has taken a year's lease on the house beginning Feb. 1. Eventually, said his military aide, Bob Barrett, Ford plans to buy or build a permanent home in the Palm Springs area.

Rancho Mirage, about 10 miles southeast of Palm Springs, is a desert resort for the wealthy. Former President Nixon has been an occasional guest at publisher Walter Annenberg's large estate there, and the late President Eisenhower frequently golfed at El Dorado Country Club at nearby Indian Wells.

FORD SPENT a post-election golfing vacation at the Thunderbird club.

The new Ford home is a 4,000-square-foot, beige stucco California ranch-style house on a landscaped acre surrounded by a concrete block fence. The San Jacinto Mountains are to the south.

The house has three bedrooms, five baths and a rectangular swimming pool in the rear. The yard is planted with palm trees, bougainvillea and desert flora.

The house is owned by Emily DeWare, a widow who is moving back to Dallas. She said her Dallas attorney, a friend of the former president, suggested that he lease the house. She said she had been asked not to discuss the lease price.

"There are no close neighbors," said Mrs. DeWare. "It's too hilly to build close by."

But there are other homes in the area, some of which are higher and to a certain extent overlook the home. The higher elevations could present a security problem to the Secret Service, which guards former presidents.

3,800 students cut classes to protest possible L.A. busing

Associated Press

Half the students at nine Sunland-Tujunga area schools were absent from classes Friday in a parent-organized boycott to protest the possibility of mandatory busing in Los Angeles to achieve integration.

School officials said 3,800 students were absent in the boycott, after counting the normal 10 percent absenteeism rate for Fridays. In addition, two elementary schools and one junior high school were picketed by about 30 women who said they were "concerned mothers."

Sunland housewife Samm Ferris said the demonstration was organized "to show we are opposed to mandatory busing."

A picketer, Linda Bouquete, said, "We don't want our children taken away from their neighborhood schools. Our husbands work hard so we can live in a decent neighborhood and send our kids to decent schools, and it isn't fair for them to be bused someplace else."

Meanwhile, civil rights organizations attacked the school district's Board of Education student integration plan as inadequate Friday and called for a panel of judges to hear any desegregation plan submitted to the courts.

Dissatisfaction with the board's court-ordered plan was voiced during a press conference held by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Los Angeles Urban League and People United to Save Humanity.

"The plan . . . falls far short of what can reasonably be considered an honest attempt to desegregate the Los Angeles city school system," said Henry Dotson, president of the Los Angeles chapter of the NAACP and spokesman for the coalition.

"The product of the board's deliberations convinces us that the majority of the board members are not prepared to take that courageous step forward for the betterment, in the long run, of the entire community and its students."

The board voted last Monday to set up integrated learning centers that would require the busing of some students for nine-week periods each school year.

Dotson was critical of the board for not adopting the more extensive integration plan submitted by a citizens' advisory committee.

He predicted that the board's plan would be rejected by the court.

The civil rights group asked Superior Court Presiding Judge William P. Hogoboom to name three judges to rule on the plan. "This, we feel, will lessen the political impact on any one judge," Dotson said.

Hogoboom has scheduled a session for next Wednesday to work with attorneys on selecting a judge.

Pure opium cache seized

Associated Press

Federal agents and sheriff's deputies arrested two Lancaster men Friday and seized 11 ounces of pure opium worth $250,000, authorities said in Los Angeles.

Investigators refused to reveal the names of the men or details of the arrest,

County lifeguard services to be cut

From Our L. A. Bureau

Lifeguard services on Los Angeles County beaches will have to be cut back because the Beaches Department overspent its budget, supervisors were told Friday.

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford asked the board to appropriate $76,421 to lessen the impact of lifeguard staffing reductions which he said the department must make to remain within its budget.

But even with the additional funds, he said, services would have to be cut at Catalina, Las Tunas and Nicholas Canyon beaches and adjustments made at others.

Hufford said permanent lifeguards will be unaffected, but the department would have to reduce the level of temporary lifeguards hired on an as-needed basis.

Hufford said the cutbacks "will jeopardize the safety level on Los Angeles County beaches."

He said weekend and peak use coverage will be reduced and eight-hour shifts worked at selected beaches.

He said the budget overspending resulted from "intense summer activity in which heavy crowds, rough surf and favorable weather required increased lifeguard coverage."

The county provides lifeguard service along the entire coastline except for Long Beach, and negotiations are under way for the county to take over in Long Beach.

Ward grants Watson-staff hearing delay

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Baxter Ward's assessment hearings have been postponed to Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the request of a lawyer representing 11 former and present employes of Assessor Philip Watson.

Ward granted the delay Friday after attorney Tom Bosari said he had only recently been retained by the employes and needed more time to discuss with them their involvement in Watson's 1972 tax-limit initiative campaig.

The hearings have recently centered on testimony that several of Watson's employes were required to perform campaign work on county time and that a receptionist in Watson's office was told to credit them with unearned overtime as a coverup.

Ward announced that the receptionist, Lynn Collins, was unable to attend the hearing because of advanced pregnancy.

Ford bit his lip. He made a face. He looked grim. Partner Palmer looked grim. Ford got a bogey four on the first hole.

But he began to relax, and on the 17th hole he reached the green in two and two-putted for par. With his 18-stroke handicap, it was a net birdie for the team.

"All right, partner. You've got it going now," said Palmer, as they prepared to tee off on the next hole — Ford's ninth since they started their 18-hole game midway through the course.

ALTHOUGH Ford was more out in the open on the Monterey Peninsula Club Course than he had been through most of his last 2½ years, the trappings of the presidency still dogged him.

There were the machine-gun loaded station wagon, cameras trained on his every swing and Secret Service men trying to be unobtrusive in their golf caps and jackets and making a bad job of it.

Meanwhile, at Rancho Mirage in Southern California, it was disclosed that Ford will move next month into a secluded home in the exclusive Thunderbird Heights area across from the Thunderbird Country Club.

Ford has taken a year's lease on the house beginning Feb. 1. Eventually, said his military aide, Bob Barrett, Ford plans to buy or build a permanent home in the Palm Springs area.

Rancho Mirage, about 10 miles southeast of Palm Springs, is a desert resort for the wealthy. Former President Nixon has been an occasional guest at publisher Walter Annenberg's large estate there, and the late President Eisenhower frequently golfed at El Dorado Country Club at nearby Indian Wells.

FORD SPENT a post-election golfing vacation at the Thunderbird club.

The new Ford home is a 4,000-square-foot, beige stucco California ranch-style house on a landscaped acre surrounded by a concrete block fence. The San Jacinto Mountains are to the south.

The house has three bedrooms, five baths and a rectangular swimming pool in the rear. The yard is planted with palm trees, bougainvillea and desert flora.

The house is owned by Emily DeWare, a widow who is moving back to Dallas. She said her Dallas attorney, a friend of the former president, suggested that he lease the house. She said she had been asked not to discuss the lease price.

"There are no close neighbors," said Mrs. DeWare. "It's too hilly to build close by."

But there are other homes in the area, some of which are higher and to a certain extent overlook the home. The higher elevations could present a security problem to the Secret Service, which guards former presidents.

3,800 students cut classes to protest possible L.A. busing

Associated Press

Half the students at nine Sunland-Tujunga area schools were absent from classes Friday in a parent-organized boycott to protest the possibility of mandatory busing in Los Angeles to achieve integration.

School officials said 3,800 students were absent in the boycott, after counting the normal 10 percent absenteeism rate for Fridays. In addition, two elementary schools and one junior high school were picketed by about 30 women who said they were "concerned mothers."

Sunland housewife Samm Ferris said the demonstration was organized "to show we are opposed to mandatory busing."

A picketer, Linda Bouquete, said, "We don't want our children taken away from their neighborhood schools. Our husbands work hard so we can live in a decent neighborhood and send our kids to decent schools, and it isn't fair for them to be bused someplace else."

Meanwhile, civil rights organizations attacked the school district's Board of Education student integration plan as inadequate Friday and called for a panel of judges to hear any desegregation plan submitted to the courts.

Dissatisfaction with the board's court-ordered plan was voiced during a press conference held by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Los Angeles Urban League and People United to Save Humanity.

"The plan . . . falls far short of what can reasonably be considered an honest attempt to desegregate the Los Angeles city school system," said Henry Dotson, president of the Los Angeles chapter of the NAACP and spokesman for the coalition.

"The product of the board's deliberations convinces us that the majority of the board members are not prepared to take that courageous step forward for the betterment, in the long run, of the entire community and its students."

The board voted last Monday to set up integrated learning centers that would require the busing of some students for nine-week periods each school year.

Dotson was critical of the board for not adopting the more extensive integration plan submitted by a citizens' advisory committee.

He predicted that the board's plan would be rejected by the court.

The civil rights group asked Superior Court Presiding Judge William P. Hogoboom to name three judges to rule on the plan. "This, we feel, will lessen the political impact on any one judge," Dotson said.

Hogoboom has scheduled a session for next Wednesday to work with attorneys on selecting a judge.

Pure opium cache seized

Associated Press

Federal agents and sheriff's deputies arrested two Lancaster men Friday and seized 11 ounces of pure opium worth $250,000, authorities said in Los Angeles.

Investigators refused to reveal the names of the men or details of the arrest.

County lifeguard services to be cut

From Our L. A. Bureau

Lifeguard services on Los Angeles County beaches will have to be cut back because the Beaches Department overspent its budget, supervisors were told Friday.

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford asked the board to appropriate $76,421 to lessen the impact of lifeguard staffing reductions which he said the department must make to remain within its budget.

But even with the additional funds, he said, services would have to be cut at Catalina, Las Tunas and Nicholas Canyon beaches and adjustments made at others.

Hufford said permanent lifeguards will be unaffected, but the department would have to reduce the level of temporary lifeguards hired on an as-needed basis.

Hufford said the cutbacks "will jeopardize the safety level on Los Angeles County beaches."

He said weekend and peak use coverage will be reduced and eight-hour shifts worked at selected beaches.

He said the budget overspending resulted from "intense summer activity in which heavy crowds, rough surf and favorable weather required increased lifeguard coverage."

The county provides lifeguard service along the entire coastline except for Long Beach, and negotiations are under way for the county to take over in Long Beach.

Ward grants Watson-staff hearing delay

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Baxter Ward's assessment hearings have been postponed to Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the request of a lawyer representing 11 former and present employes of Assessor Philip Watson.

Ward granted the delay Friday after attorney Tom Bosari said he had only recently been retained by the employes and needed more time to discuss with them their involvement in Watson's 1972 tax-limit initiative campaig.

The hearings have recently centered on testimony that several of Watson's employes were required to perform campaign work on county time and that a receptionist in Watson's office was told to credit them with unearned overtime as a coverup.

Ward announced that the receptionist, Lynn Collins, was unable to attend the hearing because of advanced pregnancy.

Brown rips into UC on 'irrelevant education'

By BOB EGELKO

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Brown returned to the University of California regents Friday after an 18-month absence and suggested that the university is to blame for some of the ills of society.

In perhaps his harshest attack yet on the prestigious nine-campus system, Brown belittled a UC study that said the UCLA and Berkeley schools of law, education and business ranked high in the nation.

"Being on top in many ways is not a sign of glory, but a sign of failure, because you're more responsible for the problem," the Democratic governor said.

"While the so-called geniuses of Harvard, Berkeley, Yale and Stanford are patting themselves on the back and fighting as to whether they're No. 1 or No. 5, what are they doing about the fact that so much education does not respond to the kind of changing society we have?

"Never before has education been so irrelevant for so many kids," Brown said.

"In law, the ability of people to resolve disputes by themselves, without resorting to the hocus-pocus and mumbo-jumbo (of lawyers) at $100 or $150 an hour . . . is decreasing."

Professionals like doctors, lawyers and educators, Brown said, "keep defining their own standards to create a need for themselves, make people more dependent and talk an obscure language."

Regents chairman William Coblentz and UC President David Saxon protested that Brown was blaming the university for problems it didn't cause and can't solve.

At a news conference after the meeting, Saxon needled Brown about "why the state doesn't get at some problems" such as smoking, the use of cosmetics, and parents' attitudes.

Despite his criticism, Brown had only one concrete suggestion for UC, that its law schools come up with ways to reduce the "morass of delay" in courts.

But he sent two clear messages to the regents: that he wants them discussing basic educational issues, from the goals of professional schools to teacher tenure, and that he plans to resume his role of gadfly at board meetings, which he hadn't attended since July 1975.

"I'll be at many of them," Brown said. "They should be getting more interesting."

He was referring to the seating of his first three appointees to the board, Gregory Bateson, Vilma Martinez and Verne Orr.

All three made characteristic debuts: Bateson with a long discourse on the meaning of education, Ms. Martinez with a reminder about Mexican-Americans' educational problems, and Orr with a call for controls on teachers who assign their own books.

Orr, who was state finance director under Gov. Ronald Reagan, said in an interview that the regents should consider requiring teachers to donate to charity any profits from the sale of their own books to students in their classes.

"I didn't come aboard to be a faculty-watcher, but I intend to pursue this," Orr said.

Bateson, a 72-year-old UC Santa Cruz philosophy teacher and former husband of anthropologist Margaret Mead, gave a talk that ranged as far afield as the lecture on peyote rituals that he included in his address to Brown's prayer breakfast last year.

"We have at present," he said at one point, "a very considerable amount of Accidie . . . a demon who walks about at high noon whispering in your ear, 'It's not quite worth doing.' "

Standard gets OK to drill 67 channel wells

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of California has a vested right to drill 67 new wells from four Santa Barbara Channel platforms, the State Court of Appeal ruled Friday.

It reversed a lower court ruling which had set aside a State Coastal Conservation Commission order approving an exemption from permit requirements for the wells.

The company had drilled 114 wells from the platforms before a blowout at a Union Oil Co. well in 1969 resulted in the State Lands Commission issuing a moratorium on drilling in state controlled lands in the channel.

The appellate court said incorporated in the Coastal Act was the longstanding rule that, "if a property owner has performed substantial work and incurred substantial liabilities in good faith reliance on a permit . . . he acquired a vested right to complete construction in accordance with terms of the permit.

The state had leased Standard three parcels of tidal and submerged lands in the channel in 1957, 1964 and 1968 for oil and gas production.

Standard got government approval for installing four platforms designed to accommodate a total of 181 wells. Before each well was to be drilled, the company obtained required approval.

During the moratorium, which was lifted in December 1973, the Coastal Act was approved by voter initiative in 1972. It required all developers in coastal zones to obtain development permits from the Coastal Commission, but provided vested-rights exemptions for construction begun before Nov. 8, 1972, under building permits.

Standard claimed such an exemption for drilling of the remaining 67 wells, but was turned down by a regional coastal commisson in May 1974. The state commission two months later reversed this and approved the exemption.

Then a group called Get Oil Out (GOO) filed a petition in San Francisco Superior Court for a writ to set the decision aside, and it was granted in June 1975. The company appealed.

"WE DO not hold," stressed the court, "that Standard need not comply with other provisions of the law with reference to the manner in which it must drill its remaining wells.

"It must, for example, obtain the approval of the Lands Commission and of the State Division of Oil and Gas for the conduct of its operations."

Charges dropped in hospital deaths

VENTURA (AP) — Charges against two Camarillo State Hospital employes were dismissed Friday in Superior Court, undoing the action of a county grand jury that had indicted them in connection with patient deaths at the mental institution.

Psychiatric technicians James Ringo and Hattie Davis were cleared of charges at the request of Dist. Atty. C. Stanley Trom.

Ringo, who no longer works at the hospital, had been charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and being an accessory to manslaughter. He was accused of being involved in a struggle that led to the fatal choking of Clarence Cormier Feb. 18, 1974, and of taking part in a plan to cover up the fact that a stranglehold had been used.

Trom said the charges were dismissed because Ringo had been granted immunity in exchange for his testimony in the pending prosecution of three other employes involved in the incident.

Mrs. Davis had been charged with neglect of her duty toward an insane person, a misdemeanor. She had given a strong multidrug tranquilizer shot to Thomas Lee Riddle, who died under circumstances that were never fully explained.

Economy on uptick, but future still unsettled

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The blizzard of economic statistics this inauguration week shows an economy stronger than it has looked in some months. However, a host of longer-term problems still raise questions about the nation's ability to meet the goals set by the Carter administration for growth, employment and social progress.

Most economists interpret the latest reports from the government as showing perkier business activity after the deceleration in the second half of last year, which forced the unemploymnt indicator back up to an uncomfortably high 8 per cent.

Although the inflation rate has now fallen to less than 5 per cent for the latest 12 months from the double-digit figures of 1974, analysts are still worried about the capacity of the economy to get back to full employment without triggering new price increases and another turn in the stop-go or boom-bust cycle.

The chief worry bears on what the outgoing Ford administration's economic council has just measured as a reduced potential for growth, caused by slower gains in the last 10 years than in the previous postwar decades in output per man-hour, or productivity.

WHAT THIS basically means is that economic managers have less room to maneuver to get the fiscal dividends needed for social programs, more employment and noninflationary growth.

Another nagging problem officially noted by the Ford administration is the changing composition of the labor force — the greater proportions in the total of women and teenagers who tend to be more mobile, moving in and out of jobs more frequently than workers in past years.

Ford's Council of Economic Advisers asserted that these trends now mean the concept of full employment has to be altered. They said, in effect, that if unemployment gets below 4.9 per cent, inflationary pressures will again be aggravated. The previous full-employment yardstick had been 4 per cent.

ANALYSIS
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

Both the lower growth potential and the widening of the full-employment concept are in conflict with the longer-term goals of President Carter, who has vowed to get the economy moving at a relatively high 6 per cent growth level and to bring unemployment down to the range of 4 to 4½ per cent.

While the evidence seems to bear out some of the conclusions of the Ford advisers, the philosophy of Carter's chief economist, Charles L. Schultze, is to attack structural unemployment more vigorously to deal with the hardcore jobless such as blacks in the big cities.

He sees the possibility of such programs being successful without stirring new inflation. But the business community is a little skeptical, fearing that the new government, or the Congress which finally decides, will embark on a new spending spree.

"IT FINALLY becomes a question of trade-offs between inflation and unemployment," says Bob Gough, an economist for Data Resources Inc., of Lexington, Mass.

President Ford's economic report to Congress, presented on Tuesday, found that productivity since 1966 had been rising only 2.1 per cent a year, compared with 3.3 per cent annually between 1948 and 1966. The reasons are not "fully understood," the report conceded. It noted, however, such contributing factors as the reduced growth of capital per worker, the larger proportion of less experienced workers in the labor force, higher energy prices and slower technological progress.

Despite the questions about the long-term prospects, most analysts are convinced that the nation's economy is now on the uptick.

While there is some concern over the impact of cold weather and natural gas shortages on such industries as textiles and fertilizers, where layoffs have been announced, the latest figures from the government's statisticians show consumers in a confident buying mood, one of the main supports for a peppier economy.

Both government and private economists report that the slump in fourth-quarter growth to 3 per cent, which is below the capacity to absorb new members of the work force, has actually paved the way for revived activity. The reason is that inventories were cut and therefore brought into better balance with sales, while Americans were actually buying more. Final sales were up 4.8 per cent during the fourth quarter of 1976.

Overwithholding of income taxes, a phenomenon that has marked collection procedures over the last few years, is expected to lead to some $10 billion of refund checks to taxpayers in the second quarter, which economists expect to give a lift to that period as well. Then in the third and fourth quarters, checks should start entering the spending stream from the Carter tax rebate.

So much slack has been built into the economy that most analysts are unworried about any revival of inflationary pressures this year. Both Ford and Carter advisers predict inflation between 5 and 6 per cent in 1977.

Agri-consumer policy vowed

BY BRIAN KING

WASHINGTON (AP)— The new secretary of agriculture takes office with a pledge to be a conciliator and to look out for the interests of those who buy the food as well as those who produce it.

"Instead of tossing out challenges and issuing statements that tend to irritate people," Bob Bergland says. "I am going to do just the opposite."

REFERRING directly to Earl Butz, who resigned under pressure during the election campaign after making a racist remark, Bergland said, "I am going to go out of my way to be a conciliator."

Bergland said that, as the owner of a 600-acre wheat farm in Minnesota and a former congressman, he felt confident about his new work.

"I've spent 30 years of my life getting ready for it," he said.

Like President Carter, Bergland is a man of informality who sipped a can of beer and made himself a sandwich while answering questions. He appeared for an interview wearing blue jeans and an open-neck shirt.

As a member of the new Cabinet, Bergland will be flooded with social invitations. But he says he and his wife Helen will spurn the Washington party circuit.

"We're not going to change our life-style. I'd rather spend an evening home with the kids (there are six)," he said.

Bergland said one of his first goals as secretary would be to find a way to deliver long-range weather forecasts to enable farmers to make intelligent decisions about plantings.

He would like the forecasts to be provided directly by the Agriculture Department, not the weather service, but no details have been worked out.

Other agriculture secretaries have promised to help consumers, but perhaps none with Bergland's fervor.

"I THINK in due time farmers will accept the fact that consumers are customers and that we ought to have a food policy for the United States and not just farm policy, but a policy in which not only farmers' needs are taken into account but consumer needs are reckoned with too."

The low-income food stamp program administered by the Agriculture Department also will get attention from Bergland. "We have 50 million consumers generally recognized as poor who spend everything they can on food," he said.

"We need to be sure we don't develop a policy in which we raise farm prices so high they don't get enough to eat," he said.

Farmers to plant bigger corn crop

WASHINGTON (NYTS) — Farmers surprised the experts Friday with reported plans for planting still more corn than the acreage that produced a record crop last year.

The Agriculture Department, in its first report on farmers' intentions for 1977 spring planting, said growers also expect to plant more soybeans than they did last year. Commodity experts had expected a soybean increase, but felt that part at least would come as a result of a decrease in corn acreage.

THE FARMERS have reported intentions, however, to plant substantially less spring wheat than they planted last year, information that came as no surprise because wheat prices have been depressed, with a large surplus overhanging the market.

Friday's report, by the department's crop reporting board, means that if farmers carry out their present intentions and experience normal growing conditions, this year's corn production will be in the range of last year's record of more than six billion bushels.

But growing conditions, always uncertain in advance, are the subject of more than usual uneasiness this year because ground moisture is reported to be unusually low in some major producing areas.

Planting and production reports on corn and soybeans are closely watched by economists because the two crops are important elements in livestock feed, and supplies and prices of the two significantly influence production and prices of meat, which is the biggest factor in the family food budget.

The department said farmers' reports on their intentions, gathered by mail from 48 states, indicate an increase of 0.5 per cent in corn acreage, to 84.5 million acres, and an increase in soybeans of 6 per cent, to 53.1 million acres.

Prevailing opinion among experts in the commodity trade had been that the increase in soybeans would be about a million acres.

Overall, if farmers carry out their intentions, all livestock-feed acreage will increase slightly, with a decline in sorghum offset by increases in oats and barley.

Economy on uptick, but future still unsettled

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The blizzard of economic statistics this inauguration week shows an economy stronger than it has looked in some months. However, a host of longer-term problems still raise questions about the nation's ability to meet the goals set by the Carter administration for growth, employment and social progress

Most economists interpret the latest reports from the government as showing perkier business activity after the deceleration in the second half of last year, which forced the unemploymnt indicator back up to an uncomfortably high 8 per cent

Although the inflation rate has now fallen to less than 5 per cent for the latest 12 months from the double-digit figures of 1974, analysts are still worried about the capacity of the economy to get back to full employment without triggering new price increases and another turn in the stop-go or boom-bust cycle

The chief worry bears on what the outgoing Ford administration's economic council has just measured as a reduced potential for growth, caused by slower gains in the last 10 years than in the previous postwar decades in output per man-hour, or productivity.

WHAT THIS basically means is that economic managers have less room to maneuver to get the fiscal dividends needed for social programs, more employment and noninflationary growth.

Another nagging problem officially noted by the Ford administration is the changing composition of the labor force — the greater proportions in the total of women and teenagers who tend to be more mobile, moving in and out of jobs more frequently than workers in past years.

Ford's Council of Economic Advisers asserted that these trends now mean the concept of full employment has to be altered. They said, in effect, that if unemployment gets below 4.9 per cent, inflationary pressures will again be aggravated. The previous full-employment yardstick had been 4 per cent.

ANALYSIS
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

Both the lower growth potential and the widening of the full-employment concept are in conflict with the longer-term goals of President Carter, who has vowed to get the economy moving at a relatively high 6 per cent growth level and to bring unemployment down to the range of 4 to 4½ per cent.

While the evidence seems to bear out some of the conclusions of the Ford advisers, the philosophy of Carter's chief economist, Charles L. Schultze, is to attack structural unemployment more vigorously to deal with the hardcore jobless such as blacks in the big cities.

He sees the possibility of such programs being successful without stirring new inflation. But the business community is a little skeptical, fearing that the new government, or the Congress which finally decides, will embark on a new spending spree.

"IT FINALLY becomes a question of trade-offs between inflation and unemployment," says Bob Gough, an economist for Data Resources Inc., of Lexington, Mass.

President Ford's economic report to Congress, presented on Tuesday, found that productivity since 1966 had been rising only 2.1 per cent a year, compared with 3.3 per cent annually between 1948 and 1966. The reasons are not "fully understood," the report conceded. It noted, however, such contributing factors as the reduced growth of capital per worker, the larger proportion of less experienced workers in the labor force, higher energy prices and slower technological progress.

Despite the questions about the long-term prospects, most analysts are convinced that the nation's economy is now on the uptick.

While there is some concern over the impact of cold weather and natural gas shortages on such industries as textiles and fertilizers, where layoffs have been announced, the latest figures from the government's statisticians show consumers in a confident buying mood, one of the main supports for a peppier economy.

Both government and private economists report that the slump in fourth-quarter growth to 3 per cent, which is below the capacity to absorb new members of the work force, has actually paved the way for revived activity. The reason is that inventories were cut and therefore brought into better balance with sales, while Americans were actually buying more. Final sales were up 4.8 per cent during the fourth quarter of 1976.

Overwithholding of income taxes, a phenomenon that has marked collection procedures over the last few years, is expected to lead to some $10 billion of refund checks to taxpayers in the second quarter, which economists expect to give a lift to that period as well. Then in the third and fourth quarters, checks should start entering the spending stream from the Carter tax rebate.

So much slack has been built into the economy that most analysts are unworried about any revival of inflationary pressures this year. Both Ford and Carter advisers predict inflation between 5 and 6 per cent in 1977.

Pilot of crashed cargo jet drunk

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The captain of a Japan Air Lines cargo jet that crashed on takeoff from Anchorage International Airport Jan. 13 was drunk, the National Transportation Safety Board said Friday.

But an airline spokesman said it is too early to say that the pilot's drunkenness caused the crash that killed all five persons on board. No other crew member was found to have had any alcohol in his blood, the NTSB said.

An autopsy showed that pilot Hugh Marsh, 53, of Tokyo, had a blood alcohol content of .21 per cent, twice the level for a conviction in Alaska for drunken driving, the NTSB said. Federal Aviation Administration regulations prohibit pilots from drinking within eight hours of a flight.

The NTSB also said the pilot maneuvered the plane onto the wrong runway and had to be directed to the right one before takeoff. The airport has two main, parallel runways and there was heavy fog the day of the crash.

The DC8 was carrying 56 cattle on a flight from Moses Lake, Wash., to Tokyo when it crashed on takeoff. It had landed here for a crew change and refueling.

Don't be conned buying your condominium

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

Many Americans with dreams of owning their own homes have turned to condominiums instead of increasingly expensive single-family houses. But the growth in condominium sales has brought a corresponding growth in complaints about unscrupulous developers.

The National Council of State Legislatures reports that, in 1975, condominiums accounted for nearly 18 per cent of all housing units sold in the United States.

The council says about a dozen state legislatures have passed laws to protect condominium buyers. California, Virginia, Florida, Georgia and Maryland, for example, require developers to disclose detailed information about homeowner obligations, estimated monthly assessments, recreation facilities, plans for enlargement and projected operating budget.

Some states give consumers a cooling off period of 10 or 15 days during which the buyer can change his or her mind about the deal.

Buying a condominium can be just as confusing as buying a house.

It is important to understand exactly what you are buying. A condominium is a home you own in a multiunit building such as an apartment complex. You hold the deed — exclusively — to all the enclosed space described in your title. You are responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of that space. You pay for the unit in the same way you would pay for the house.

At the same time, in conjunction with your neighbors, you own an interest in the common elements of the property — the building's exterior, the walls, the utility pipes, the land under the building, the grounds and the recreational facilities. You automatically become part of the owners' association that is responsible for maintaining the joint facilities. Costs are shared, with each owner paying a fixed assessment that may increase as expenses go up.

The individual ownership of the living unit and the joint ownership of the other parts of the property make a condominium different from either a cooperative or a house.

The owner of a cooperative owns stock or membership certificates in a housing corporation operated for the benefit of the residents; he does not individually own the unit he lives in. The owner of a house, of course, owns not only the unit he lives in but the entire building, as well as the land, unless it is leased land. All three forms of ownership — house, condominium and cooperative — provide tax benefits not available to people who rent their homes. But they also bring increased responsibilities.

The National Association of Homebuilders has several suggestions for potential buyers of condominiums.

—Check the builder's reputation. How long has he been in business? Has he built other projects in the area? What sort of guarantees does he offer?

—Look at the quality of the construction. How thick are walls? Is soundproofing effective? Which items are covered by a warranty?

—What is included in the living unit you will own? What are the size and make of the appliances? If the project is not finished, where will your unit be located?

—How will the recreation facilities be operated? If the builder is going to lease them to the owners, how much will he charge?

Powell in fine humor at White House debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jody Powell displayed good humor in his debut as White House press secretary Friday, a function noted in recent years for sullen and angry exchanges between reporters and presidential spokesmen.

Powell's session with the news media ranged from relating what President Carter ate for breakfast to the desk he picked for his Oval Office, the latest additions to the Carter staff and announcement of pardons for Vietnam draft evaders.

THERE WAS hardly room for people to stand in the briefing room. Powell took advice from reporters as well as painstakingly answering questions, and he kept things light with his humorous comments.

He told stories of first-day mistakes by himself and the new President's staff, noting that Carter couldn't find his news summary this morning.

Compared to the often bitter, rancorous and ill-humored briefings with former President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, and former President Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, the 33-year-old, Georgia-accented Powell showed good-natured helpfulness in his debut.

Some of the tidbits Powell disclosed about the first day included:

— The White House didn't have a high chair to accomodate Carter grandson Jason and had to get a chair from the billiard room for the family breakfast gathering.

— The President's brother Billy looked over the White House billiard table and complained that, although the White House was "a high class place, the darned pool table had no pockets in it."

— The President's son Jeff and his wife were late inaugural party revelers, getting to bed at 5 a.m. Powell said they celebrated at an undisclosed place in Virginia, joking: "I'm not sure whether Jeff intentionally didn't disclose it or was unable to remember it."

Once when he referred to some information as "another bit of trivia," Powell was admonished by reporters that they did not consider it trivia. He then referred to other such items as being historic.

While Nessen frequently announced that he was giving up smoking and tried not to smoke at briefings, Powell chain-smoked, lighting one cigarette from another during his briefing, which lasted more than an hour.

Ex-Maine governor new Demo chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fomer Maine Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis took over as Democratic national chairman Friday and warned his party "not to rest on the laurels of victory."

He said President Carter wants the party organization strengthened, not put on a standby basis.

The off-year drive to bolster the Democratic apparatus is in contrast to the decisions of past presidents, notably Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon, to virtually dismantle their national committee operations in favor of management from the White House.

In his acceptance speech, Curtis also pledged to build a party "to reach out to the American people, to sense the moods and needs of our diverse population, and to help win public support" for the new Carter administration.

Curtis, an old friend and early supporter of President Carter and Carter's choice for the job, was elected by acclamation at the post-inaugural meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

The name of Patt Derian of Mississippi, herself a Carter campaign and transition official, was placed in nomination, but it died for lack of a second. The Carter slate then was elected by a roaring voice vote.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and Carmella Lacayo of Los Angeles, a member of Carter's national campaign steering committee, were elected co-vice chairmen.

Joel McCleary of North Carolina, a fundraiser for the Carter campaign, was elected party treasurer. And Dorothy Bush, whose drawling call of the roll is familiar to a generation of Democratic National Convention watchers, was retained as secretary.

Curtis succeeds Texas lawyer Robert Strauss, who took over after the 1972 presidential campaign and rebuilt the Democratic coalition that made Carter's victory last fall possible.

Projects coordinator

Financially beset aide gets new Carter post

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Greg Schneiders, who was denied the post as President Carter's appointments secretary because some of his old business checks bounced, was named White House projects director Friday.

Schneiders was one of Carter's closest aides during his campaign. But he withdrew from consideration for the appointments post he had seemed sure to get after an FBI check turned up his financial problems of several years ago.

CARTER also named Richard Harden of Camilla, Ga., to be special assistant for budget and organization, and a presidential cousin, Hugh Carter Jr., to be special assistant for administration.

Harden's and Hugh Carter's salaries will be $42,000 each. Schneiders' salary has not been set.

Schneiders was formerly an owner of two restaurant-bars in Washington which failed and left behind them a string of bounced checks. Schneiders has said all the checks were paid off eventually and most of the othr debts of the businesses have been cleared.

For a while the former Georgetown University student drew unemployment checks at the same time he was trying to get a restaurant consulting operation off the ground.

THE FEDERAL prosecutor's office cleared him last week of charges that he had illegally received the jobless pay. Schneiders denied that he was paid by the restaurant consulting firm during the 1974-75 period when he drew $6,000 in unemployment compensation.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said that Schneiders will have "an over-all function of coordinating projects in the administrative area, with special responsibility for the movement of paper."

Harden, state director of human resources and a special assistant to Carter when the President was governor of Georgia, "is responsible for taking all our perquisites away," Powell said.

"HE'S DOING a fine job," the press secretary added.

Carter has said he wants to take away some of the special privileges given to White House staff members under former administrations. The President sees the move as a way to save money and lessen the image of an "imperial" presidency.

Powell said Hugh Carter Jr. is the son of the President's first cousin and operates an antique business in Plains, Ga.

Among other appointments announced Friday was Joseph D. Duffey's, a former president of Americans for Democratic Action and an early Carter supporter, named assistant secretary of state for cultural affairs.

Cyrus R. Vance, the secretary of state-designate, announced the pending nomination of Duffey, 44, a theologian, along with several others to fill the remaining key jobs at the State Department.

LEFT unfilled were the top jobs at the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, where Victor Galinsky, a member of the Nuclear Regulatory Agency, is said to be under consideration, and the Agency for International Development, where former Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio has reportedly been offered the position.

Several of the appointments announced Friday were holdovers.

They are: Carol C. Laise, 59, director general of the Foreign Service, who is married to Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, negotiator of the Panama Canal treaty; C. Arthur Borg, 50, executive secretary of the State Department, who heads communications for the department; John M. Thomas, 50, assistant secretary of state for administration, and Harold H. Saunders, 46, director of the Bureau of Intelligence and Research.

AMONG new appointments:

—Douglas J. Bennett Jr., 38, an assistant secretary for congressional relations. He was staff director of the Senate budget committee.

—C. William Maynes, 38, as assistant secretary for international organization affairs. He was secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in New York and a Foreign Srvice officer.

—Mathea Falco, 32, special assistant for narcotics matters. She was special assistant to the president of the Drug Abuse Council.

—Joseph S. Nye Jr., 39, deputy undersecretary of state for security assistance in the field of nuclear proliferation. He is a professor of government at Harvard.

Congressional sources said Harold Brown, the new defense secretary, was leaning toward naming Samuel P. Huntington, a Harvard professor, as the assistant secretary for international security affairs.

Walter Slocum, a former specialist in arms control matters on the National Security Council staff, is said to be a likely principal deputy to Huntington. Lynn Davis, a Senate aide, will probably be named as a deputy assistant secretary specializing in strategic arms limitation negotiations.

Jerrold L. Schecter, diplomatic correspondent of Time magazine, has accepted a position on the National Security Council staff in charge of press and congressional relations. He will also work as a deputy to White House spokesman Jody Powell in the foreign affairs field.

It was also learned that, at the United Nations, Andrew Young, the designated American chief representative, has chosen Donald F. McHenry, 40, as a deputy representative, with ambassadorial rank, to the Security Council.

Belmont Shore airs its pride

Two others cited the need for a traffic light at Second Street and Tivoli Drive, one specifying that a crossing guard for Naples children was not enough.

Another complained about speeding on the Ravenna Avenue Bridge.

"Kids race around the fountain and across the bridge in their cars," he wrote.

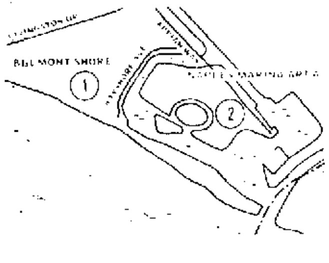
There was a total of 11 speeding complaints from residents of the Naples-Marina communities.

ALLEYS were a common target.

"While not as bad as the streets of New York during a strike of the sanitation workers, there may be found in some alleys a suggestion of some mild competition," wrote Jack Klein of Belmont Shore.

"East and west alleys in business areas are strewn with trash," wrote Carol Hutchins.

There were 10 complaints about alleys from Belmont Shore residents. Litter was cited most frequently, but poor drainage and disrepair were also mentioned.



Alleys in Naples-Marina received mixed reviews.

"I am happy that the city is sweeping the alleys again—even if not every week," wrote one resident.

Three others wanted the alleys cleaned on a regular schedule and another correspondent glowingly cited the "street-sweeping program as a definite asset."

PARKING is a problem common to the surveyed communities.

From Belmont Shore, there were 14 letters about problems associated with parking. The range of comments included:

Campers shouldn't be allowed to park on residential streets for more than two hours.

Cars, vans and trucks are parked in front of a home for five to six days.

Bayshore Avenue along Alamitos Bay is jammed with cars most weekends when people would like to use the beach.

Illegal parking on wrong sides of two-way streets.

On First Street, from Ximeno Avenue to Bayshore Avenue, cars blocking sidewalk.

Allow only the resident to park in the two spaces in front of his home.

Divert traffic from residential streets. The Belmont Heights-Belmont Park homeowners groups have asked the city for help but haven't received it.

No parking lots past Bayshore Avenue for bathers and fishermen.

Legalize parking overnight on the beach parking lots for nearby residents. Many are presently using the lots anyway and possibly a monthly fee of $5 could be charged.

Traffic on race weekends (referring to the Marine Stadium) would be far less snarled if our one-way streets were extended to Appian Way. When cars are parked on both sides, there is only one lane in which to travel. Two-way traffic is impossible, but they try.

From Naples-Marina, Joe Phelps prefaced his parking commentary:

"It's difficult to write a letter complaining about a situation in Naples, because this is one of the most unique and enjoyable residential communities to be found anywhere in the world. I can't imagine a place where I'd prefer to live."

So stating, Phelps specified the weekend parking problem compounded by the arrival of individuals who have rented boat slips.

Their cars, usually left unattended two or three days, crowd the limited space needed for parking by the residents of the neighborhood.

Phelps said the Fire Department reported it couldn't provide necessary protection some weekends because "overparking" prevented adequate access.

He suggested that, as had been done by the managers of the new Costa d'Oro development, the city limits slip rentals to individuals living not more than 1,000 feet from their boats.

IN BELMONT SHORE 10 residents can't understand how the shore shop owners ignore sidewalk litter. The word used most frequently was "filthy."

Wrote Mrs. Alice Titus:

"I am dismayed by the filthy sidewalks along Second Street. I should think each merchant could sweep his walk once a day."

Another resident:

"Looks like the slums and we pay enormous taxes for....this trashy section?"

There are other complaints from Belmont Shore:

"For a city that brags about its recreation program, the Alamitos Bay paddle tennis courts are a disgrace. Nets are in shreds, surface is rough and drainage is nonexistent."

Too many banking institutions and real estate offices.

Open drinking on the beach by all ages.

Street lights on Ocean Boulevard are not adequate from 54th Place to the street's end.

No adequate public bathrooms for bathers east of Granada Avenue.

Too many skate-boarders on Second Street.

Parking lots are always littered.

Faulty burglar alarms go off all hours of the night.

Noise from gay bars, pizza parlors, hi-fi sets, Marine Stadium races and an "idiot" who blows his horn at 7 a.m. to pick up a rider.

Fill up large pockholes galore in side streets so bicycle riders can watch out for traffic instead of dodging the holes.

"The area along Ocean Boulevard between Granada Avenue and 55th Place on the south side of the street. For decades there were beautiful homes built along this beach front. Slowly but surely (a number of) these homes were torn down for 'legal requirements', leaving an unattractive condition...without curbs...wind from mini-Sahara drifts across causing driving problems...constant cleanup." (W. E. Sawrey)

THREE RESPONDENTS from the Naples-Marina area complained about being denied access to the water.

"When we recently improved our cross-canal bridges," wrote Ken Wood, "there were some in our neighborhood who made sure no one could dive into the water from the bridge."

Another writer stated that property owners on the bay side from 65th Place to the end had built and planted "the public beach so only they can use it—not the public."

Another specified that the public was being deprived of the use of the beach on the bay side of the peninsula.

Other complaints from Naples-Marina:

Home owners renting to undesirables.

Growth of "joints" on Second Street which bring in freaks and troublesome people.

Bicycles, motorcycles and motor-bikes are so thick on Bay Shore Walk (literally a sidewalk on the south side of Alamitos Bay), you can't step on the sidewalk for fear of being hit.

Shuttle service boats operating in Alamitos Bay set up a house-shaking rumble that is heard day and night with the intensity and regularity of a heavy locomotive train.

"The band concerts are swell, except for the conductor, who walks back and forth chain-smoking while the orchestra plays."

WHILE THE "WRONGS" far outnumbered the "rights" in the surveyed communities, none of the respondents mentioned moving from their neighborhoods.

The survey's context, despite the preponderance of "wrong" numbers, was, perhaps, best expressed by Betty T. Fraser of Belmont Shore. She wrote:

"Considering the way most of the world lives, I feel almost ashamed of wanting to suggest improvement of an area that should be considered 'Utopia' for most.

"However, man's intelligence seems to drive him to improvements or the desire for such."

There were other "rights" enumerated by Belmont Shore residents.

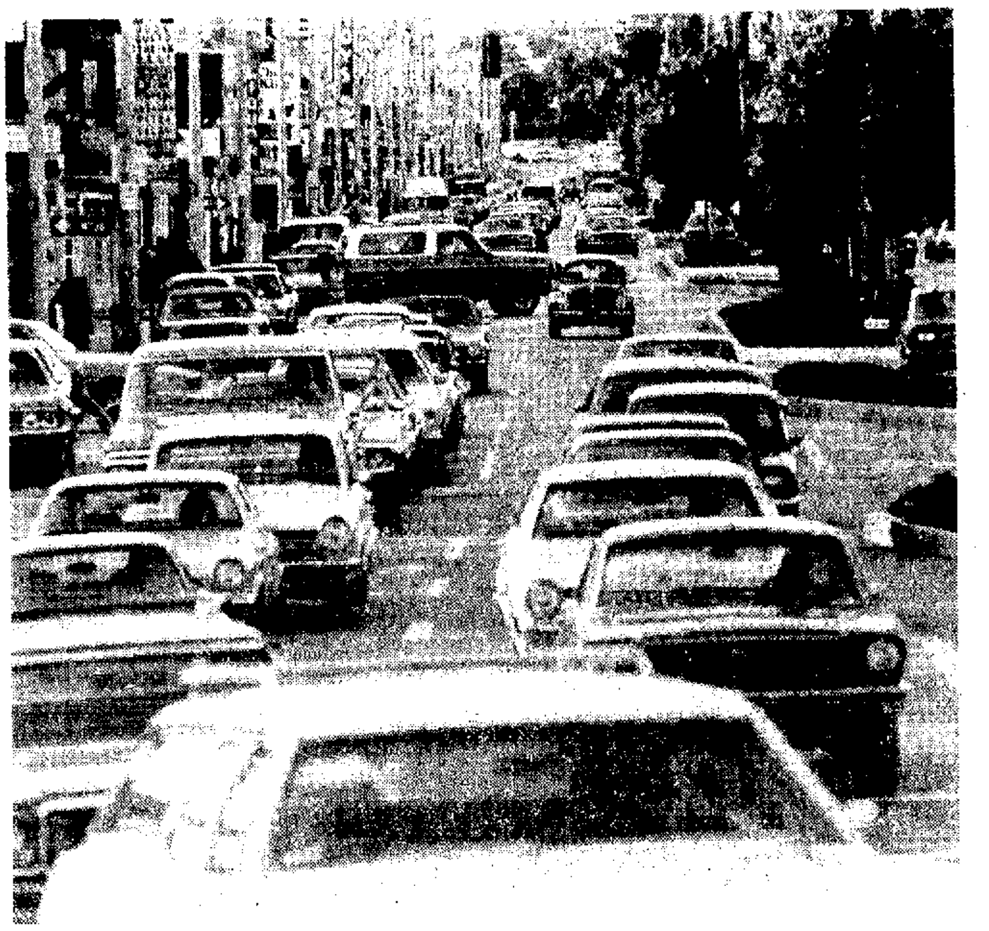
Like Mrs. Lita Lease who feels at ease walking at night along Second Street, another writer felt safe from purse-snatchers and "everyone is friendly, like in a small town."

Three others were pleased with the small-town atmosphere and friendly merchants. Another was pleased with the efforts of the Belmont Shore Business Association.

Damaso Corpuz called it the nicest place in Long Beach.

Mrs. C. T. mentioned the beautiful beach, the magnificent marina, the climate—never too cold and never too hot— the well-stocked Bay Shore Library, where the girls are friendly and helpful, the small market where she gets kind and helpful service.

Next Saturday: "My Town" reports on a survey of North Long Beach.



Problems: traffic and trash

Residents of Naples and Belmont Shore neighborhoods are bothered by traffic problems on Second Street—congestion through Belmont Shore, as at left, and speeders through Naples—as well as trashy alleys, as below.

TEACHER MARY ZERN AT LOWELL ELEMENTARY IN BELMONT SHORE AREA

Sixth-graders' views on their town

Each student, the teacher felt, should have a chance to express his own ideas.

Indeed, for each it was "My Town" as seen through his or her 12-year-old eyes.

That is why Mrs. Mary Zern, sixth-grade teacher at Lowell Elementary School, 5201 E. Broadway, had copies made of the survey form printed by the Independent, Press-Telegram.

The "My Town" survey invited readers to write about what they believed was right or wrong in Belmont Shore and the Naples-Marina communities.

Her students, according to Mrs. Zern, first completed the forms, then participated in "a good discussion revealing both strong civic pride and very real areas of concern."

When it was suggested they send the completed survey forms to the newspaper, they eagerly agreed. Here, in part, is what they wrote:

"We do not have a skate-board park. I think we should remove some of the breakwater for surfing." —John Nickerson

"We should give jobs to people who are willing to work in the dog pound so animals have a better chance of being adopted."—Tracie

"You can go out at night and won't get knifed. It's not a polluted area."—Paul Barger

"There's too much litter on Second Street."—Christine Bausch

"There's too many lights on Second Street."—Stephanie McIntosh

"I think they should make Second Street into a mall."—Maryann Rawlins

"Another good thing about Belmont Shore is all the city workers are nice."—Dawn Fiddler

"They should have a little bit of red on corners so cars won't park there and oncoming traffic can see the cars that are coming.—Eddie Martinez

"You can play baseball, football and volleyball without hitting anybody."—Jon Blanton

"It is not right that there are no bike lanes on Second Street."—Bobbi Diamond

"I think that Second Street should have a McDonald's."—Tracey McE.

"I like the friendly people and that a store usually is nearby."—Robyn Huchingson

"The bad thing about my neighborhood is that the dogs bark at night and keep you awake."—Chris Foote

"I think there should be more children's stores.—Cathy Bosnake

"Living at the beach is expensive. Taxes are high."—Pat K. W.

"I think on Roycroft and Livingston they should make a park."—Dick Berry

"Naples is the prettiest place at Christmas, just like a fairyland. But one thing they should do is light up Naples more."—Dana Barette

"I like where I live because there is a golf course across the street."—Adrianne Romack

Researcher's report

Smoking pot leaves you cold —and whiskey isn't warming

By BOB CALVERLEY
Knight News Service

From his vantage point on Waikiki Beach in Honolulu, Dr. Joel Hanna has some advice for Midwesterners shivering through record cold temperatures.

Don't smoke marijuana. Don't drink alcohol. You might try cocaine, but he certainly doesn't recommend it.

HANNA, a physiologist at the University of Hawaii School of Medicine, has been studying the effects of marijuana smoking on cold tolerance. You might wonder why a Hawaiian is researching the effects of cold. Hanna explains that the university is investigating deep-sea diving and that a limiting factor for divers is the cold temperature in deep water.

"From our questionnaires we've learned that a lot of professional divers smoke marijuana before they dive," he says. "They all agree it's much more fun, but most admitted they felt colder."

When he tested marijuana smokers from college, Hanna found they all experienced an earlier onset of cold-induced heat production in their bodies after smoking marijuana than after smoking a placebo mixture.

He isn't sure why marijuana does this, although he suspects that the drug is working on the autonomous nervous system which controls such things as heartbeat and temperature-regulation mechanism.

This means that if you smoke marijuana and then go out, you will feel cold sooner than if you don't smoke it.

Hanna plans more marijuana research and the student volunteers are presumably anxiously awaiting the start of the next project.

Unfortunately, Hanna says drinking alcohol isn't going to help you stay warm either.

Alcohol brings the blood to the surface of the skin and you may feel warmer for a time. In the short term, liquor may help prevent frostbite, because the susceptible extremities such as the ears, toes and fingers get more blood.

BUT WHEN the blood flows to the surface of your skin, you lose body heat much faster and can become seriously chilled without realizing it.

Cocaine has long been used by people to help them withstand cold. German soldiers on the Russian front in World War II were given cocaine, although warm clothing and more fuel would probably have helped them more.

Several years ago Hanna traveled to Peru to look at Quechua Indians who chew coca leaves (which contain cocaine) both to keep warm and to suppress their appetites, because they get very little to eat.

"It seems to keep the blood from flowing out of the center of their bodies and it enables them to maintainbody temperature," he says. Hanna says he could detect no euphoric effect in the Quechua cocaine users because of the low cocaine content of the leaves.

"ONE NIGHT I chewed as many as those leaves as I could, but I never felt anything," he says. "At the most it was like drinking several cups of coffee."

The Quechuas have fascinated cold researchers for a long time because of their unbelievable adaptation to cold temperatures.

The Indians regularly go barefoot through the slush and snow. Summer and winter, the women wash clothes in the near-freezing high altitude moutain streams.

They often stand barefoot in the water for as long as an hour. One group of scientists watched men from an Indian village spend a winter day standing in a stream while they built a stone wall to divert the water.

Research has shown that women can tolerate the cold better than men, a fact which has been confirmed in studies of Eskimos. This is probably due to the fact that women have, on the average, slightly more fat immediately below their skin.

IF YOU really want to stay warm, wearing the proper clothing will work better than any drugs. You should wear layers of clothing, with each garment trapping a layer of air to keep your warm.

When you start shivering, it is a sign that you are becoming chilled. It is also an inefficient method of generating heat, says Hanna. Only about 11 per cent of the energy you burn up while shivering is translated into heat.

Of course, Hanna has one more surefire method to keep warm. "Come to Hawaii and lie on the beach," he says.

Glaucoma victim has license to smoke his 'special brand'

By ANNE KEEGAN
Knight News Service

Robert Randall is the exception to the rule. Not that millions don't do what he does—inhale the thick sweet-smelling smoke that sets a detective's nose to twitching.

But he's the only one who can do it legally—the only one in the United States who can do what he does when and where he pleases without the threat of arrest.

IN HIS jacket at all times he carries a pack of cigarettes. There are 15 to a pack, and each pack carries an official-looking white sticker. But it touts no brand and carries no surgeon general's warning. Instead, it says, "For investigational use only."

There are no conventional filters on the ends, nor any tell-tale twists that hint of the cigarettes being handmade. A faded red "M" stamped on each tip stands for marijuana.

When authorities find marijuana on anyone else, they confiscate it. But the government supplies it to Robert Randall, growing it for him in North Carolina and giving it to him in Washington, D.C., where he lives.

He gets his supply once a week, and he smokes eight joints a day. He does it because he is going blind. And so far, only marijuana—not pills, not eye drops—has been able to arrest his case of open angle glaucoma.

Randall smokes grass like the rest of the public pops pills, swallows aspirin, gulps cough syrup and sucks on cough drops.

Although he is a legal exception, he is neither a showman nor a showoff. He is a short, soft-spoken, 28-year-old man with a master's degree in rhetoric who wears thick glasses and is going blind.

He also is the man who took on federal bureaucracies to prove smoking marijuana helps him from going blind. And he won.

Since Nov. 12, he has been smoking government grass.

"I'd been smoking marijuana since 1968," he says. "When I was in college, I didn't smoke much—one or two joints a week. But I started noticing halos around things I saw, and I knew something was wrong with my sight. Then I noticed that whenever I smoked a joint the halos went away.

"I SAW an eye doctor, and he told me it was eyestrain. And I figured, 'well, the marijuana is a relaxant and that's why the halos go away.' But when I finished college I moved to Washington and didn't smoke at all.

"And it got worse. I finally went to an eye doctor in 1975, and he said I had glaucoma. I started smoking again and the halos went away.

Suddenly it hit me that this was it. I wondered, 'can it be real?' That these joints have something to do with glaucoma? I thought only I knew. I didn't say anything to anybody. Then I got arrested. That's when it all began."

Randall was arrested after police spotted his marijuana plant growing out of a pot on his sun porch. He was chargd with possession.

"I went through 16 months of bureaucracy," he says. "I petitioned the federal government for permission to smoke marijuana out of necessity—to stop my blindness." It was an unprecedented move.

"It wasn't until two weeks after I was arrested I learned that UCLA had done studies five years before showing marijuana was beneficial for those with glaucoma," he says.

"BUT THE government had done nothing with the information. What benefits they've found from marijuana they do not publicize. I think marijuana is more benign than aspirin."

Not only did Randall win his appeal to the federal government to smoke marijuana out of necessity, but he won his case in the courts, too.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge and went about proving why. After several months of thought, the judge ruled that "the evil he sought to avert, blindness, is greater than the (evil) he performed to accomplish it."

And now Randall hopes that other glaucoma sufferers, and asthmatics and patients undergoing chemotherapy — all of whom have shown in some studies favorable responses to marijuana treatment — might have the legal chance to use the drug therapeutically.

Randall is also for the legalization of marijuana, be it for "medical or recreational reasons."

But the former speech teacher's life has changed since his arrest back in 1975.

"Suddenly I was involved with lawyers, a law I thought was mad, medical studies, doctors, petitions, and bureaucracies. It became my life 16 hours a day. It was an ascending scale. It was all I thought about — marijuana."

Noah and other topics

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

Well, I've received a lot of flack concerning my flippant "non-review" of "In Search of Noah's Ark."

So I have read the book. It's more interesting than I expected it to be. It is well-documented, well-researched.

But it is still a fairy tale!

None of the documentation quite comes off. Explorations seem to be interrupted by avalanches, earthquakes, volcanoes, etc.

If the evidence were at all convincing, archeological teams from a dozen nations would be racing to see who could be first to dig the big ship out of the ice.

Christians, Jews and Moslems need to rethink many of their notions about history, especially Biblical history. There probably was a Great Flood. And there probably was a man named Noah who built a ship. Maybe he even did live to be 950 years old.

But let's be reasonable. The United States might for three or four billion dollars build a great floating zoo to house not all but many of the animals and birds of planet Earth. It would require a crew of more than eight to man such a vessel.

Now don't misunderstand me. I believe in Noah, that heroic man who saved mankind. I believe because I want to believe.

The story of Noah is greater than the piffle of science and history. It says something profound about the glory and divinity of being Man under the fatherhood of God.

REVERENCE FOR BUDDHA

College students are returning to basic Christianity, say three professors at Michigan State University. They report that interest in Eastern religions such as Buddhism is dying out. Such faiths were quite the fad in the late 1960s.

Well, a little dash of Buddhism, Taoism and Hinduism is good for Christians. They lend a new perspective. Buddhism in its pure form is a highly developed ethical pattern. Taoism gives a mystical insight. Hinduism contains high wisdom together with a measure of folly.

The student may experience a new conversion to Christianity from his explorations. All that is best in these beautiful religions is also in Christianity.

SCANDALOUS SALARIES

Perhaps the servants of God should not have every luxury, but they deserve a bit more than most churches pay.

A church report contains the shocking admission that the pastor, a learned and experienced man, makes $16,000 a year. The church is large and rather affluent. The laity should be deeply ashamed.

Now $16,000 is not exactly starvation wages, but many muscle laborers make more. This man has four years of college and a term in seminary. He is, among other things, an executive who administers the business of the church.

His pay should at least be comparable to other employed professionals.

IMAGINARY WINDMILLS

If Christians would limit their crusades to real and really worthy causes, we would have a better world.

An example of crusading against an imaginary evil is the fight to keep religion on television and radio. In the past two years more than four and a half million letters have been received by the Federal Communications Commission urging it not to ban religion.

The FCC, although probably a bit irked at Christians, denies ever having even discussed such a ban. Freedom of religion is guaranteed by the Constitution, the agency pointed out.

Madalyn Murray O'-Hair, the militant atheist, has been accused of the "plot against religion on the air." She denies it, saying she doesn't want to limit anyone's freedom. She just want more freedom for atheists.

Just this week there came to this desk a horrendous piece by a "Rev." urging everyone to protest to the FCC. If he can't find real windmills to fight, he will fight with imaginary ones.

Ecumenical pioneer honored

HANNOVER, West Germany (AP) — Tributes poured in this week from churchmen in many lands to Bishop Hanns Lilje, internationally influential figure in world Christianity who died of a heart attack Jan. 6 at 77.

A Lutheran, he took a key role in the founding of the Lutheran World Federation and also of the World Council of Churches, established in 1948 as a main force in the " ecumenical movement for Christian leaders."

He belonged to that "rather small group of outstanding leaders" that launched the world cooperative body of Christians, commented another noted founder and its long-time chief executive, the Rev. Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft.

In the Nazi period of Germany, Bishop Lilje was among leaders of the Confessing Church which defied Nazi ideology, was arrested by the Gestapo in 1944 and sentenced to death, but was liberated in 1945 by American forces.

New guide on education

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another revision of a proposed major, new guide to Roman Catholic education in this country has been distributed to dioceses across the nation for final reactions and suggestions.

It is the third such churchwide review since the U.S. Catholic bishops in 1972 commissioned production of the National Catholic Directory to provide comprehensive guidelines for church education at all levels.

When the current reactions are consolidated, after a March 15 deadline, a final draft will be prepared for submission to the fall meeting of U.S. bishops for their action on the document.

Researcher's report

Smoking pot leaves you cold —and whiskey isn't warming

By BOB CALVERLEY
Knight News Service

From his vantage point on Waikiki Beach in Honolulu, Dr. Joel Hanna has some advice for Midwesterners shivering through record cold temperatures.

Don't smoke marijuana. Don't drink alcohol. You might try cocaine, but he certainly doesn't recommend it.

HANNA, a physiologist at the University of Hawaii School of Medicine, has been studying the effects of marijuana smoking on cold tolerance. You might wonder why a Hawaiian is researching the effects of cold. Hanna explains that the university is investigating deep-sea diving and that a limiting factor for divers is the cold temperature in deep water.

"From our questionnaires we've learned that a lot of professional divers smoke marijuana before they dive," he says. "They all agree it's much more fun, but most admitted they felt colder."

When he tested marijuana smokers from college, Hanna found they all experienced an earlier onset of cold-induced heat production in their bodies after smoking marijuana than after smoking a placebo mixture.

He isn't sure why marijuana does this, although he suspects that the drug is working on the autonomous nervous system which controls such things as heartbeat and temperature-regulationmechanism.

This means that if you smoke marijuana and then go out, you will feel cold sooner than if you don't smoke it.

Hanna plans more marijuana research and the student volunteers are presumably anxiously awaiting the start of the next project.

Unfortunately, Hanna says drinking alcohol isn't going to help you stay warm either.

Alcohol brings the blood to the surface of the skin and you may feel warmer for a time. In the short term, liquor may help prevent frostbite, because the susceptible extremities such as the ears, toes and fingers get more blood.

BUT WHEN the blood flows to the surface of your skin, you lose body heat much faster and can become seriously chilled without realizing it.

Cocaine has long been used by people to help them withstand cold. German soldiers on the Russian front in World War II were given cocaine, although warm clothing and more fuel would probably have helped them more.

Several years ago Hanna traveled to Peru to look at Quechua Indians who chew coca leaves (which contain cocaine) both to keep warm and to suppress their appetites, because they get very little to eat.

"It seems to keep the blood from flowing out of the center of their bodies and it enables them to maintainbody temperature," he says. Hanna says he could detect no euphoric effect in the Quechua cocaine users because of the low cocaine content of the leaves.

"ONE NIGHT I chewed as many as those leaves as I could, but I never felt anything," he says. "At the most it was like drinking several cups of coffee."

The Quechuas have fascinated cold researchers for a long time because of their unbelievable adaptation to cold temperatures.

The Indians regularly go barefoot through the slush and snow. Summer and winter, the women wash clothes in the near-freezing high altitude moutain streams.

They often stand barefoot in the water for as long as an hour. One group of scientists watched men from an Indian village spend a winter day standing in a stream while they built a stone wall to divert the water.

Research has shown that women can tolerate the cold better than men, a fact which has been confirmed in studies of Eskimos. This is probably due to the fact that women have, on the average, slightly more fat immediately below their skin.

IF YOU really want to stay warm, wearing the proper clothing will work better than any drugs. You should wear layers of clothing, with each garment trapping a layer of air to keep your warm.

When you start shivering, it is a sign that you are becoming chilled. It is also an inefficient method of generating heat, says Hanna. Only about 11 per cent of the energy you burn up while shivering is translated into heat.

Of course, Hanna has one more surefire method to keep warm. "Come to Hawaii and lie on the beach," he says.

Glaucoma victim has license to smoke his 'special brand'

By ANNE KEEGAN
Knight News Service

Robert Randall is the exception to the rule. Not that millions don't do what he does—inhale the thick sweet-smelling smoke that sets a detective's nose to twitching.

But he's the only one who can do it legally—the only one in the United States who can do what he does when and where he pleases without the threat of arrest.

IN HIS jacket at all times he carries a pack of cigarettes. There are 15 to a pack, and each pack carries an official-looking white sticker. But it touts no brand and carries no surgeon general's warning. Instead, it says, "For investigational use only."

There are no conventional filters on the ends, nor any tell-tale twists that hint of the cigarettes being handmade. A faded red "M" stamped on each tip stands for marijuana.

When authorities find marijuana on anyone else, they confiscate it. But the government supplies it to Robert Randall, growing it for him in North Carolina and giving it to him in Washington, D.C., where he lives.

He gets his supply once a week, and he smokes eight joints a day. He does it because he is going blind. And so far, only marijuana—not pills, not eye drops—has been able to arrest his case of open angle glaucoma.

Randall smokes grass like the rest of the public pops pills, swallows aspirin, gulps cough syrup and sucks on cough drops.

Although he is a legal exception, he is neither a showman nor a showoff. He is a short, soft-spoken, 28-year-old man with a master's degree in rhetoric who wears thick glasses and is going blind.

He also is the man who took on federal bureaucracies to prove smoking marijuana helps him from going blind. And he won.

Since Nov. 12, he has been smoking government grass.

"I'd been smoking marijuana since 1968," he says. "When I was in college, I didn't smoke much—one or two joints a week. But I started noticing halos around things I saw, and I knew something was wrong with my sight. Then I noticed that whenever I smoked a joint the halos went away.

"I SAW an eye doctor, and he told me it was eyestrain. And I figured, 'well, the marijuana is a relaxant and that's why the halos go away.' But when I finished college I moved to Washington and didn't smoke at all.

"And it got worse. I finally went to an eye doctor in 1975, and he said I had glaucoma. I started smoking again and the halos went away.

Suddenly it hit me that this was it. I wondered, 'can it be real?' That these joints have something to do with glaucoma? I thought only I knew. I didn't say anything to anybody. Then I got arrested. That's when it all began."

Randall was arrested after police spotted his marijuana plant growing out of a pot on his sun porch. He was chargd with possession.

"I went through 16 months of bureaucracy," he says. "I petitioned the federal government for permission to smoke marijuana out of necessity—to stop my blindness." It was an unprecedented move.

"It wasn't until two weeks after I was arrested I learned that UCLA had done studies five years before showing marijuana was beneficial for those with glaucoma," he says.

"BUT THE government had done nothing with the information. What benefits they've found from marijuana they do not publicize. I think marijuana is more benign than aspirin."

Not only did Randall win his appeal to the federal government to smoke marijuana out of necessity, but he won his case in the courts, too.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge and went about proving why. After several months of thought, the judge ruled that "the evil he sought to avert, blindness, is greater than the (evil) he performed to accomplish it."

And now Randall hopes that other glaucoma sufferers, and asthmatics and patients undergoing chemotherapy — all of whom have shown in some studies favorable responses to marijuana treatment — might have the legal chance to use the drug therapeutically.

Randall is also for the legalization of marijuana, be it for "medical or recreational reasons."

But the former speech teacher's life has changed since his arrest back in 1975.

"Suddenly I was involved with lawyers, a law I thought was mad, medical studies, doctors, petitions, and bureaucracies. It became my life 16 hours a day. It was an ascending scale. It was all I thought about — marijuana."

Anniversary

Uptown Church of Christ, 3707 Atlantic Ave., will celebrate its 25th anniversary — and the 75th anniversary of the Church of Christ in Long Beach — with a homecoming program Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Hugh M. Tiner, former president of Pepperdine College, and David M. Dunn are present ministers of the Uptown church, which has a membership of 250. The church is under the spiritual leadership of elders Carlton Massey and Charles Hays.

The Church of Christ was established in Long Beach in 1902, and members met in homes and rented halls until 1908. The church occupied buildings at 420 Pacific from 1908 to 1913; at 9th and Olive, until 1923; 9th and Lime, until 1952 when it moved into its present edifice at 3707 Atlantic.

Ministers who have served the congregation include A.M. Morris, James A. Scott, Earl W. Warren, Richard Lane, H. Frank Cope and James Groves.

The Uptown church has an active bus ministry, mission outreach in Mariposa, Calif., and San Quentin Prison, and numerous Bible study programs. The church is planning a citywide Crusade for Christ this summer in cooperation with other Churches of Christ in the area.

At Sunday's homecoming, following a luncheon at 1 p.m., a report on the church's history will be given by Otis J. Warren, a former elder. Singing will be led by Ben and Tim Spivey and Walter Grove. The public is invited.

Female clerics tell hassling

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Attitudes are improving toward the increasing number of women ministers in the United Methodist Church, a survey of them indicates, but about half say they have encountered mixed responses or continuing obstacles.

The Rev. Theresa Scherf, who made the survey, says many women reported being asked "very impertinent questions not asked of male candidates" by male-dominated conference boards of ministry, such as:

"Wouldn't you really rather be a minister's wife?" "Do you like to cook? — What recipes?" "Do you practice birth control?" "How would you handle advances of a male parishoner?"

Clerics oppose execution

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders of the U.S. Catholic Conference and of the national Council of Churches say the execution of Gary Gilmore represents a backward step into brutality and despair.

It "contributes to the brutalization of our whole society," say officials of the interdenominational cooperative body of 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations. A Catholic official, Dr. Francis J. Butler, said "reliance on the death penalty is an admission of failure rooted in a philosophy of hopelessness."

America has most Jews

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's Jewish population now is estimated at 14,145,000, says the 1977 edition of the American Jewish Year Book. The figure represents a year's drop of 86,000.

The volume, issued jointly by the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Publication Society of America, puts the number of U.S. Jews at 5,845,000, more than in any other nation.

After the United States, countries with the largest Jewish populations were listed as Israel, 2,953,000; Soviet Union, 2,680,000, France, 550,000; Great Britain, 410,000; Canada, 305,000, and Argentina, 300,000.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Reduce tension

"To live peacefully with their nerves, all many persons need to do is just to practice mental quietness," so said a well-known physician.

Doctors claim that many illnesses result from nervous tension. People complain that "my nerves are all 'shot to pieces'." The truth is there is rarely anything wrong with the nerves themselves because they are merely communication lines that run like telephone wires between the brain and all parts of the body. The trouble is in the mind when it becomes confused, harassed and uptight it rebels against the strain put on it. Tension results.

How can you relieve your mind from strain and pressure? How may tension be relieved? Here are four simple steps which can be practiced daily. They have helped many.

1. Spend two or three minutes each day thinking of the most peaceful scenes you ever saw — a mountain at sunset; a valley filled with hush at early morning; deep woods at midday; moonlight on water. Return in memory and mentally relive those scenes. This will help break the tension of your immediate activity and give somewhat the same result that you would gain by taking a vacation (and a lot more cheaply, too).

2. Sit quietly and conceive of your mind as the surface of a lake tossed by waves and wind. Then visualize the waves subsiding and the wind dying down and the lake's surface becoming placid and unruffled. Repeat these words three times: "And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm." You will begin to feel calm.

3. Get together a mental collection of words each of which expresses calmness. While driving, walking or going about, repeat them slowly, deliberately savoring their melody and meaning. The great Swiss psychotherapist, Paul DuBois, taught "word therapy" or the power of words to heal mental states. His own healing word was "invulnerability." Dr. Trudeau, pioneer in the treatment of tuberculosis, prepared his spirit by frequently repeating the word "acquiescence." For uptightness say aloud, "tranquility, equanimity, invulnerability." The state of mind for which the word stands will upon constant repetition tent to take over.

4. The fourth step was suggested to me by one of New York's busiest physicians. When businessmen who become victims of nervous tension consult him, he often by-passes involved treatment by telling his patients, "Take time out every day to say a quiet prayer — it can be the equivalent of many pills." This physician takes his own medicine. A couple of times each day between appointments he sits back in his chair in a relaxed manner and talks to God in his own way. "Look, Lord," he says, "I'm getting tense. Please touch me with your healing peace." Then he waits a moment or two until he feels quieted and can go about his heavy schedule free of tension.

Use these techniques and you will be amazed at the results. It can put you on the way to a healthier and better life.

Primacy for Pope of Rome

LONDON (AP) — Anglican and Roman Catholic representatives have agreed that in any future union between the two churches, some type of primacy should be held by the Pope of Rome.

However, the participants agreed that Anglicans, including Episcopalians in the United States, have not been able to accept some Roman Catholic concepts of the extent of papal authority, such as infallibility in defining faith and morals. Official action on the document was considered years away.

Margaret Mead

Single parents seen as peril

MIAMI — Anthropologist Margaret Mead warned that the rise in a single-parent households in the U.S. is creating a society that will not work.

Mead spoke at the opening session of a consultation on young adult ministry sponsored by the National Council of Churches. "We can't go on with the present situation in which people get married miscellaneously and get divorced a year later and present us with a mass of children from broken homes," she said. "We now have over 9 million households ... with a single parent in charge, and this we cannot go on with."

Mead said society should be "clearer that parenthood is a particular, specialized responsibility while children are young and that people who enter parenthood are accepting certain responsibilities and certain losses of freedom for both men and women."

Those who do not choose parenthood, she said, "are free for a wider responsibility. ... they have freedom to care for the wider society, freedom to work for the greater good rather than for the special good." She predicted that an increasing number of young people will choose not to become parents.

Mead stressed, however, that "unless human beings are close to children, they have very little capacity to think about the future. The way human beings think about the future is through a child in front of you that you know and care about. Without a close relationship to some child the future does not have any reality for most people," she said.

The solution, according to Mead, is "to live in three-generation communities." That way, she said, people who choose not to be parents "are both close to older people and close to children. So at the same time they embrace freedom—wider freedom than parenthood—they're also close to the past and close to the future and knitted into a community, so that their lives have meaning."

Anniversary

Uptown Church of Christ, 3707 Atlantic Ave., will celebrate its 25th anniversary — and the 75th anniversary of the Church of Christ in Long Beach — with a homecoming program Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Hugh M. Tiner, former president of Pepperdine College, and David M. Dunn are present ministers of the Uptown church, which has a membership of 250. The church is under the spiritual leadership of elders Carlton Massey and Charles Hays.

The Church of Christ was established in Long Beach in 1902, and members met in homes and rented halls until 1908. The church occupied buildings at 420 Pacific from 1908 to 1913; at 9th and Olive, until 1923; 9th and Lime, until 1952 when it moved into its present edifice at 3707 Atlantic.

Ministers who have served the congregation include A.M. Morris, James A. Scott, Earl W. Warren, Richard Lane, H. Frank Cope and James Groves.

The Uptown church has an active bus ministry, mission outreach in Mariposa, Calif., and San Quentin Prison, and numerous Bible study programs. The church is planning a citywide Crusade for Christ this summer in cooperation with other Churches of Christ in the area.

At Sunday's homecoming, following a luncheon at 1 p.m., a report on the church's history will be given by Otis J. Warren, a former elder. Singing will be led by Ben and Tim Spivey and Walter Grove. The public is invited.

Female clerics tell hassling

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Attitudes are improving toward the increasing number of women ministers in the United Methodist Church, a survey of them indicates, but about half say they have encountered mixed responses or continuing obstacles

The Rev Theresa Scherf, who made the survey, says many women reported being asked "very impertinent questions not asked of male candidates" by male-dominated conference boards of ministry, such as:

"Wouldn't you really rather be a minister's wife?" "Do you like to cook? — What recipes?" "Do you practice birth control?" "How would you handle advances of a male parishoner?"

Clerics oppose execution

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders of the U.S. Catholic Conference and of the national Council of Churches say the execution of Gary Gilmore represents a backward step into brutality and despair.

It "contributes to the brutalization of our whole society," say officials of the interdenominational cooperative body of 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations. A Catholic official, Dr. Francis J. Butler, said "reliance on the death penalty is an admission of failure rooted in a philosophy of hopelessness."

America has most Jews

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's Jewish population now is estimated at 14,145,000, says the 1977 edition of the American Jewish Year Book. The figure represents a year's drop of 86,000.

The volume, issued jointly by the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Publication Society of America, puts the number of U.S. Jews at 5,845,000, more than in any other nation.

After the United States, countries with the largest Jewish populations were listed as Israel, 2,953,000; Soviet Union, 2,680,000, France, 550,000; Great Britain, 410,000; Canada, 305,000, and Argentina, 300,000.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Reduce tension

"To live peacefully with their nerves, all many persons need to do is just to practice mental quietness," so said a well-known physician.

Doctors claim that many illnesses result from nervous tension. People complain that "my nerves are all 'shot to pieces'." The truth is there is rarely anything wrong with the nerves themselves because they are merely communication lines that run like telephone wires between the brain and all parts of the body. The trouble is in the mind when it becomes confused, harassed and uptight it rebels against the strain put on it. Tension results.

How can you relieve your mind from strain and pressure? How may tension be relieved? Here are four simple steps which can be practiced daily. They have helped many.

1. Spend two or three minutes each day thinking of the most peaceful scenes you ever saw — a mountain at sunset; a valley filled with hush at early morning; deep woods at midday; moonlight on water. Return in memory and mentally relive those scenes. This will help break the tension of your immediate activity and give somewhat the same result that you would gain by taking a vacation (and a lot more cheaply, too).

2. Sit quietly and conceive of your mind as the surface of a lake tossed by waves and wind. Then visualize the waves subsiding and the wind dying down and the lake's surface becoming placid and unruffled. Repeat these words three times: "And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm." You will begin to feel calm.

3. Get together a mental collection of words each of which expresses calmness. While driving, walking or going about, repeat them slowly, deliberately savoring their melody and meaning. Dr. Trudeau, pioneer in the treatment of tuberculosis, prepared his spirit by frequently repeating the word "acquiescence." For uptightness say aloud, "tranquility, equanimity, invulnerability." The state of mind for which the word stands will upon constant repetition tent to take over.

4. The fourth step was suggested to me by one of New York's busiest physicians. Only Christ

I'm surprised at the response to your remarks on the film about Noah's Ark. From about 5 short lines of comments, readers said they could tell that you have a "closed mind of a pantheist" and that "redemption was a fairy tale to the religion editor".

Readers who respond this way feel that they are upholding the "truth" of the Bible. Perhaps they are. However, it should be said that Christians believe in, rely on, and trust Jesus Christ — not the Bible. The Scriptures will not redeem anyone; only Christ can do that. Paul says that the Holy Spirit enables us to say that "Jesus is Lord", not that the Scriptures are infallibly inspired.

Martin Luther said that the Bible is the "manger in which Christ lies". As the wise men came to the manger to worship Christ, Christians come to the Scriptures to meet their Lord, enjoy His presence, and receive His commands. If we call others non-Christian because of their beliefs about the Bible, we are in danger of worshipping the manger and not the living Christ found within. — R. D. Gates, Lakewood

Documentary

In the Saturday, January 8, 1977 issue of the Independent Press-Telegram, Mark Clutter wrote an article entitled BUNK ABOUT NOAH'S ARK. In his article, he says, "The 'history' is based upon some odd pieces of wood allegedly found on Mr. Ararat..." '

Mr. Clutter said, "Hollywood" was "guilty" and this film was a hoax, and that Hollywood "should be deeply ashamed." His opinion was that this was "pseudohistory, a fairy tale to amuse and confuse the gullible."

I am very afraid that Mr. Clutter spoke a little hastily, and I highly suspect that he has not seen the film.

Last night my wife and I went to see IN SEARCH OF NOAH'S ARK, and, first of all, it was not a 'Hollywood-type' production. It was produced by Schick Corporation, and it was more of a documentary than anything else. (In fact, it might not hold the interest of children under 12 years old.) They interviewed scientists, archaeologists, geologists, and a man who had climbed the Mountains of Ararat.

I would highly recommend that everyone, Jew, Christian, or whatever, go see the movie. It was interesting and informative.

One last note: As Bible-believing Christians, we don't need the Ark's existence to be proven — the Genesis account of Noah in God's Word is proof enough for us. It doesn't take "signs" to make one a Christian — it only takes the Gospel of Jesus' death, burial, and resurrection. So, even if the film was a sham, my faith wouldn't waver — but after seeing it, believe IN SEARCH OF NOAH'S ARK is, in honesty, a search for truth.

Sheep's Clothing

I feel sorry for you and I pray for your soul. You have revealed your true belief. And unknown to you, you are what my Lord Jesus tells his own to beware of "wolves in sheep" clothing.

Everything that is written in the Bible is for our Christian education. There are no myths or fairy tales that God would permit to enter in his sacred word to us. I believe all things the Bible tells me. I can't understand, but I trust God to reveal all mysteries to me when I go home to be with Him forever.

We are told about the wickedness of man's hearts (like now). We are told that this grieved God and that he gave 120 yrs. fore-warning, only to be scoffed at (again like now!). So eventually he sent the flood. This is God's word, also science and history proves it. God doesn't lie to us — only we want to have everything proven. Once he proves it we still don't believe.

We also can't accept that Jesus' death paid for our salvation. It's too simpleminded to just accept his gift like the Bible tells us we must do. So you see if one part of the Bible lies then the Whole Book is false!

I pray that Jesus shows the truth to your heart before the end.

Worth seeing

I read your criticism in the I,P-T of the movie "In search of Noah's ark." If you have not seen the film, I would advise that you might enjoy it more than you first thought.

I am a Christian — an evangelical (Baptist) who thoroughly enjoys your section of the paper every week. I appreciated your favorable comments on the "I Found It" campaign. I also wrote your mother a note and told her how much I enjoy her son's religion page. I find it very stimulating to read all the variety of things you have in the religion section of the paper, although some things I disagree with (But then I disagree with George Robeson and Sydney Harris — two more favorites of mine — at times too!)

I just took my 11 & 12 yr. old children to see "Noah's Ark" tonight — we saw other Christians there too. My kids really enjoyed it. From my point of view (their 39-yr-old mother) I feel it is very good, very informative & certainly for "our" side. Maybe it will help non-Christians be less doubtful and help remove some disagreement. It certainly proved the Bible true. After you see it, I'll watch for your comments in the paper.

Beginning of fair play

The quoting of statements out-of-context is one of the most prevalent sources of misunderstanding and enmities, whether it is between nations or individuals.

This fact always emerges sharply when "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" is being quoted as charging the Bible as okaying revengeful measures.

A careful reading and thoughtful in-context quoting clearly shows that the Bible does not say any such thing.

Several recent letters-to-the-editor highlighted this gross misconception.

The Biblical sages warned the people that they must be ready to accept the responsibility for any deleterious conditions that acts of theirs bring upon others. So, be careful!

To graphically point out what this MUST get to mean to each and every one of us, they used gut-level, basic analogies, which they thought would be most rememberable and serve as effective deterrents.

In essence what the Bible was saying here can be distilled to this — "If any of you cause someone the loss of an "eye" or loss of a "tooth", you will have to recompense that person by balancing the issue to be decided by some judicial body." The "eye and "tooth" analogies were used to demonstrate the prime significance of our attitudes and relationships toward others.

The recognition of this is the foundation of our legal process.

To distort this into having the Bible sanctify personal revenge is a sad pheomenon that has coursed down for many centuries.

The comment

Samuel Whitman writes letters to make editors think. Sometimes he succeeds in this difficult task. I went to Exodus 21, Leviticus 24 and Deuteronomy 19 to read the immediate context of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." (Of course, if one wanted to be really contextual, he should study all five books of the Pentateuch.)

My statement was that "eye for an eye and tooth for a tooth" was a commandment of moderation. Vengeance or punishment should fit the crime. One doesn't burn down the offender's village because of a broken tooth.

Society and the courts have not entirely learned this idea of moderation. How long should a man stay in jail for a packet of marijuana?

This portion of the Mosaic Law is seemingly harsh by our standards. "A life for a life." But it also set up the "cities of refuge" where certain manslayers could flee and live.

If Southerners, most of whom believed in the Old Testament, had heeded the laws about moderation in slavery, American history would be more beautiful. Of course, these ideas might have caused us to have slavery today, and slavery no matter how gentle, is totally evil.

One must remember the setting of these laws. These were savage warriors, former slaves, who intended to conquer the Promised Land. They aimed to annihilate the enemy. But the law recognized that some young men would seize pretty girls. It detailed how the captive women should be treated.

These laws were the beginning of the concept of fair play, of sportsmanship, of moderation. The human race has not yet succeeded in obeying these laws.

Jesus went further. He said, "You have learn they were told, 'Eye for eye, tooth for tooth.' But what I tell you is this: Do not set yourself against the man who wrongs you. If someone slaps you on the right cheek, turn and offer him your left."

Are you ready for that?

Only Christ

I'm surprised at the response to your remarks on the film about Noah's Ark. From about 5 short lines of comments, readers said they could tell that you have a "closed mind of a pantheist" and that "redemption was a fairy tale to the religion editor".

Readers who respond this way feel that they are upholding the "truth" of the Bible. Perhaps they are. However, it should be said that Christians believe in, rely on, and trust Jesus Christ — not the Bible. The Scriptures will not redeem anyone; only Christ can do that. Paul says that the Holy Spirit enables us to say that "Jesus is Lord", not that the Scriptures are infallibly inspired.

Martin Luther said that the Bible is the "manger in which Christ lies". As the wise men came to the manger to worship Christ, Christians come to the Scriptures to meet their Lord, enjoy His presence, and receive His commands. If we call others non-Christian because of their beliefs about the Bible, we are in danger of worshipping the manger and not the living Christ found within. — R. D. Gates, Lakewood

Documentary

In the Saturday, January 8, 1977 issue of the Independent Press-Telegram, Mark Clutter wrote an article entitled BUNK ABOUT NOAH'S ARK. In his article, he says, "The 'history' is based upon some odd pieces of wood allegedly found on Mr. Ararat..."

Mr. Clutter said, "Hollywood" was "guilty" and this film was a hoax, and that Hollywood "should be deeply ashamed." His opinion was that this was "pseudo-history, a fairy tale to amuse and confuse the gullible."

I am very afraid that Mr. Clutter spoke a little hastily, and I highly suspect that he has not seen the film.

Last night my wife and I went to see IN SEARCH OF NOAH'S ARK, and, first of all, it was not a 'Hollywood-type' production. It was produced by Schick Corporation, and it was more of a documentary than anything else. (In fact, it might not hold the interest of children under 12 years old.) They interviewed scientists, archaeologists, geologists, and a man who had climbed the Mountains of Ararat.

I would highly recommend that everyone, Jew, Christian, or whatever, go see the movie. It was interesting and informative.

One last note: As Bible-believing Christians, we don't need the Ark's existence to be proven — the Genesis account of Noah in God's Word is proof enough for us. It doesn't take "signs" to make one a Christian — it only takes the Gospel of Jesus' death, burial, and resurrection. DAN FARIS AND SOME OF HIS 250,000 MOVIE POSTERS

—AP Wirephoto

'. . . with a cast of thousands'

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dan Faris spends his days awash in a sea of dreams and memories, surrounded by "a cast of thousands" amidst the paper trinkets advertising Hollywood's celluloid dream world.

Faris sells movie posters, photos of the stars, handbills, press books and lobby cards — anything connected with movies — at his hole-in-the-wall Pinema Shop on seedy O'Farrell Street.

FARIS, 31, studied film in college, but didn't get into his current line until he met an old man who owned a book shop.

"I put some of my posters up in an old guy's bookstore and people wanted to buy them," he said. "When he went out of business, I took over, about 10 years ago."

Since then, he has stockpiled the tailings of the film industry, and now boasts of 250,000 posters and some 2 million photos.

"I get calls from university film classes and television, but my main trade is with private collectors," he said. "I save things for a lot of movie people, like John Wayne and director Sam Peckinpah."

But movie memorabilia is far more than a business to Faris, who has traveled around the country adding to his archives.

"THE BULK of my collection I found in a little theater in Mississippi," he says. "The guy who ran it must have kept everything he ever had."

Too much of the really good old stuff has been carelessly destroyed, Faris says.

"The thing about it is that really classic stuff has gone into garbage cans and to paper drives," he said. "An original "Frankenstein" poster recently sold for $1,500. I've sold a "Casablanca" for $400, but most of the more common ones sell for around $10."

Faris says that most movie studios insist that the posters be destroyed or returned after the film ends its run.

"It's one of those greedy things that go on. But there are nice theater managers around who will give them to you."

FARIS speaks almost reverently of the poster as true art and says the really good ones should get credit if a movie is a success.

"It's definately an art form. There are some hanging in galleries. Norman Rockwell and Salvadore Dali have done them."

On the current scene, Faris likes the art that pushes "King Kong" and "Marathon Man." But he questions the poster of the Hollywood epic "The Last Tycoon," which doesn't mention the city.

"People are starting to listen more to critics," he said. "But the general audience goes by a theater and sees, for instance, the strong block letters of a "Ben Hur" poster, they expect to see just what they see in "Ben Hur."

"I've met a lot of people who are doing what I wanted to do, and from what they say, they can have it. I've got too much freedom," he said. "In a lot of cases it's nicer to see a picture or poster than the real person."

EARL'S PEARLS

Today's Best Laugh: A losing gambler at London's Hartford Casino was told that his wife was coming in with another man. "Good!" he snapped. "I hope he has the same luck here I had."

Wish I'd Said That: With the current frigid weather, Sid Allen recalls the line: "It's so cold in my apartment that every time you open the door the light goes on."

Earl's Pearls: There's a new Jimmy Carter doll. And in case it breaks there's a Walter Mondale doll packed with it.

"Getting old," says Victor Borge, "is a marvelous experience. Since I have never been old before, every day is a new experience" ... Definition of a good neighbor: One who has everything you're out of.

Little-known episode of Nazi era recalled in new movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It is a very positive film, and I hope it will be well received, particularly by the younger generation. It is important for them to learn what the Nazis did to the Jews."

Vienna-born Oskar Werner was here to talk about the new movie, "Voyage of the Damned," in which he and a clutch of stars portray a little-known episode of Nazi Germany. Nine hundred Jews were allowed to leave Germany on an ocean liner only to be trapped on the high seas when no nation would accept them.

THE CAST of the Avco Embassy release includes Faye Dunaway, Max Von Sydow, Orson Welles, James Mason, Ben Gazzara, Malcolm McDowell, Lee Grant and Katharine Ross. None could feel the impact of the film's theme as intimately as Oskar Werner.

"I lived under the Nazis in Austria from 1938 to 1945," he remarked. "I saw a very distinguished writer being forced to wash a sidewalk because he was a Jew. I saw the books burning in the street. The big lorries arrived with the books, and I saw what they were — books by Stefan Zweig, Franz Werfel, Freud, Einstein, and Thomas Mann, who wasn't a Jew but had spoken out against the Nazis.

"People in Germany claimed they were not aware of what the Nazis were doing to the Jews. Lies. We all knew about the concentration camps, although we couldn't know all the atrocities that went on. I myself spent four months in a work camp, and it was the most miserable experience of my life. I welcomed being forced into the army, where I was a very poor soldier.

"SO YOU can see that 'Voyage of the Damned' evokes great emotions. Will the young generation be intrigued enough by the theme to come to the theaters? I hope so."

The answer will be known in February, when the film is released nationally. The early opening in New York has produced excellent results, in Los Angeles less so.

This was Werner's first visit to Hollywood since he appearedin a "Columbo" two years ago. His only other filmmaking experience here was "Ship of Fools" in 1965. He has made surprisingly few movies anywhere — a mere 20 in almost 30 years. Among them: "Decision before Dawn," which introduced him to American audiences; "Jules and Jim," "The Shoes of the Fisherman," "Mozart," "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," "Fahrenheit 451," "Interlude."

"DURING my career I have rejected more than 300 scripts," explained the actor, a youthful 54. "I'm an old-fashioned man, I suppose. I simply won't appear in pornography or films of violence. I believe in what Kant asked of art: that it be the manifestation of the sublime and the beautiful.

"I have been spoiled by the theater. When I can't find films that seem worth doing, I can always do things that are worthwhile in the theater. I have done four productions of 'Hamlet.' Lately I have been touring with recitals, filling the Vienna theater that is like your Carnegie Hall, with 2,500 people. I read poetry that is familiar to tem; my surprise is in how I tell it.

"I HAVE often said I am married to the theater. Film is my mistress."

He claimed to be "not very ambitious" and he enjoys staying at home in Liechtenstein. No wonder — the place has seven bathrooms, indoor-outdoor swimming pool and 5,500 books. Mainly it's his "old fashioned" principles that prevent him from making more movies.

Once he objected to the script of Darryl Zanuck's "Up from the Beach" because he felt his role as a German officer glorified the Nazis. The producer told him to play the role as written. Werner walked off the movie and out of a large salary. His comment to the film company: "I wouldn't take ultimatums from Adolf Hitler, so I certainly won't take any from Darryl Zanuck."

'Old Times' an entertaining experience

"By using concise language and not making specific statements about his characters, Pinter allows for a multiplicity of interpretation. He creates a surface reality to make the people in the play accessible to the audience, and yet uses this action to intimate the inaccessibility of their personalities and to suggest metaphysical and abstract essences of both the situation and the characters."

This is the way director David Emmes describes Costa Mesa's South Coast Repertory theater's current production, "Old Times," written by British playwright Harold Pinter.

After seeing the play the average viewer will probably have trouble understanding what Emmes is saying, as well as what Pinter is saying, if anything.

However, the play, as presented by SCR, is an entertaining experience.

There are times when the three characters, a man, his wife and the wife's roommate of 20 years past who drops in for a short visit, don't seem to be communicating, either with each other or with the audience.

Innuendo piles on innuendo until it becomes very difficult to tell when any of the characters is telling the truth and even more difficult to tell when they are consciously lying.

None of this is ever really spelled out for the audience.

It's not a simple play.

The acting, provided by Cherie Patch as the wife, Charles Lanyer as the harried husband and Irene Rosen as vixenish visitor, is outstanding.

If it weren't the play wouldn't make any sense at all which it almost doesn't anyway.

One of Pinter's trademarks as a playwright is his use of "carefully placed silences", one of which he carefully sets at the end of the play when the bright lights are flashed on stage which leaves the audience completely in the dark as to what actually happens to the characters at the end.

If you're not too fussy about plot, continuity and understanding what it's all about, "Old Times" will provide you with a full evening of entertainment and several hours of disjointed conversation with anyone else who sees it.

"Old Times" is scheuled to be performed at 8 nightly with Sunday matinaees at 3 p.m. through Feb. 19 at SCCR's Third Step Theater at 1827 Newport Blvd.

Vienna-born Oskar Werner was here to talk about the new movie, "Voyage of the Damned," in which he and a clutch of stars portray a little-known episode of Nazi Germany. Nine hundred Jews were allowed to leave Germany on an ocean liner only to be trapped on the high seas when no nation would accept them.

THE CAST of the Avco Embassy release includes Faye Dunaway, Max Von Sydow, Orson Welles, James Mason, Ben Gazzara, Malcolm McDowell, Lee Grant and Katharine Ross. None could feel the impact of the film's theme as intimately as Oskar Werner.

"I lived under the Nazis in Austria from 1938 to 1945," he remarked. "I saw a very distinguished writer being forced to wash a sidewalk because he was a Jew. I saw the books burning in the street. The big lorries arrived with the books, and I saw what they were — books by Stefan Zweig, Franz Werfel, Freud, Einstein, and Thomas Mann, who wasn't a Jew but had spoken out against the Nazis.

"People in Germany claimed they were not aware of what the Nazis were doing to the Jews. Lies. We all knew about the concentration camps, although we couldn't know all the atrocities that went on. I myself spent four months in a work camp, and it was the most miserable experience of my life. I welcomed being forced into the army, where I was a very poor soldier.

"SO YOU can see that 'Voyage of the Damned' evokes great emotions. Will the young generation be intrigued enough by the theme to come to the theaters? I hope so."

The answer will be known in February, when the film is released nationally. The early opening in New York has produced excellent results, in Los Angeles less so.

This was Werner's first visit to Hollywood since he appearedin a "Columbo" two years ago. His only other filmmaking experience here was "Ship of Fools" in 1965. He has made surprisingly few movies anywhere — a mere 20 in almost 30 years. Among them: "Decision before Dawn," which introduced him to American audiences; "Jules and Jim," "The Shoes of the Fisherman," "Mozart," "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," "Fahrenheit 451," "Interlude."

"DURING my career I have rejected more than 300 scripts," explained the actor, a youthful 54. "I'm an old-fashioned man, I suppose. I simply won't appear in pornography or films of violence. I believe in what Kant asked of art: that it be the manifestation of the sublime and the beautiful.

"I have been spoiled by the theater. When I can't find films that seem worth doing, I can always do things that are worthwhile in the theater. I have done four productions of 'Hamlet.' Lately I have been touring with recitals, filling the Vienna theater that is like your Carnegie Hall, with 2,500 people. I read poetry that is familiar to tem; my surprise is in how I tell it.

"I HAVE often said I am married to the theater. Film is my mistress."

He claimed to be "not very ambitious" and he enjoys staying at home in Liechtenstein. No wonder — the place has seven bathrooms, indoor-outdoor swimming pool and 5,500 books. Mainly it's his "old fashioned" principles that prevent him from making more movies.

Once he objected to the script of Darryl Zanuck's "Up from the Beach" because he felt his role as a German officer glorified the Nazis. The producer told him to play the role as written. Werner walked off the movie and out of a large salary. His comment to the film company: "I wouldn't take ultimatums from Adolf Hitler, so I certainly won't take any from Darryl Zanuck."

'Old Times' an entertaining experience

"By using concise language and not making specific statements about his characters, Pinter allows for a multiplicity of interpretation. He creates a surface reality to make the people in the play accessible to the audience, and yet uses this action to intimate the inaccessibility of their personalities and to suggest metaphysical and abstract essences of both the situation and the characters."

This is the way director David Emmes describes Costa Mesa's South Coast Repertory theater's current production, "Old Times," written by British playwright Harold Pinter.

After seeing the play the average viewer will probably have trouble understanding what Emmes is saying, as well as what Pinter is saying, if anything.

However, the play, as presented by SCR, is an entertaining experience.

There are times when the three characters, a man, his wife and the wife's roommate of 20 years past who drops in for a short visit, don't seem to be communicating, either with each other or with the audience.

Innuendo piles on innuendo until it becomes very difficult to tell when any of the characters is telling the truth and even more difficult to tell when they are consciously lying.

None of this is ever really spelled out for the audience.

It's not a simple play.

The acting, provided by Cherie Patch as the wife, Charles Lanyer as the harried husband and Irene Rosen as vixenish visitor, is outstanding.

If it weren't the play wouldn't make any sense at all which it almost doesn't anyway.

One of Pinter's trademarks as a playwright is his use of "carefully placed silences", one of which he carefully sets at the end of the play when the bright lights are flashed on stage which leaves the audience completely in the dark as to what actually happens to the characters at the end.

If you're not too fussy about plot, continuity and understanding what it's all about, "Old Times" will provide you with a full evening of entertainment and several hours of disjointed conversation with anyone else who sees it.

"Old Times" is scheuled to be performed at 8 nightly with Sunday matinaees at 3 p.m. through Feb. 19 at SCCR's Third Step Theater at 1827 Newport Blvd.

Funds run out on border 'alien decoy' police unit

By EVERETT HOLLES
New York Times Service

SAN DIEGO — Withdrawal of a squad of Spanish-speaking police "decoys" from a desolate stretch of the Mexican border has stirred fears of a violent renewal of nighttime murder, robbery and rape by gangs of bandits terrorizing illegal aliens.

An hour after the task force was disbanded Jan. 13, Luis Perez, a 27-year-old jobless laborer from Tijuana, was ambushed and stabbed while trying to sneak into the United States, the first serious casualty reported in the area since the patrol was set up last Oct. 10:

POLICE Chief William B. Kolender said the 10-man operation, first of its kind along the 2,000-mile border, had been "tremendously successful" but had to be suspended because of a shortage of policemen and funds and "the need to give priority to protecting our own citizens."

The city had sought unsuccessfully to obtain a $271,000 emergency grant from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to deal with the gang violence along a rugged, seven-mile strip of the border separating San Diego's southern outskirts from Mexico.

KOLENDER said he expects to reactivate the task force in July when 60 new officers are added to his department. In the meantime, he said, the 10 officers will be assigned to border duty once every two weeks "to maintain their efficiency."

The task force, made up of police volunteers of Mexican heritage, many of them Mexican-born, naturalized U.S. citizens with a deep compassion for the destitute victims of the youthful gangs, resented the suspension of the squad. Most of the 10 officers offered to continue the patrols on their nights off at regular pay.

The force was organized, over the objections of some citizens and city officials, to catch gangs from Mexico and the United States that prey on some of the 2,000 illegal aliens who swarm across the border into California every night. The officers speak the argot of Mexico's border slums and masquerade as illegal aliens.

Chicano organizations and civic leaders have protested that, without the police "senuelos" (decoys), the violence will inevitably increase because of Mexico's growing economic distress, soaring inflation and spreading lawlessness, particularly in border towns, where the unemployment rate is near 50 per cent and increasing.

Kolender said that, in the nine months before the task force went into action, reported attacks on illegal aliens in a seven-mile-long "no man's land" around Otay Mesa, two miles east of San Ysidro, included 124 robberies, three murders, numerous knifings and six rapes. In 1975, 130 attacks were reported, including four killings.

During the task force's four months of operation, 180 arrests were made, including many of juveniles, but there were no killings or serious casualties and no reported rapes.

Previously, many women among the illegal aliens were sexually molested — while their husbands and families were held at knifepoint — after jewelry had been torn from their fingers and ears by the maurauders operating in groups of four to 10.

Many of the gangs, particularly those from the United States, include youths 14 or 15 years of age. The bandits from the Mexican side of the border are usually older and more vicious.

Girl, 7, kitten found dead in refrigerator

The mother of a 7-year-old Westminster girl found her daughter and the child's pet kitten dead in the family refrigerator Friday when she returned from work, Westminster police said.

Mary Thomas, 13751 Edwards St., Westminster, told police her daughter, Patricia, stayed home from school because she had the flu.

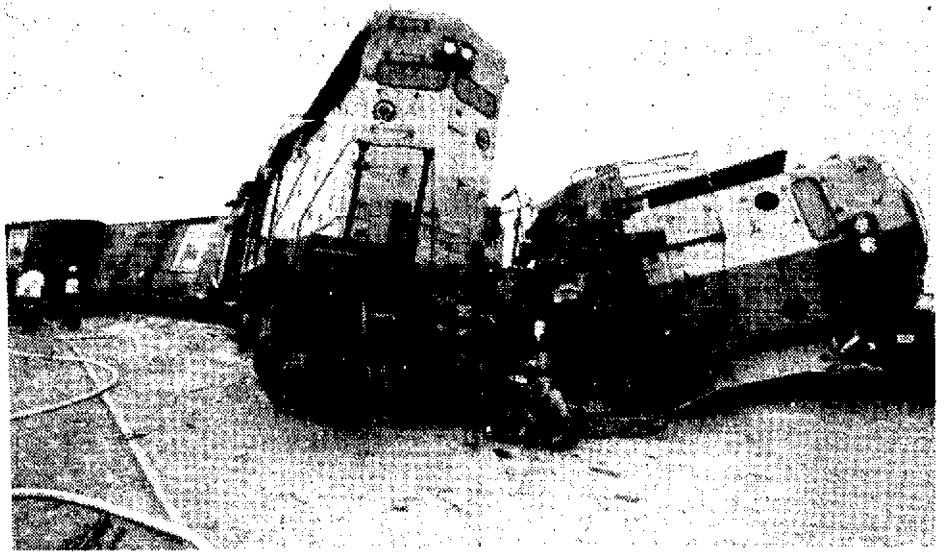
She said she went to work and called home at noon to check on the child.

Mrs. Thomas said her daughter told her she was feeling better and was playing with her 8-month-old kitten.

When Mrs. Thomas returned home at 5:15 p.m. she was unable to find her daughter, then noticed the shelves were out of the kitchen refrigerator.

She opened the refrigerator and found Patricia and the kitten inside, police said. They had died of asphyxiation.

The Orange County coroner's office fixed the time of death at approximately 12:30 p.m.



Deadly cargo derailed

A Union Pacific train laden with deadly chemicals from Stauffer Chemical Co. in Henderson, Nev., crashed Friday after it hit an open swich on a spur line near Las Vegas' McCarran Airport. The train was carrying caustic soda, ammonium and potassium chlorate, chlorine and lime. Authorities for a time feared the chemicals might explode. Both student engineer Bryan Fisher, who was at the controls, and engineer Willard Black were slightly injured.

20-to-1 'peg' hoped for

New peso dip disrupts border

TIJUANA (AP) — A drop in the value of the Mexican peso this week disrupted commerce all along the Mexican side of the border with the United States.

Mexican bankers and businessmen here expressed hope Friday that the government would soon peg the peso at 20 per dollar.

The government floated the peso last Aug. 31, and it plunged from the pegged rate of 12.5 per dollar to a low of 26.50 late last year. It has recovered some ground since.

In Tijuana, which has suffered badly along with other border cities since the devaluation, the peso dropped from 19.90 to 24.50 per dollar Thursday, but slowly came back to 21 at the close of operations Friday.

Many banks stopped selling foreign currency at midday to cover themselves against possible fluctuations because of Baja California's two-hour time difference from the rest of Mexico.

In Mexico City, the rate was 20 pesos per dollar.

Francisco Gomez, branch manager of the Banco Nacional de Mexico, said: "I believe the sudden drop is temporary. It was caused probably by heavy purchases by big companies in Mexico City to pay debts or for imports." He and other Tijuana bankers said they expect the peso to firm at around 20 or 21 to the dollar.

Border business owners have had some protection since the peso was floated through their usual practice of quoting prices in U.S. currency. Even shoeshines, haircuts, hotel rooms and newspapers are priced in American money or its equivalent, according to the day's exchange rate.

Pesos are still used to pay for government services and bus fares.

Hardest hit are wageearners paid in pesos.

Jorge Batiz Vidrio, vice president of an electronics plant that assembles goods for U.S. companies, said, "These constant changes in the exchange rate are not good for business."

"Take a look at the long faces of my people in the assembly plant," he said. "They are paid in pesos. I get paid in pesos, too. But we all have to pay for our vegetables, meat and bread and tortillas in dollars or dollar equivalents."

His firm is one of the in-bond border plants that receive parts from the United States, assemble them and ship the items back across the border duty-free.

Benjamin Diaz, local branch manager of the Banco Minero Mercantil, said that for the last two months border firms had set their own rate at 20 pesos per dollar.

"The sudden drop in the peso jars everyone," he said, "but we are sort of used to it by now. What else can we do?"

Accused spy due in L.A.

A Palos Verdes Estates cabinet maker accused of selling U.S. defense secrets to Soviet agents was expected to be returned today to Los Angeles from Texas to stand trial on espionage charges.

Andrew Daulton Lee, 25, of 2716 Paseo Del Mar, appeared Friday before U.S. Magistrate Tom Goodwin in Laredo, Tex., where he was ordered returned to California.

Lee, accused of selling top secret documents from a California defense contractor to Soviet agents in Mexico, was arrested Jan. 6 in Mexico City. He was turned over to FBI agents in Laredo on Monday.

At the request of U.S. Atty. Rene Gonzalez, all unauthorized persons, including reporters, were excluded from the courtroom Friday because of what was termed the highly sensitive nature of evidence in the case, including three rolls of microfilm in Lee's possession at the time of his arrest.

Lee's codefendant, Chistopher John Boyce, 23, a former employe of TRW Inc. in Redondo Beach, was arrested Sunday at his Riverside home.

The FBI said Boyce furnished Lee with documents from TRW, where he had a top security clearance, and Lee passed the documents to a Russian science attache at the Soviet embassy in Mexico City between July 1974 and December 1976.

In all, Lee was paid $2,000 for passing the secrets, FBI agents said.

CARTER AMNESTY PLAN

"We deeply regret and strongly protest the President's action," said William J. Rogers, the national commander of the 2.8-million-member American Legion, which has favored a case-by-case review for all evaders and deserters. He said Carter's decision would be "more divisive than healing."

"It's a sad day in the history of our nation," said Cooper Holt, the executive director of the Washington, D.C., office of Veterans of Foreign Wars, which has 1.8 million members. The President, he said, had "shown a lack of concern for the 30 million living veterans who have served our nation in time of war."

The pardon "extends overdue relief to a small segment of the war-resisters of the Vietnam era," the American Civil Liberties Union said in a statement. "But military offenders and veterans with less-than-honorable discharges are more numerous than draft violators by a factor of 100 to 1. They are also, by and large, more likely to be poor, from minority groups and less educated."

Aryeh Neier, executive director of the ACLU, said he was "delighted on behalf of the draft resisters" but declared that only about 4,000 draft-evasion cases remained open. He said that "99 per cent of the people who could have benefited from a full amnesty still needed to be dealt with."

This group, he said, included 6,000 or more deserters and nearly 500,000 servicemen who were given less-than-honorable discharges.

The American Friends Service Committee, a principal supporter of the draft resistance movement in the Vietnam War, welcomed the pardon but noted that, in addition to excluding deserters and veterans with qualified discharges, it covered only the period from August, 1964, to March, 1973. It said the pardon should have been extended to cover offenses from 1961 to the draft's end in 1975.

The Midwest Amnesty Program for the Clergy and Laity Concerned, in a telegram to Carter, said: "We call upon you to live up to your inaugural promise of a 'new spirit in America, which is both just and compassionate.' Today's pardon is a contradiction to that promise." The group called for a "universal pardon."

In New York, the Safe Return Amnesty Committee said in a statement that it was "totally unacceptable" that Carter was directing the Pentagon to review the cases of deserters and veterans with qualified discharges. "It's like asking the prosecutor to be the jury," said Tod Ensign, an attorney for the group.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Robert J. Dole, the Kansas Republican who was former President Gerald R. Ford's running mate last year, said, "It's distressing to see conscious disobedience condoned on a blanket basis."

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., praised Carter for taking "a major, impressive and compassionate step toward healing the wounds of Vietnam."

Amnesty advocates in California thought it was too little. Conservative veterans' organizations called it "a slap in the face." And some seasoned politicos thought the limited pardon was just disagreeable.

"It goes beyond the Ford administration, but only slightly," said Tom Hayden, a longtime antiwar advocate who campaigned unsuccessfully last November for a Senate seat. "He has taken the blanket route, but the blanket is small."

California freshman Sen. S.I. Hayakawa said the pardoning "got the President off on the wrong foot." Hayakawa, a Republican, was in Los Angeles for a "gala inaugural" party honoring the senator at the Century Plaza Hotel.

"I WAS very much opposed to a blanket-type pardon," the 70-year-old senator said.

SUNNY SKIES IN STORE

Weather forecasters are looking for sunny skies and just a wisp of clouds today and Sunday in the Southland.

The chance of rain, forecasters say, is less than 10 per cent through Sunday morning.

Light rain fell early Friday across a wide section of Southern California.

Today's maximum temperatures will range from the high 60s in Long Beach and Santa Barbara, and the low 70s in the Imperial Valley, to 58 in the mountains.

The thermometer is expected to drop into the mid-50s tonight in the Long Beach area.

The governor also appealed to business to immediately stop the use of outdoor lighting for advertising.

Florida agricultural officials said the sudden freeze has caused millions of dollars in damage and undoubtedly will result in higher fruit and vegetable prices for consumers especially in the eastern half of the nation.

Florida provides most of the nation's tomatoes and virtually all of its limes. The lime crop was destroyed, farmers said.

"Quality of vegetables will be poor and the prices will be high," said a Miami food broker. "I just checked the price of fresh green beans. A few days ago, they were $8 a bushel, but today they were $15. The price began jumping right at the farm."

Seald-Sweet, a cooperative of 4,500 citrus growers, has raised its prices in two days by 50 cents a carton.

A 58-mile-long ice jam on the Mississippi near Cairo, Ill., remained intact and more ice floes were wedging up against it, the Coast Guard said Friday. The jam and heavy ice conditions between Cairo and St. Louis forced the Coast Guard to order the 160-mile stretch of the river between the two cities closed to navigation.

The Coast Guard was also worried that if the ice jam breaks up suddenly, barges and towboats downstream could be severely damaged or sunk and flooding could occur.

"If it let go suddenly, it would take everything with it," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

On the Ohio River, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers said the slightly warmer temperatures may thaw ice enough to free 50 to 100 towboats and their barges stalled since the Ohio froze this week for the first time since 1948.

"But there's still ice from bank to bank over many places on the river,-"said Martin Pedigo, the Corps spokesman. "There's no question there will be a tremendous economic impact because of the condition of the river.

"A lot of things aren't being delivered. Some of the fuels which are causing some problems at power plants have caused layoffs," Pedigo said. "It probably will be some time before anybody will be able to say exactly how much this thing is going to cost. We're talking about an awful lot of things."

Deadly cargo derailed

A Union Pacific train laden with deadly chemicals from Stauffer Chemical Co. in Henderson, Nev., crashed Friday after it hit an open swich on a spur line near Las Vegas' McCarran Airport. The train was carrying caustic soda, ammonium and potassium chlorate, chlorine and lime. Authorities for a time feared the chemicals might explode. Both student engineer Bryan Fisher, who was at the controls, and engineer Willard Black were slightly injured.

20-to-1 'peg' hoped for

New peso dip disrupts border

TIJUANA (AP) — A drop in the value of the Mexican peso this week disrupted commerce all along the Mexican side of the border with the United States.

Mexican bankers and businessmen here expressed hope Friday that the government would soon peg the peso at 20 per dollar.

The government floated the peso last Aug. 31, and it plunged from the pegged rate of 12.5 per dollar to a low of 26.50 late last year. It has recovered some ground since.

In Tijuana, which has suffered badly along with other border cities since the devaluation, the peso dropped from 19.90 to 24.50 per dollar Thursday, but slowly came back to 21 at the close of operations Friday.

Funds run out on border 'alien decoy' police unit

By EVERETT HOLLES
New York Times Service

SAN DIEGO — Withdrawal of a squad of Spanish-speaking police "decoys" from a desolate stretch of the Mexican border has stirred fears of a violent renewal of nighttime murder, robbery and rape by gangs of bandits terrorizing illegal aliens.

An hour after the task force was disbanded Jan. 13, Luis Perez, a 27-year-old jobless laborer from Tijuana, was ambushed and stabbed while trying to sneak into the United States, the first serious casualty reported in the area since the patrol was set up last Oct. 10.

POLICE Chief William B. Kolender said the 10-man operation, first of its kind along the 2,000-mile border, had been "tremendously successful" but had to be suspended because of a shortage of policemen and funds and "the need to give priority to protecting our own citizens."

The city had sought unsuccessfully to obtain a $271,000 emergency grant from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to deal with the gang violence along a rugged, seven-mile strip of the border separating San Diego's southern outskirts from Mexico.

KOLENDER said he expects to reactivate the task force in July when 60 new officers are added to his department. In the meantime, he said, the 10 officers will be assigned to border duty once every two weeks "to maintain their efficiency."

The task force, made up of police volunteers of Mexican heritage, many of them Mexican-born, naturalized U.S. citizens with a deep compassion for the destitute victims of the youthful gangs, resented the suspension of the squad. Most of the 10 officers offered to continue the patrols on their nights off at regular pay.

The force was organized, over the objections of some citizens and city officials, to catch gangs from Mexico and the United States that prey on some of the 2,000 illegal aliens who swarm across the border into California every night. The officers speak the argot of Mexico's border slums and masquerade as illegal aliens.

Chicano organizations and civic leaders have protested that, without the police "senuelos" (decoys), the violence will inevitably increase because of Mexico's growing economic distress, soaring inflation and spreading lawlessness, particularly in border towns, where the unemployment rate is near 50 per cent and increasing.

Kolender said that, in the nine months before the task force went into action, reported attacks on illegal aliens in a seven-mile-long "no man's land" around Otay Mesa, two miles east of San Ysidro, included 124 robberies, three murders, numerous knifings and six rapes. In 1975, 130 attacks were reported, including four killings.

During the task force's four months of operation, 180 arrests were made, including many of juveniles, but there were no killings or serious casualties and no reported rapes.

Previously, many women among the illegal aliens were sexually molested — while their husbands and families were held at knifepoint — after jewelry had been torn from their fingers and ears by the maurauders operating in groups of four to 10.

Many of the gangs, particularly those from the United States, include youths 14 or 15 years of age. The bandits from the Mexican side of the border are usually older and more vicious.

Girl, 7, kitten found dead in refrigerator

The mother of a 7-year-old Westminster girl found her daughter and the child's pet kitten dead in the family refrigerator Friday when she returned from work, Westminster police said.

Mary Thomas, 13751 Edwards St., Westminster, told police her daughter, Patricia, stayed home from school because she had the flu.

She said she went to work and called home at noon to check on the child.

Mrs. Thomas said her daughter told her she was feeling better and was playing with her 8-month-old kitten.

When Mrs. Thomas returned home at 5:15 p.m. she was unable to find her daughter, then noticed the shelves were out of the kitchen refrigerator.

She opened the refrigerator and found Patricia and the kitten inside, police said. They had died of asphyxiation.

The Orange County coroner's office fixed the time of death at approximately 12:30 p.m.

City manager denies it

Dever pressuring for City Hall completion?

Long Beach City Manager John Dever appears to be applying unaccustomed pressure to subordinates in an effort to speed up the city's long-delayed move into the new City Hall.

The contractor — Montgomery Ross Fisher Inc. — is correcting deficiencies in the otherwise completed structure, and Dever has told officials assigned to oversee the work that he expects the contractor to have the building ready at the soonest possible moment.

Dever said he gave no deadline to the three departments involved — the Engineering, Building and Safety and Fire departments. But he said, "I expect people to do a job and give me answers."

He denied, however, that he was putting pressure on the departments and their respective chiefs.

One informed City Hall source said Dever made it clear to the officials — including City Engineer Tom Marchese and Building and Safety Director Ray Brosterhous — that he would not be satisfied with vague and indecisive answers about what was holding up completion of the building.

The contractor is already 13 months behind schedule, and city officials — almost with embarrassment — have gone before the City Council several times in recent months to say the building was still not ready for occupancy.

At the beginning of the year, the city invoked the "liquidated damages" clause in its contract with the builder and started assessing Montgomery Ross Fisher $5,000 a day in penalties.

According to two city officials, the penalty appears to be having its desired effect, since work on the structure is speeding up.

In fact, a tentative timetable has been drawn up for a phased move-in, with Feb. 4 listed as the starting date. But Asst. City Manager Robert Creighton took pains to point out that the schedule is only a tentative one.

"If all goes well, we're talking of early February," he said. To which Dever added: "Make it the second week of February."

Last month, to avoid financial complications, the Building and Safety Department issued a "safety certificate for temporary occupancy" of the structure — the effect of which was to give the city formal possession of the building.

According to Marchese, however, there are "seven or eight items" that still have to be cleared up, including the building's fire equipment and certain mechanical systems.

In the meantime, every day that the building fails to meet the city's requirements the contractor must continue to pay the $5,000 penalty, officials indicated.

Compton land deal reviewed

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

Reappraisals are under way on a downtown Compton commercial property in response to a demand from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which claims the $700,000 purchase price paid by the city's Community Redevelopment Agency may have been excessive.

City Manager Allen J. Parker said Friday the re-evaluations demanded by HUD on the property at 240 E. Compton Blvd. will be completed in about three weeks.

AFTER THE purchase of the property in 1975, two former city councilmen, Hillard Hamm and Russell Woolfolk, were convicted of extorting $40,000 — for their favorable votes on the transaction — from the firm formerly owning the property, Compton Penney Venture.

HUD originally approved the assessment procedures and its funds were used by the city agency to buy the property that included a former J.C. Penney Co. store, a warehouse and adjacent parking lot.

However, HUD officials recently questioned the validity of the price set by a redevelopment agency review appraiser.

The federal authorities ordered the city to secure two new valuations, with one appraiser to value the property and another to review all of the original findings.

THESE NEW studies are now under way, said the city manager.

He said appraisers selected from a list supplied to the redevelopment agency by HUD were being employed.

If the re-examination shows the city agency paid too much for the property, it can be required to refund the difference to HUD.

The repayment would come from a surplus of $645,000 in federal funds that have been earmarked for Compton downtown redevelopment.

Recreation installation banquet set

The fifth annual installation banquet for the Long Beach Recreation District Two Area Advisory Councils will be held Friday at the Golden Sails Inn, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner will follow at 7:30.

The event — to which the public is invited — recognizes the services of volunteers at Long Beach parks and playgrounds.

Guest speaker Reginald Montgomery, a 28-year-old actor who became the first black man to perform as a Ringling Brothers' clown, will discuss the future of minorities in the theater.

Cerritos meet on Indian studies set

A public hearing on the inclusion of Indian studies in the fifth-grade history classes and junior and senior high schools of the ABC Unified School District, has been scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the district's boardroom, 16700 Norwalk Blvd., Cerritos.

John Vieira, assistant director for multicultural education, said the district is seeking a $129,000 federal grant for the inclusion of American Indian education in the fifth-grade U.S. History classes.

He said a district-wide Indian Education Parent Committee has been formed to help coordinate community assistance in establishing the Indian studies program.

Physical fitness need for firemen, police stressed

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Drive around your neighborhood for 30 minutes or so, then leap out of the car, run a couple of blocks, jump a few fences and struggle with somebody.

Or if that exercise doesn't appeal to you, try being ripped out of a sound sleep to a jangling alarm, tearing on your clothes, running to a truck and carrying heavy equipment when you arrive at your destination.

BOTH EXERCISES must be repeated several times a day, at least four days a week. They are usually best performed by someone in a police officer's or fire fighter's uniform.

Public safety agencies, including Long Beach and Los Angeles County police and fire departments, are becoming increasingly concerned about the physical fitness of their employes.

Police and fire fighters must be in good shape to do their job. Recent medical research has shown they must be physically fit simply to survive the sudden stress of their occupations in reasonably good health.

It is stress, combined with poor physical fitness, that is costing local departments hundreds of thousands of taxpayers' dollars annually in medical benefits or disability retirements, according to public safety officials.

CONCERN OVER physical fitness was considerably heightened this month in two studies publicized by a law-enforcement magazine and a research paper. The surprising results were:

—The University of California at San Diego tested 260 police officers and fire fighters and found that an incredible 85 per cent of them were not in good physical condition, as measured by weight and medical standards such as heart-beat rate and blood pressure.

—Of 100 officers tested by the Louisville, Ky., Police Department, less than 25 passed all four phases, which included weight, body fat content and stress testing.

The Los Angeles County Fire Department, one of the first to start a comprehensive physical fitness effort, released figures that showed it paid $617,484 last year to cover the cost of injuries.

THE LONG BEACH Fire Department, about one-fourth the size, had 142 injuries in 1976 that were serious enough to require a doctor's attention, according to the city Personnel Department. No cost figures were available.

> "The University of California at San Diego tested 260 police officers and fire fighters and found that an incredible 85 per cent of them were not in good physical condition . . ."

Of 676 police officers, Long Beach reported 252 injuries.

Back injuries and heart problems are the most common targets of physical fitness programs, which usually include regular exercises and running.

Dallas police placed a special group of officers on such a program and found, at the end of six months, the group tested higher in six of seven areas when compared to the rest of the force.

"THE PHYSICAL fitness of police officers may lead to significant . . . savings in sick time, injury and heart illness," wrote Dallas Chief Donald Byrd.

Long Beach's Assistant Police Chief Carl Calkins reported that he has just asked city Health Officer Dr. Elton Blum to estimate the additional costs of conducting annual "miniphysical exams" for all officers.

The physical checkups, Calkins explained, are necessary before any program of exercise can be set up.

The checkups are "virtually impossible at this time," Blum said because his small staff couldn't handle annual physicals for 676 officers.

HOWEVER, according to personnel Capt. Charles Clark, LBPD soon will assemble 100 volunteers for a prototype physical fitness program. The volunteers will receive a physical exam, he added.

There are other stumbling blocks. Police Officer Association president Sgt. Michael Tracy wants assurances the physical results will not be used to force police personnel to retire.

However, the POA would support a fitness program, Tracy said.

For the time being, Calkins said, he favors a program of voluntary fitness.

He noted Santa Monica police have a semiannual checkup, with special incentive pay to those who pass.

Los Angeles police have an annual physical, with no rewards or formal sanctions, he noted.

CALKINS SAID he was against any kind of penalty for overweight or out-of-shape officers. "There will be peer pressure," he said, and added that "you can sell the guy if you explain that his chances for a happy retirement are greatly increased."

"Cops are pretty macho guys," said Clark. "The number of people who are out of shape is very small."

Tracy said he would like the exercise program and physical exams to apply equally to police executives as well as patrol officers.

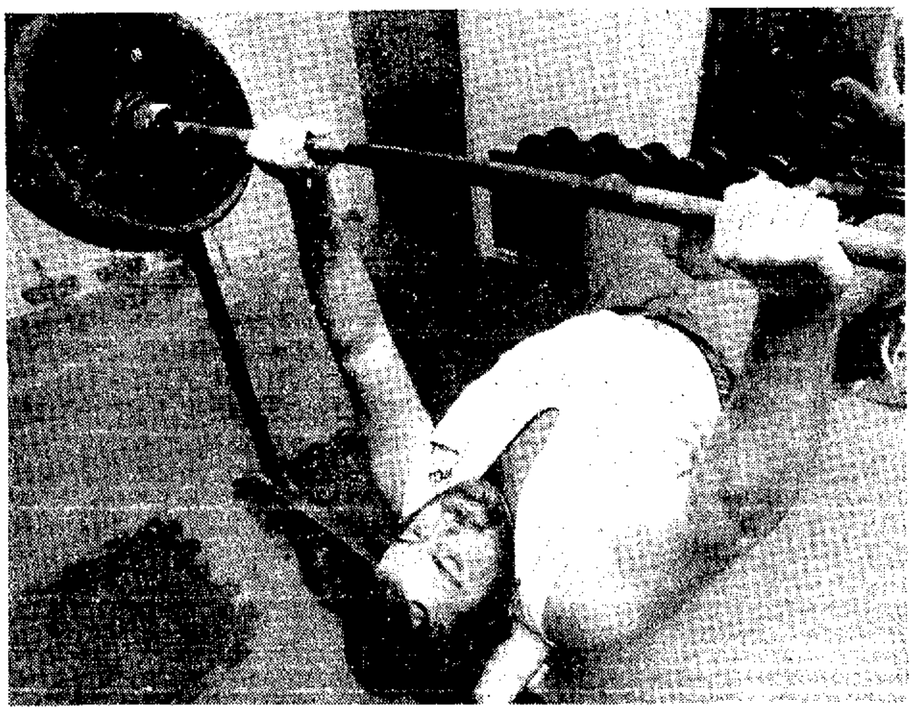
"The key people to keep in shape are the young guys in patrol," said Calkins.

Any exercises for executives would be of the type designed to prevent heart attacks.

HOWEVER, HE did note that the executives would be enrolled in some type of fitness activity. There would be no forced retirements, he added, because of the physicals.

The sophisticated county fire program is run by exercise leaders in each station, who are given special instruction in physical activity and human physiology, according to a booklet describing the effort.

Participants are cleared medically and all station personnel, including the captain, must be an active part of the 20-minute daily program.



LONG BEACH POLICE Patrolman Richard Rose works out in the police department's weight room. Rose, who weighs 250 pounds, can press 420 pounds. His beard, most uncharacteristic of officers, he explained, is the result of his working on the plainclothes vice detail.

Orange County may have to pay APCD debt

The state attorney general, raising the prospect of layoffs of antismog workers, asked Friday that the State Court of Appeals in Los Angeles force Orange County to pay its share of support to the new South Coast Air Quality Management District.

"Orange County has a duty to pay $344,494 to the Air Pollution Control District for the third quarter of this fiscal year," said Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger. "But as a protest, the county paid only one third of the amount due."

Younger said Orange County's decision left the district short of funds and raised the possibility of heavy layoffs of district workers in February and March.

Los Angeles County supervisors also have balked at paying the required funds for the new regional district, which begins operations Feb. 1.

L.B. lawyers install first woman chief

LOUISE M. DUVALL

Louise M. DuVall was installed Friday night as the new president of the Long Beach Bar Association, the first woman to be elected to the post.

She took over from Sterling S. Clayton during the annual installation dinner at the Golden Sails Inn in Long Beach.

Clyde L. Bronn was installed as president elect, William A. Williams is the new vice president and Robert R. Waestman is the secretary-treasurer.

ALSO INSTALLED Friday were the 10 new members of the association's Board of Governors.

They are Richard J. Cantrell, James W. Edson, Charles E. Greenberg, Thomas D. Griffin, John W. Nelson, Toby J. Rothschild, Carlton E. Russell, Eleanor M. Weems, William H. Shibley and Glen L. Rabenn.

Shibley and Rabenn earned membership on the board because they are president and vice president of the Long Beach Barristers.

The eight members of the board who still have a year of their two-year terms to serve are William D. Began, Gene E. Goldman, Stanley M. Henry, City Prosecutor Robert W. Parkin, Thomas A. Ramsey, Leslie E. Still, Reed M. Williams and Fred Woods.

Brown frets as UC OKs Irvine plans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A long-range rebuilding plan for the University of California at Irvine Medical Center was approved by UC regents Friday while Gov. Brown fretted that another Irvine project was fueling the "medical arms race."

Brown was referring to a cancer research center, also approved by the regents, to be built with $9.6 million in federal and private funds.

THOUGH no state money is involved, the Democratic governor said such projects sometimes require state funds in the future. And he noted that UCLA already has a cancer research center.

"All efforts to reduce pain are good, but with the number of duplicated efforts . . . does it make sense compared to other things?" Brown asked.

"Not all the brains to deal with cancer are at UCLA," replied UC Irvine Chancellor Daniel Aldrich.

UC PRESIDENT David Saxon added that the federal cancer research program screens its grants in an attempt to avoid duplication.

The long-range plan is designed to renovate and streamline the 491-bed Orange County Medical Center, bought by UC last year.

Architect William Pereira told the regents that some of the buildings on the 31-acre site are more than 60 years old and have structural defects, and that most are scattered, overcrowded and obsolete.

The first step in the project, a six-story addition to the current acute-care hospital, had its design approved by the regents after a gibe by Chairman William Coblentz, a San Francisco lawyer.

"It looks cold and sterile, like it was built in the 1930s, which perhaps is appropriate for Orange County," he said.

Greater water-saving plan to begin this week

The Long Beach Water Department is stepping-up its water conservation program in response to an appeal by Gov. Brown to "share" California's available water with the drought-stricken north.

Water Commission president Carl E. "Gene" Gallman said that, ironically, the "dry" south has greater water resources than the "wet" north because of the Metropolitan Water District's access to water from the Colorado River and the State Water Project.

Clyde N. Moore, general manager of the Water Department, has been directed by the Water Commission to speed preparation of comprehensive conservation program, Gallman said.

It will be aimed at getting water customers to reduce their consumption by eliminating leaking faucets and toilets — each of which can account for about 50 gallons a day — and by cutting back on other uses.

FOR EXAMPLE, Gallman said, the average washing machine uses about 30 to 35 gallons on each cycle. Considerable water can be saved by washing only full loads. Deep-soaking lawns once a week uses less water than watering it lightly several times a week, and is better for the lawn, he said.

Moore said Long Beach gets 46 per cent of its water from wells, and the remaining 54 per cent from the Metropolitan Water District. Every gallon of water conserved would mean that much less to purchase from MWD — and that much more available for northern California.

Gallman said that if the various member agencies of MWD can reduce their consumption by only 10 per cent, it would amount to a savings of about 100,000 acre-feet annually — or more than three billion gallons.

Gallman said the Water Department staff has been directed to bring in a recommended program as soon as possible to involve local water users in the conservation program.

City manager denies it

Dever pressuring for City Hall completion?

Long Beach City Manager John Dever appears to be applying unaccustomed pressure to subordinates in an effort to speed up the city's long-delayed move into the new City Hall.

The contractor — Montgomery Ross Fisher Inc. — is correcting deficiencies in the otherwise completed structure, and Dever has told officials assigned to oversee the work that he expects the contractor to have the building ready at the soonest possible moment.

Dever said he gave no deadline to the three departments involved — the Engineering, Building and Safety and Fire departments. But he said, "I expect people to do a job and give me answers."

He denied, however, that he was putting pressure on the departments and their respective chiefs.

One informed City Hall source said Dever made it clear to the officials — including City Engineer Tom Marchese and Building and Safety Director Ray Brosterhous — that he would not be satisfied with vague and indecisive answers about what was holding up completion of the building.

The contractor is already 13 months behind schedule, and city officials — almost with embarrassment — have gone before the City Council several times in recent months to say the building was still not ready for occupancy.

At the beginning of the year, the city invoked the "liquidated damages" clause in its contract with the builder and started assessing Montgomery Ross Fisher $5,000 a day in penalties.

According to two city officials, the penalty appears to be having its desired effect, since work on the structure is speeding up.

In fact, a tentative timetable has been drawn up for a phased move-in, with Feb. 4 listed as the starting date. But Asst. City Manager Robert Creighton took pains to point out that the schedule is only a tentative one.

"If all goes well, we're talking of early February," he said. To which Dever added: "Make it the second week of February."

Last month, to avoid financial complications, the Building and Safety Department issued a "safety certificate for temporary occupancy" of the structure — the effect of which was to give the city formal possession of the building.

According to Marchese, however, there are "seven or eight items" that still have to be cleared up, including the building's fire equipment and certain mechanical systems.

In the meantime, every day that the building fails to meet the city's requirements the contractor must continue to pay the $5,000 penalty, officials indicated.

Compton land deal reviewed

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

Reappraisals are under way on a downtown Compton commercial property in response to a demand from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which claims the $700,000 purchase price paid by the city's Community Redevelopment Agency may have been excessive.

City Manager Allen J. Parker said Friday the re-evaluations demanded by HUD on the property at 240 E. Compton Blvd. will be completed in about three weeks.

AFTER THE purchase of the property in 1975, two former city councilmen, Hillard Hamm and Russell Woolfolk, were convicted of extorting $40,000 — for their favorable votes on the transaction — from the firm formerly owning the property, Compton Penney Venture.

HUD originally approved the assessment procedures and its funds were used by the city agency to buy the property that included a former J.C. Penney Co. store, a warehouse and adjacent parking lot.

However, HUD officials recently questioned the validity of the price set by a redevelopment agency review appraiser.

The federal authorities ordered the city to secure two new valuations, with one appraiser to value the property and another to review all of the original findings.

THESE NEW studies are now under way, said the city manager.

He said appraisers selected from a list supplied to the redevelopment agency by HUD were being employed.

If the re-examination shows the city agency paid too much for the property, it can be required to refund the difference to HUD.

The repayment would come from a surplus of $645,000 in federal funds that have been earmarked for Compton downtown redevelopment.

Recreation installation banquet set

The fifth annual installation banquet for the Long Beach Recreation District Two Area Advisory Councils will be held Friday at the Golden Sails Inn, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner will follow at 7:30.

The event — to which the public is invited — recognizes the services of volunteers at Long Beach parks and playgrounds.

Guest speaker Reginald Montgomery, a 28-year-old actor who became the first black man to perform as a Ringling Brothers' clown, will discuss the future of minorities in the theater.

Cerritos meet on Indian studies set

A public hearing on the inclusion of Indian studies in the fifth-grade history classes and junior and senior high schools of the ABC Unified School District, has been scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the district's boardroom, 16700 Norwalk Blvd., Cerritos.

John Vieira, assistant director for multicultural education, said the district is seeking a $129,000 federal grant for the inclusion of American Indian education in the fifth-grade U.S. History classes.

He said a district-wide Indian Education Parent Committee has been formed to help coordinate community assistance in establishing the Indian studies program.

Physical fitness need for firemen, police stressed

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Drive around your neighborhood for 30 minutes or so, then leap out of the car, run a couple of blocks, jump a few fences and struggle with somebody.

Or if that exercise doesn't appeal to you, try being ripped out of a sound sleep to a jangling alarm, tearing on your clothes, running to a truck and carrying heavy equipment when you arrive at your destination.

BOTH EXERCISES must be repeated several times a day, at least four days a week. They are usually best performed by someone in a police officer's or fire fighter's uniform.

Public safety agencies, including Long Beach and Los Angeles County police and fire departments, are becoming increasingly concerned about the physical fitness of their employes.

Police and fire fighters must be in good shape to do their job. Recent medical research has shown they must be physically fit simply to survive the sudden stress of their occupations in reasonably good health.

It is stress, combined with poor physical fitness, that is costing local departments hundreds of thousands of taxpayers' dollars annually in medical benefits or disability retirements, according to public safety officials.

CONCERN OVER physical fitness was considerably heightened this month in two studies publicized by a law-enforcement magazine and a research paper. The surprising results were:

—The University of California at San Diego tested 260 police officers and fire fighters and found that an incredible 85 per cent of them were not in good physical condition, as measured by weight and medical standards such as heart-beat rate and blood pressure.

—Of 100 officers tested by the Louisville, Ky., Police Department, less than 25 passed all four phases, which included weight, body fat content and stress testing.

The Los Angeles County Fire Department, one of the first to start a comprehensive physical fitness effort, released figures that showed it paid $617,484 last year to cover the cost of injuries.

THE LONG BEACH Fire Department, about one-fourth the size, had 142 injuries in 1976 that were serious enough to require a doctor's attention, according to the city Personnel Department. No cost figures were available.

DON COOPER STEAMING THROUGH MOUNTAINS OF NORTHWEST

Film explores Northwest waterways

Don Cooper, a noted humorist and conservationist, will present his award-winning documentary film, "The American Northwest," at 1 p.m. today at the Ebell Theater Audtorium, 1100 E. Third St., in Long Beach.

The presentation, sponsored by Long Beach City College, is "like taking a history lesson from Bob Hope and a camping trip with Andy Griffith," college officials said.

"The American Northwest" was filmed by Cooper while he spent three years exploring the Great Waterways of Washington, Oregon and Idaho on a shaky, self-made steamboat.

Hollingworth services set

A rosary will be recited at 4 p.m. Sunday and a funeral mass sung at 11 a.m. Monday for veteran Independent, Press-Telegram sports columnist Henry H. "Hank" Hollingworth, 52, who died Thursday of a heart attack.

Both services will be in St. Cyprian's Catholic Church, 4714 Clark Ave., Long Beach.

Longtime personal friends, the Rev. Msgr. Ernest J. Gualderon of St. Anthony's and the Rev. William Hollinger of St. Cyprian's, will officiate.

Burial will be in All Souls Cemetery.

Friends may call at Luyben Family Mortuary, 5161 Arbor Road, Long Beach, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday.

Hollingworth had worked for the I,P-T for past 26 years.

Surviving are his widow, Barbara, and two daughters, Lisa and Chris.

Sign up today as Explorer

Long Beach youths between the ages of 15½ and 21 are being recruited for the police department's Law Enforcement Explorer scouting program, according to post adviser officer Robert Schroeder.

Male and female applicants must be Long Beach residents, be in good physical health, carry at least a C average in school and be of good moral character with no serious arrest record, he said.

Applications will be taken today at the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway at 10 a.m.

Law Enforcement Explorer Scouts work with officers in the station and in the field. They learn patrol procedures, criminal law, investigation and other police operations, Schroeder said.

The experience helps a person to enter a law enforcement career, he added.

He is presently serving as director of the Long Beach Inner City Cultural Center.

Recreation Advisory Councils, first formed in 1970, are composed of community volunteers who reside in neighborhoods adjacent to Long Beach parks.

The six District Two councils to be installed Friday represent the following parks:

Admiral Kidd Park, MacArthur, King, Veterans. California Center and Drake.

Mrs. Mary Butler, president of the Recreation Commission, will install the following officers:

— Admiral Kidd: Joyce Gregory, Marion Smith, Julia Joiner and Janice Anderson.

— MacArthur: Sally Thompson, Viola Bell, Lois Irving and Edna Brown.

— King: Willie May Tyson, Bernice Keyhea, Brenda Martin and Joe Lyonn.

— Veterans: Nola Dillon, Judy McCormick, Virginia Dvonch and Bruce McCormick.

— California Center: Mary Warren, Carol Norford, Dora Windom and Greg Williams.

— Drake: Donna Perkins, Mary Cortez, Caroline Solarzano and Sandy Chilcote.

Awards for outstanding community service within District Two will be made to the Assisance League of Long Beach: Dale Clinton, Stewart Marsh, Mary Warren, Roosevelt Hollins, Robert Mackie, Willie Mack Tyson, Peggy Andrews, Solomon Bernstein, Ronald Merrill, Joseph Davis Jr., Joe Stinson, Amy Paige, Marilyn Friedeck and Roy Gipson.

O.C. may have to pay APCD debt

"No matter what their motives may be," Younger said, "Los Angeles and Orange counties' actions translate into a $1.17 million shortfall for the district, and will soon cause disruption in the district's performance and a loss of jobs."

The state's petition seeks to make Orange County a respondent in a suit filed by the attorney general and the state Air Resources Board against Los Angeles County last Dec. 30.

Indian cultural gala

An American Indian cultural festival is scheduled Jan. 27-30 in the Artisan Way area of the Old Towne shopping mall, 19800 Hawthorne Blvd., Torrance.

Demonstrations of authentic Indian crafts will be presented each day by the Southwest Indian Tribal Dance Group.

At least 15 tribes will be represented during the festival.

Handicraft items that will be displayed for sale include blankets, beads, baskets, jewelry, rugs and clothing.

$2,965 in cash, valuables taken

Burglars broke a kitchen window to enter the residence of Joseph C. Nunnaly, 4436 Lakewwood Blvd., taking money, silverware and jewelry valued at $2,965, Long Beach police reported Friday.

Sign up today as Explorer

Long Beach youths between the ages of 15½ and 21 are being recruited for the police department's Law Enforcement Explorer scouting program, according to post adviser officer Robert Schroeder.

Male and female applicants must be Long Beach residents, be in good physical health, carry at least a C average in school and be of good moral character with no serious arrest record, he said.

Applications will be taken today at the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway at 10 a.m.

Law Enforcement Explorer Scouts work with officers in the station and in the field. They learn patrol procedures, criminal law, investigation and other police operations, Schroeder said.

The experience helps a person to enter a law enforcement career, he added.

He is presently serving as director of the Long Beach Inner City Cultural Center.

Recreation Advisory Councils, first formed in 1970, are composed of community volunteers who reside in neighborhoods adjacent to Long Beach parks.

The six District Two councils to be installed Friday represent the following parks:

Admiral Kidd Park, MacArthur, King, Veterans, California Center and Drake.

Mrs. Mary Butler, president of the Recreation Commission, will install the following officers:

— Admiral Kidd: Joyce Gregory, Marion Smith, Julia Joiner and Janice Anderson.

— MacArthur: Sally Thompson, Viola Bell, Lois Irving and Edna Brown.

— King: Willie May Tyson, Bernice Keybea, Brenda Martin and Joe Lyonn.

— Veterans: Nola Dillon, Judy McCormick, Virginia Dvonch and Bruce McCormick.

— California Center: Mary Warren, Carol Norford, Dora Windom and Greg Williams.

— Drake: Donna Perkins, Mary Cortez, Caroline Solarzano and Sandy Chilcote.

Awards for outstanding community service within District Two will be made to the Assisance League of Long Beach: Dale Clinton, Stewart Marsh, Mary Warren, Roosevelt Hollins, Robert Mackie, Willie Mack Tyson, Peggy Andrews, Solomon Bernstein, Ronald Merrill, Joseph Davis Jr., Joe Stinson, Amy Paige, Marilyn Friedeck and Roy Gipson.

O.C. may have t pay APCD debt

"No matter what their motives may be," Younger said, "Los Angeles and Orange counties' actions translate into a $1.17 million shortfall for the district, and will soon cause disruption in the district's performance and a loss of jobs."

The state's petitio seeks to make Orang County a respondent in suit filed by the attorne general and the state Ai Resources Board agains Los Angeles County las Dec. 30.

Town in fear of sex killer

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Frightened women students gathered Friday to discuss protection from violence in the wake of several sexual assaults in the last two months that have left at least two coeds dead.

Coroner's investigators on Friday identified Jacqueline Ann Rook, 21, a student at UC Santa Barbara, as the second body found in as many days in secluded Refugio Canyon.

Sheriff's deputies found the partially clad body of Patricia Maria Laney, 21, of Huntington Beach, on Wednesday. She had been shot to death.

A THIRD girl, Mary Ann Sarris, missing since Dec. 6, was the object of a massive sheriff's search through the canyon area, just a few miles from Ronald Reagan's ranch.

"There's no doubt in my mind there's another body out there," said County Sheriff John Carpenter.

An autopsy begun Friday determined that Miss Rook died from a gunshot wound. Authorities declined to disclose any other findings from the examination, including any evidence of sexual assault.

All three women had been habitual hitchhikers. Investigators also said they were struck by the similarity of the girls' appearance. All were of large build and had shoulder-length hair.

Sheriff's spokesmen again warned students against hitchhiking.

BUT Pat Murphy, assistant director of the campus Women's Center, said the Metropolitan Transit District has refused to provide bus service at night to the campus community of Isla Vista, about 10 miles north of Santa Barbara.

She said university officials were trying again to get the bus company to begin a night route to Isla Vista.

Ms. Murphy said meetings had been held Thursday and Friday on the campus by worried coeds wondering how they might protect themselves. She said a campus rally was scheduled for Monday to help awaken the community to the situation.

"I've been talking all day to women who have been having nightmares, reorganizing their house security, and wondering what they can do to be safe," she said. "I definitely think that women are very afraid."

FEMINIST groups were circulating leaflets telling area residents what phone number to call if they witnessed an attack and what number women may call in order to get safe rides.

Ms. Murphy said the university has provided an escort service for more than a year to women who must walk on campus at night.

"We have a culture that tolerates and almost encourages violence against women, and that's what we have to change — the concept that says it is real important for man to score," she said. "In order for a man to really be a man, it is believed he must have power over women. Scoring is about an inch away from rape."

Wendy jury foreman explains 'break'

By TONY LEDWELL

OAKLAND (AP) — The foreman of Wendy Yoshimura's jury said Friday he was the first to break the logjam that ended six days of frustration with a compromise verdict of conviction, coupled with a deadlock on the charge that could have sent her to prison for life.

But the woman who held out for acquittal to the last minute expressed remorse and bitterness about the outcome.

"You can't hold off an army by yourself," complained Lucille Mitchell, a retired postal worker, who wearily changed her vote to guilty when other jurors "called me stupid."

Robert W. Loge, foreman for the eight-woman, four-man panel, declined comment on Mrs. Mitchell's anger, but said he initially voted for acquittal. He changed his mind Thursday, he said, the first shift in the numerical breakdown of the vote.

Loge said he voted innocent until the fourth secret ballot because of his concern about the legal doctrine that requires an acquittal if the juror believes there is reasonable doubt about the defendant's guilt.

"I had doubts. But they did not fit when it came to the application of reasonable doubt," Loge said.

Asked what triggered his change of mind, Loge replied, "Nothing particular. It was the just the circumstantial series of facts as applied to the letter of law concerning circumstantial evidence."

Jurors reached for comment said Miss Yoshimura's fugitive association with Patricia Hearst had no influence on their votes.

Loge said he and other jurors relied heavily on Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich's final instructions, grappling with intricate legal jargon of circumstantial evidence and reasonable doubt.

"That stuff's hard to apply," he complained. During their laborious deliberations, the jury twice asked Pulich for clarification of his instructions.

Loge declined to identify the other jurors who held out for acquittal but Mrs. Mitchell, 61, said she was the last to reverse her vote.

"I got tired. I couldn't hold out no more," she said. "I couldn't look at the girl. I'll just have to live with it now."

The exhausted jurors avoided Miss Yoshimura's intent gaze when they marched single-file into the courtroom with their verdicts following an 11-hour day of virtually non-stop deliberations.

"We tried to establish a link, a chain through circumstantial evidence and determine whether there was any way to break it," said Caroline Rickey. "There wasn't any."

The jurors refused to talk about the charge that Miss Yoshimura possessed an explosive with the intent of injuring people and destroying property. The jury deadlocked on the count, which carried a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Miss Yoshimura was accused of renting a Berkeley garage where police uncovered an arsenal of illegal weapons and explosives in 1972, long before she met Miss Hearst.

The defense denied Miss Yoshimura had any knowledge of the garage's contents.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Emphasis this year is on ready resources you can bring to bear on everyday encounters. Nothing dramatic is likely, rather a slow campaign of gradual accumulation as you make it through increasingly important routine. Relationships are satisfying, more so if you share adversity. Today's natives don't classify themselves as a specific component of society or stay put in a designated niche. Those born this year are gifted in the arts, specialize via intuition.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Communications are diverted, delayed, nothing important once you're on the qui vive for such possibilities, check back in time. No blame is attached.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Innovations falter, customs revert to previous ones. Socializing for its own sake, undistorted by business or political references, is all that's needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Slow down, try to make this an uneventful day so you can loaf a bit, meditate. Choose a few genial companions to share hobbies, light sports, good gossip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A subtle, fairly quick penalty is exacted for mixing commercial or partisan maneuvers into a dull ambiance. Give all time to recover from recent experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Foster genuine peace by assuming a sensible mood. Little is available for moneymaking interests. Search for serenity that lends authority to intuition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What gets past you now doesn't merit the pursuit or the knowing. Whatever is worthwhile takes another day before you hear or can make intelligent use of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What you don't do is more important than what you promote of worldly benefits. Either you expect too much of yourself or you do far better than situations indicate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Before you offer suggestions, listen for others' proposals. Likely they serve as well as your plans, get you off the hook of providing leadership, funds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's okay to just go alone for the ride once in a while with a clear conscience. About chores, be brief, effective, omit the descriptive complaint.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you stay put, you upset all enterprises. Keep on the move, go sightseeing, no special destination. Tonight pick up normal activity in better spirits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New ideas take time before they're complete or have related materials for application. The clan gathers from far places with good news to celebrate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accept trivia as a vacation from reality, be thankful for the break. Suggest quieter diversions, outdoors if feasible. Repair, recovery is needed by nightfall.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Emphasis this year is on ready resources you can bring to bear on everyday encounters. Nothing dramatic is likely, rather a slow campaign of gradual accumulation as you make it through increasingly important routine. Relationships are satisfying, more so if you share adversity. Today's natives don't classify themselves as a specific component of society or stay put in a designated niche. Those born this year are gifted in the arts, specialize via intuition.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Communications are diverted, delayed, nothing important once you're on the qui vive for such possibilities, check back in time. No blame is attached.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Innovations falter, customs revert to previous ones. Socializing for its own sake, undistorted by business or political references, is all that's needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Slow down, try to make this an uneventful day so you can loaf a bit, meditate. Choose a few genial companions to share hobbies, light sports, good gossip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A subtle, fairly quick penalty is exacted for mixing commercial or partisan maneuvers into a dull ambiance. Give all time to recover from recent experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Foster genuine peace by assuming a sensible mood. Little is available for moneymaking interests. Search for serenity that lends authority to intuition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What gets past you now doesn't merit the pursuit or the knowing. Whatever is worthwhile takes another day before you hear or can make intelligent use of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What you don't do is more important than what you promote of worldly benefits. Either you expect too much of yourself or you do far better than situations indicate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Before you offer suggestions, listen for others' proposals. Likely they serve as well as your plans, get you off the hook of providing leadership, funds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's okay to just go alone for the ride once in a while with a clear conscience. About chores, be brief, effective, omit the descriptive complaint.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you stay put, you upset all enterprises. Keep on the move, go sightseeing, no special destination. Tonight pick up normal activity in better spirits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New ideas take time before they're complete or have related materials for application. The clan gathers from far places with good news to celebrate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accept trivia as a vacation from reality, be thankful for the break. Suggest quieter diversions, outdoors if feasible. Repair, recovery is needed by nightfall.

'Robust economy' predicted by B of A survey

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

Californians specifically — and Americans in general — may look forward in 1977 to "a relatively robust economy," the Bank of America predicted this week in separate surveys of the state and national economies.

Released Thursday to the news media in both Los Angeles and San Francisco, the bank's "Economic Outlook—1977" indicates that "Inflation and unemployment rates will decline, consumer and business incomes increase and more new jobs will become available."

And while details of President Carter's economic package remain to be announced, there are encouraging signs that his goal of reducing the national unemployment rate to 6 per cent within 18 months can be achieved, bank economist John O. Wilson told reporters at a Southland news conference.

Dr. Wilson, vice president for economics and policy research and one of the survey authors, said that while "the general economy is stronger, we believe the business community deserves some encouragement. . . which we think President Carter will provide."

A decision to permanently continue tax credits based on Social Security payments by employers would be an excellent start in providing lasting relief, he suggested.

Fellow B of A economist Eric Thor Jr., a specialist in California fiscal affairs, told the media that "1977 will be a relatively stable year" in the Golden State.

"Decisions need to be made by the Legislature," he continued. "Tax and welfare reform questions to be met . . . and there is strong need for a comprehensive (statewide) energy use and conservation program."

He like Wilson urged Californians — and Americans in general — to look more sympathetically at the commercial community, in effect to seek a "better environment for business."

Wilson pointed out that "while the 4th quarter last year opened fairly weakly, it finished much stronger than we had hoped."

At year's end, he continued, "consumer spending, housing starts and persons income were up — fortunately!"

Highlights of the state report:

- The consumer price index (measuring price changes of housing, food, transportation, apparel, health and recreation) will rise by about 5.2 per cent — less than the 5.5 to 6 per cent rate last year.
- Unemployment, about 9.5 per cent late in 1976, probably will average 8.8 per cent through 1977, declining at year's end to about 8.3 per cent.
- Total personal income this year will increase to $172 billion, 10-12 per cent aoves the 1976 level. Adjusted for inflation, the increase will be 4-5 per cent.
- Retail sales will climb 12-13 per cent above the $82 billion volume in 1976, led by automobiles and other major consumer durable products.
- Residential construction, more active in 1976 than the year preceding, will be even more active in 1977. New housing starts — estimated at 195,000 in 1976 — are expected to increase to 210,000.
- Total international trade — imports and exports — will increase 13-15 per cent over the state's 1976 foreign trade volume of $26 billion. Increase to result from expected, continuing global economic expansion and recovery.
- Net farm income, though strong, will remain at about the $$2.5 billion 1976 level because of increasing production costs.

National highlights:

— Gross national product (GNP) will rise 4.5-5 per cent in real terms. Although below the 6.3 per cent increase expected but not materializing last year, this figure still would be substantially above normally anticipated U.S. growth patterns.

— Inflation will increase slightly: 5-5.5 per cent compared to 5.1 per cent last year. By December, however, prices will be increasing at a 6 per cent annual rate.

— Disposable personal income will rise; the average U.S. income, accounting for inflation and after taxes, will gain 5 per cent.

— Unemployment will decline by the end of 1977 to 6.6 per cent, with 7 per cent the year's average.

— Business investment, a major growth component missing in 1976, is expected to grow moderately: by 12-14 per cent in new plants and equipment compared to 9 per cent last year.

— Corporate profits will continue to increase — by $12 billion after taxes, a 14 per cent hike. Most businesses will be in a good position to finance needed new capacity.

— Housing starts up, to about 1.6 million units. Car sales to improve to about 10.5 million units. Both items are expensive, but the bank points out, many American families will stretch their budgets to buy them, resulting in fewer purchases of other consumer durables than otherwise might be expected.

"The new administration," predicts the bank, " will undoubtedly expand government spending and/or reduces taxes. If not overdone, this will help insure a further, spontaneous expansion during 1977 — without touching off an inflationary spiral."

Last year's "lull in economic expansion is not expected to continue . . . and the U.S. economy is basically strong, will remain so during the next year."

FOUR GENERATION BUSINESS

Charles Dooley steps aside; son president

After more than 45 years of guiding a business from a one-employe store to the world's largest hardware department complex, Charles R. Dooley has stepped aside.

It couldn't be called the end of an era, because the new president of Dooley's Hardware Mart is his son, Richard N. Dooley — which makes it a three-generation business. (It's actually a four-generation business, since there are now Charles R. Dooley grandchildren working in the store.)

Dooley's was founded in North Long Beach in 1920, when North Long Beach was called Virginia City, by Richard E. Dooley and his wife Nancy. Their son, Charles R. began working in the store part time when he was 10 years old.

He was the store's only employe when he was age 20 and his father died. At that time, the store had about 2,500 square feet of space — less than that of many residences.

Now, the store employs 300 and Dooley's retail buildings occupy 4.15 acres and three city blocks along the west side of Long Beach Boulevard northward from Del Amo Boulevard. Two warehouses in two other locations take up two acres.

It started on Long Beach Boulevard at Del Amo and continually expanded northward, piecemeal, as adjacent parcels of property and structureswere acquired.

You can still buy metal washers for pennies at Dooley's, but at least 50 per cent of the dollar volume of business is in appliances and furniture. The furniture is displayed in 100 room settings.

Because of its topsy-like growth, the rambling complex with its many departments can be confusing to the first-time visitor. But somewhere in those three blocks, you can find, plumbing, hardware, garden supplies, tools, building material, patio furniture, pool tables, pictures, bars and stools, Western wear, groceries, sporting goods, television sets and stereos, paint, toys, a variety of home furnishings, and almost anything else you can name.

Something else took shape in 1962. That was the hot dog stand.

Dooley put in the stand and established a price of 10 cents for a hot dog, and not as a short-term promotional gimmick. No purchase of any kind was required; you could walk in off the street and get the 10-cent hot dog.

That price lasted until 1974, when it went up to 15 cents. The 50 per cent price hike didn't hurt business either, because a year later Dooley's was selling almost 1,300 hot dogs a day.

In the executive offices, there are dozens of citations for having led the nation, or for having been in the top 10 stores, nationwide, in the sale of various brands of applicances. Similar citations extol the store as a front-runner in other nationally advertised products.

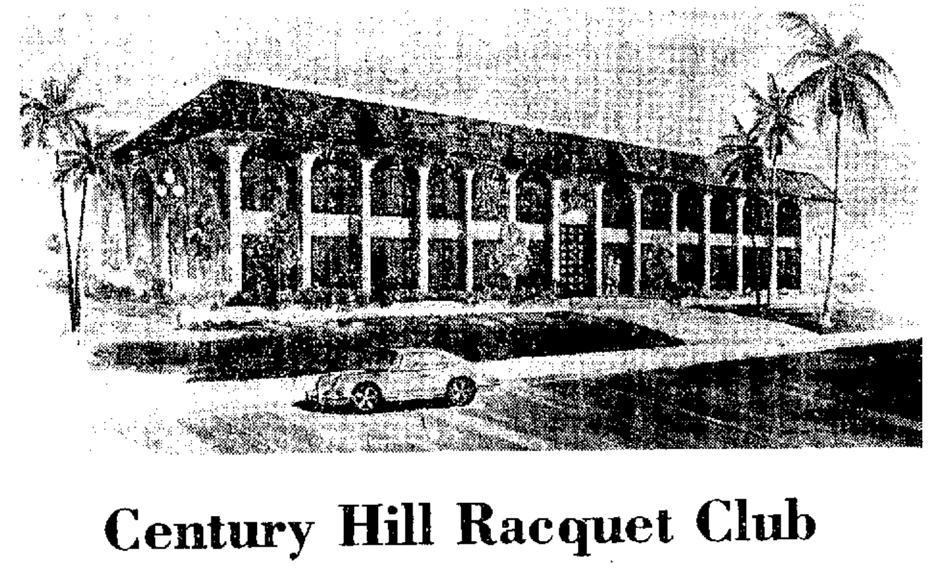
Despite a firm hand at the helm of this mushrooming business over the years of his presidency, Charles Dooley became equally well known to Long Beach residents in a different role — that of a busy, and oen controversial,civic leader.

He was a Long Beach city councilman in the late 1950s, and newspaper back files evidence that the role was not passive. He took strong and vocal stands on many issues without regard for their popularity, or lack of it, with the public.

He also is a past president of the North Long Beach Commercial Club , and has been a goodwill ambassador for the city on numerous trips all over the world.

Calling Dooley's a family business is an understatement. With the elevation of Richard N. Dooley to the presidency, Charles Dooley's son-in-law, Rod Nisbet, is vice president. Both Richard's wife, Nancy, and Rod's wife, Shirley Jean, are buyers for the store.

And now there are the grandchildren.



Century Hill Racquet Club construction set for Spring

Century Hill, Ltd, has announced that the overall master planning and final land negotiations are in the process of being completed for construction of the new Century Hill Racquet Club (A California Unincorporated Association).

The Club will occupy approximately 50% of the land that is to be the main focal point of th Petroleum Industry Professional Plaza. It will cover most of the city block bounded by East Pacific Coast Highway(North side) and 19th Street and between Obispo Avenue and Coronodo Avenue in East Long Beach in the heart of Signal Hill's growing industrial, business and residential developllments.

Spokesmen for Century Hill, Ltd. say that contract agreements have been worked out with Thompson Westcoast Company, General Contractors & Developers, for the project's over-all design and construction in association with Thompson Westcoast Company's Associate Architects and Engineers.

The membership club is to provide a complete recreational and health complex in one convenient location.

The main club building will contain two air-conditioned four wall indoor racquetball-handball courts fully equipped, separate men and women's gymnasiums, men and women's private showers and locker rooms, separate spa for men and women including saunas, steam room and Jacuzzies, a large pro shop, men's hair styling shop, ladies beauty salon, children's nursery, snack and health food bar, conference rooms and spacious lounge and luncheon area. The lounge and conference rooms will be made available for private parties to club members, with all programs expanding to meet the need of the club's membership.

Adjacent to the Century Hill Racquet Club, in the proposed new Petroleum Industry Professional Plaza Building, there is to be a medical health clinic administered by medical doctors and nurses that specialize their practice to bariatrics.

Construction is scheduled to begin in the Spring.

Unemployment rates decline in California

California's unemployment rate declined from 9.4 percent in November to 9.1 percent in December, it was reported by the State's Employment Development Department.

The December rate of 9.1 percent was the lowest since February, 1975, 22 months ago, when the rate was 9.0 percent. As the recession heightened, it rose to a peak of 110.5 percent in September, 1975. It was 10.1 percent last December and thereafter has trended downward, averaging 9.6 percent during 1976.

The numberof unemployed (including jobseekers entering the labor market as well as those between jobs) totaled 840,000 in December, a decrease of 110,600 from November and down by 78,800 from last December's total of 918,800. By comparison, in the previous 12 months (December 1974 to December 1975), the jobless total rose from 748,000 to 918,800, an increase of 170,800.

Total emplyment in December stood at 8,699,100, a gain of 63.900 over Nobember and an increase of 193,300 jobs since December, 1975. In the previous 12 months (December 1974 to December 1975) employment decined by 51,800 jobs, from 8,557,600 to 8,505,800.

In the nonagricultural wage and salary groups (which include about 95 percent of all the employed), total employment was 8,128,900, setting a new record for the fourth successive month.

Solid gains seen by bank analyst

Business Wire

Security Pacific Bank's chief economist predicted the national economy should post solid gains in 1977 while experiencing relatively moderate rates of inflation.

In releasing the bank's latest economic forecast, senior vice president and chief economist Dr. Robert T. Parry, administrator of the bank's economic department, emphasized that among the factors which will boost this year's national economic pace will be further growth in consumer incomes, increased retail sales, a gradual improvement in the jobless rate, further moderation of inflation rates, and some fiscal stimulus — assuming President-elect Carter's tax and spending programs are enacted.

Commenting on the outlook for some form of tax relief, Parry said a package probably will be approved during the second quarter that will include a personal income tax rebate, a modest lowering in the personal income tax rate, and some tax relief for businesses.

"This should boost consumer spending during the second quarter of 1977. In fact, consumer spending for durable goods should contribute significantly to the overall improvement in real economic activity during 1977's first half," Parry said.

"This year we also can anticipate some reduction in the nation's jobless rate as the economy continues to gather strength. By yearend, unemployment should be below the 7 per cent level. For all of 1977, our forecast indicates the rate will average 7.3 per cent, down from 1976's 7.7 per cent average," he added.

On prospects for further reducing inflation rates in 1977, Parry said several factors will help control inflation this year.

"The less-than-generally expected increase in imported oil prices, only moderate boosts in food prices, and an anticipated slowing in wholesale price inflation should help bring about an improvement in inflation rates during 1977 — although the annual average will match 1976's 5.1 per cent," he noted.

Security Pacific Bank's latest national economic forecast indicates that corporate after-tax profits will climb in almost 12 per cent in 1977, following 1976's jump of almost 28 per cent.

On the outlook for the nation's homebuilding, Parry said 1977's present economic forecast shows a "continued recovery."

"The outlook for a sustained economic recovery with only moderate rates of inflation should allow gains in consumer real earnings and, as a result, stimulate demand for new housing," he said.

The bank's forecast projects about 1.8 million housing starts for 1977. Since inflation is expected to be moderate, upward pressures on long-term interest rates should be minimal and, during the first half of the year, result in flat, or even lower mortage rates as compared with current rates.

Summarizing 1977's economic prospects, Parry said, "While an overall assessment of this year's anticipated performance may not appear as impressive as some of 1976's statistics, closer examination of each individual quarter should show progressive and steady improvement throughtout the year, resulting in generally solid gains for the nation's economy."

"The outlook for a sustained economic recovery with only moderate rates of inflation should allow gains in consumer real earnings and, as a result, stimulate demand for new housing," he said.

The bank's forecast projects about 1.8 million housing starts for 1977. Since inflation is expected to be moderate, upward pressures on long-term interest rates should be minimal and, during the first half of the year, result in flat, or even lower mortage rates as compared with current rates.

Summarizing 1977's economic prospects, Parry said, "While an overall assessment of this year's anticipated performance may not appear as impressive as some of 1976's statistics, closer examination of each individual quarter should show progressive and steady improvement throughtout the year, resulting in generally solid gains for the nation's economy."

Modest rally on N.Y. mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a modest technical rally Friday as it closed out its third straight week of declines since the start of 1977.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 3.40 to 962.43. That left the average with a net loss of 9.73 for the week and 42.22 since New Year's.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totalled 23.93 million shares, dwn from 26.52 million on Thursday.

The Dow had been up 6 on Wednesday and down 9 on Thursday. Friday, it stood at plus-1 early in the session and down-1 at noontime before getting a mild advance together in the afternoon.

Analysts said this erratic behavior reflected some maneuvering among investors in an uncertain mood over where the market was headed next.

Brokers' forecasts have leaned heavily to the bullish side ever since late last year, but the market has refused fall' in step lately.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials picked up .40 to 114.49, and S&P's 500-stock composite index added .35 to 103.32.

Marriott led the active list at the NYSE close, up ⅛ at 11¾. A 253,000-share block of the stock traded at 11¼.

Texaco, No. 2 among the volume leaders, slipped ¼ to 28. Late Thursday, the company reported fourth quarter earnings up 3.9 per cent from the final three months of 1975.

Chrysler climbed ⅞ to 21 on analysts' projections of higher earnings and a possible dividend increase for the company this year. Other autos also gained, with General Motors up ¾ at 74⅞; Ford Motor ahead ⅛ at 60⅝, and American Motors ⅛ higher at 4⅛.

Among some glamor issues that sold off Thursday, International Business Machines rose 1 to 274; Eastman Kodak ⅜ to 79⅛, and Walt Disney Productions ⅜ to 43¾. Centronics Data Computer climbed 1⅛ to 27⅜ on higher quarterly earnings.

LTV gained ¼ to 13⅜. The company stands to be relieved of a large tax liability on proceeds from warrants following a ruling by Treasury Secetary William Simon just before he left office this week.

The NYSE's composite index advanced .22 to 56.15.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .72 to 111.72, and the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was up .24 at 97.32.

Boss' pay sets level for others

NEW YORK — Among the nation's largest corporations, if the chief executive's salary is known, a good guess can be made about the salaries of the second- and third-ranking executives.

That is one finding of a survey by the Conference Board, a business research organization, of top executive compensation for 1975 at 712 of industry's largest manufacturters. Within reasonable limits, the survey turned up a constant ratio between the No. 1 man's pay and that of his top two subordinates. That rough ratio seems to persist no matter what the industry or the company's precise size.

On the average, the Conference Board found, the second in command collects just less than three-fourths of his superior's compensation. And the third-ranking executive on the management totem pole receives slightly less than 60 per cent of the chief's pay.

THE STUDY also concluded that a company's sales volume is more important than its industry as an indicator of top executive compensation. When corporate size is taken into account, there is "relatively little difference" in pay levels from one industry to another, the Conference Board said.

But executive compensation does not increase measure for measure with the company's sales. To the contrary, when sales volume doubles, chief executive pay increases by only 23 per cent on average. And the second- and third-ranking executives move up in lockstep with the chief executive, the survey found.

Modest rally on N.Y. mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a modest technical rally Friday as it closed out its third straight week of declines since the start of 1977.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 3.40 to 962.43. That left the average with a net loss of 9.73 for the week and 42.22 since New Year's.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totalled 23.93 million shares, dwn from 26.52 million on Thursday.

The Dow had been up 6 on Wednesday and down 9 on Thursday. Friday, it stood at plus-1 early in the session and down-1 at noontime before getting a mild advance together in the afternoon.

Analysts said this erratic behavior reflected some maneuvering among investors in an uncertain mood over where the market was headed next.

Brokers' forecasts have leaned heavily to the bullish side ever since late last year, but the market has refused fall in step lately.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials picked up .40 to 114.49, and S&P's 500-stock composite index added .35 to 103.32.

Marriott led the active list at the NYSE close, up ⅛ at 11¾. A 253,000-share block of the stock traded at 11¼.

Texaco, No. 2 among the volume leaders, slipped ¼ to 28. Late Thursday, the company reported fourth quarter earnings up 3.9 per cent from the final three months of 1975.

Chrysler climbed ⅞ to 21 on analysts' projections of higher earnings and a possible dividend increase for the company this year. Other autos also gained, with General Motors up ¼ at 74⅜; Ford Motor ahead ⅛ at 60⅝, and American Motors ⅛ higher at 4⅛.

Among some glamor issues that sold off Thursday, International Business Machines rose 1 to 274; Eastman Kodak ⅜ to 79⅛, and Walt Disney Productions ⅞ to 43¾. Centronics Data Computer climbed 1⅛ to 27⅞ on higher quarterly earnings.

LTV gained ¼ to 13⅝. The company stands to be relieved of a large tax liability on proceeds from warrants following a ruling by Treasury Secetary William Simon just before he left office this week.

The NYSE's composite index advanced .22 to 56.15.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .72 to 111.72, and the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was up .24 at 97.32.

Boss' pay sets level for others

NEW YORK — Among the nation's largest corporations, if the chief executive's salary is known, a good guess can be made about the salaries of the second- and third-ranking executives.

That is one finding of a survey by the Conference Board, a business research organization, of top executive compensation for 1975 at 712 of industry's largest manufacturters. Within reasonable limits, the survey turned up a constant ratio between the No. 1 man's pay and that of his top two subordinates. That rough ratio seems to persist no matter what the industry or the company's precise size.

On the average, the Conference Board found, the second in command collects just less than three-fourths of his superior's compensation. And the third-ranking executive on the management totem pole receives slightly less than 60 per cent of the chief's pay.

THE STUDY also concluded that a company's sales volume is more important than its industry as an indicator of top executive compensation. When corporate size is taken into account, there is "relatively little difference" in pay levels from one industry to another, the Conference Board said.

But executive compensation does not increase measure for measure with the company's sales. To the contrary, when sales volume doubles, chief executive pay increases by only 23 per cent on average. And the second- and third-ranking executives move up in lockstep with the chief executive, the survey found.

Xerox ad sends Jack Eagle's career soaring to new heights

Associated Press

It's not often that you audition to become a monk, but Jack Eagle did and got the job.

That audition took him from Borscht Belt comedian to being Brother Dominic on a television commercial and lifted him from obscurity to what he calls "a semi-name."

Prior to the commercial for Xerox he worked mostly in the Jewish resorts in the Catskill Mountains in New York. Now his fee has increased and he has an offer of a college tour.

In the commercial Eagle plays a hard-working monk who painstakingly hand-letters a thick manuscript. His superior is so impressed he orders 500 more.

After only a moment's hesitation, Brother Dominic rushes out of the monastery and has the manuscript reproduced on a Xerox high-speed duplicator.

His superior calls it "a miracle," but brother Dominic merely rolls his eyes heavenward and smiles knowingly.

"A general call had gone out for a cherubic type," said the roly poly Eagle, who stands 5-foot-4 nd weighs 210 pounds.

"Of course, I've never thought of myself that way. I've always seem myself more of a Gregory Peck type."

He was selected shortly after his audition by Needham, Harper & Steers, a New York advertising agency.

The exposure changed his whole life, said Eagle during an interview on a visit to Los Angeles. People don't know his name, but he is frequently hailed as Brother Dominic or "the monk."

"Two guys on a garbage truck in New York even asked me to hear confession," he said.

"I've suddenly become an entity: what I call a semi-name. That means when you come into a hotel they know who you are. This sort of thing seems to reach every level, from kids to corporate types."

Eagle, once a trumpet player in the big band era, said his fee as a comedian has gone up.

"I've just been offered a college tour," he said. "College kids, you know, are more into commercials than the shows."

Of the hundreds of letters the award-wining commercial has inspired in its 21 months on the air, Eagle said there was only one complaint from a clergyman.

He said he wore a baldpiece for the commercial. "But lately my hair has been falling out so fast I can play the role without the hairpiece," he said. "Maybe another miracle." He rolled his eyes heavenward.

"BROTHER DOMINIC" has a confession to make: One commercial has lifted him from obscurity to "semi-name" status.

CARBON MIKE AWARDS

Howard Duff and Lurene Tuttle received Carbon Mike Awards from the Pacific Pioneer Broadcasters at a luncheon Friday at the Sportsmen's Lodge. The two, who costarred in radio's Sam Spade series, were honored for their contributions to radio and television.

Several members of the original cast of Sam Spade, which first aired in 1946, were on this dais to salute Duff and Miss Tuttle, according to PPB president Bill Baldwin.

Carson sues over name on potty

DETROIT (AP) — Talk-show host Johnny Carson may occasionally use a little off-color humor, but he doesn't see anything funny about his name being stamped on the side of a portable toilet.

Carson, host of the "Tonight Show," has filed a $1.1 million lawsuit in federal court here against Earl Braxton of Utica, Mich., manufacturer of Porta-John outdoor toilets.

Braxton, 36, has been in the outdoor latrine business for nearly six years.

Last year the self-proclaimed King of the Porta-Johns, brought out a new line of lowcost latrines called "Here's Johnny!" — the words used by announcer Ed McMahon to announce Carson each night.

Braxton said he had attorneys research the slogan, and even got approval from the U.S. patent office before using it.

But lawyers for Carson and for Johnny Carson Apparel, Inc., in Buffalo, N.Y., are charging "trademark infringment, invasion of privacy and unfair competition." The suit asks for $1.1 million in damages.

Xerox ad sends Jack Eagle's career soaring to new heights

Associated Press

It's not often that you audition to become a monk, but Jack Eagle did and got the job.

That audition took him from Borscht Belt comedian to being Brother Dominic on a television commercial and lifted him from obscurity to what he calls "a semi-name."

Prior to the commercial for Xerox he worked mostly in the Jewish resorts in the Catskill Mountains in New York. Now his fee has increased and he has an offer of a college tour.

In the commercial Eagle plays a hard-working monk who painstakingly hand-letters a thick manuscript. His superior is so impressed he orders 500 more.

After only a moment's hesitation, Brother Dominic rushes out of the monastery and has the manuscript reproduced on a Xerox high-speed duplicator.

His superior calls it "a miracle," but brother Dominic merely rolls his eyes heavenward and smiles knowingly.

"A general call had gone out for a cherubic type," said the roly poly Eagle, who stands 5-foot-4 nd weighs 210 pounds.

"Of course, I've never thought of myself that way. I've always seem myself more of a Gregory Peck type."

He was selected shortly after his audition by Needham, Harper & Steers, a New York advertising agency.

The exposure changed his whole life, said Eagle during an interview on a visit to Los Angeles. People don't know his name, but he is frequently hailed as Brother Dominic or "the monk."

"Two guys on a garbage truck in New York even asked me to hear confession," he said.

"I've suddenly become an entity; what I call a semi-name. That means when you come into a hotel they know who you are. This sort of thing seems to reach every level, from kids to corporate types."

Eagle, once a trumpet player in the big band era, said his fee as a comedian has gone up.

"I've just been offered a college tour," he said. "College kids, you know, are more into commercials than the shows."

Of the hundreds of letters the award-wining commercial has inspired in its 21 months on the air, Eagle said there was only one complaint from a clergyman.

He said he wore a baldpiece for the commercial. "But lately my hair has been falling out so fast I can play the role without the hairpiece," he said. "Maybe another miracle." He rolled his eyes heavenward.

"BROTHER DOMINIC" has a confession to make: One commercial has lifted him from obscurity to "semi-name" status.

CARBON MIKE AWARDS

Howard Duff and Lurene Tuttle received Carbon Mike Awards from the Pacific Pioneer Broadcasters at a luncheon Friday at the Sportsmen's Lodge. The two, who costarred in radio's Sam Spade series, were honored for their contributions to radio and television.

Several members of the original cast of Sam Spade, which first aired in 1946, were on this dais to salute Duff and Miss Tuttle, according to PPB president Bill Baldwin.

Carson sues over name on potty

DETROIT (AP) — Talk-show host Johnny Carson may occasionally use a little off-color humor, but he doesn't see anything funny about his name being stamped on the side of a portable toilet.

Carson, host of the "Tonight Show," has filed a $1.1 million lawsuit in federal court here against Earl Braxton of Utica, Mich., manufacturer of Porta-John outdoor toilets.

Braxton, 36, has been in the outdoor latrine business for nearly six years.

Last year the self-proclaimed King of the Porta-Johns, brought out a new line of lowcost latrines called "Here's Johnny!" — the words used by announcer Ed McMahon to announce Carson each night.

Braxton said he had attorneys research the slogan, and even got approval from the U.S. patent office before using it.

But lawyers for Carson and for Johnny Carson Apparel, Inc., in Buffalo, N.Y., are charging "trademark infringment, invasion of privacy and unfair competition." The suit asks for $1.1 million in damages.

Palomino vs. Muniz: A brain-storm

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

"I've had people tell me," says Armando Muniz, 30, "no way you're going to make a fight after 10 rounds. You're too old.

"But it's like Vince Lombardi said—if you think you're strong, you're strong; if you think you're young, you're young."

Is Muniz trying to talk himself into an invincible effort against WBC welterweight champion Carlos Palomino in their 15-round battle of collegians at the Olympic Auditorium tonight?

Better than anybody, he knows the limits of his ability.

"I'm not six feet tall with long arms," says the Monterey Park father of three, "so I have to fight inside. I'm not a hard target to find. Everybody that's seen me fight says I should have been recruited by the Dodgers as a catcher."

After 52 fights and three title opportunities, including this one, is Muniz laughing his way into retirement?

"I haven't given it any thought. I'll think about that after Saturday night."

The card starts at 6:30; the title bout will come on at about 8, following a 10-rounder between welterweight contenders Pete Ranzani and Abel Cordoba. The house may sell out at 10,400.

There will be no local radio or TV, although the matches will be shown in closed-circuit houses in San Diego, Oxnard, San Jose, Sacramento, San Francisco, Fresno and Honolulu, where Muniz trained.

Palomino's biggest payday will earn him $60,000; Muniz gets $20,000, and the challenger also will collect 27½ per cent of the theater TV profits over $150,000.

Both fighters are popular in the Southland. Realistic wagering favors the champion from Westminster by at least 10-8, but Muniz figures to be the sentimental favorite because he's been around longer and his determined, brawling, pressing style borne of physical shortcomings has established him as what used to be known as a "crowd-pleaser."

He has won 41, lost 10 and drawn 1, while knocking out 26 foes.

But Mando may have reached his peak 22 months ago in his first title bid when he appeared to have Jose Napoles thoroughly whipped until Mexican officials stopped the fight after 12 rounds and awarded the victory to Napoles on a foul that supposedly occurred in the third.

Three-and-one-half months later Muniz got a rematch, but Napoles was ready, flooring Muniz for the only time in his career and winning a clear 15-round decision.

Muniz has remained the No. 1 contender by winning all five of his bouts since.

Palomino is three years younger at 27 and considerably less experienced, having won 20, lost 1 and drawn 3. He has stopped nine opponents, including England's John Stracey when he won the title as a 3-1 underdog in London last June.

That 12-round knockout victory was easily his most impressive performance—although Southland fans have only heard about it—and surprised even Carlos' co-manager, Jackie McCoy.

"I really didn't think he had that good a chance," McCoy admitted afterward.

So while Muniz may be past his prime, Palomino probably is at his peak.

He says that Stracey "hit me a good left hook in the first round and shook me," but most ringsiders agreed that was the only round the Englishman won.

Palomino's only loss was 2½ years ago in San Diego against Andy Price, once a prospective contender, and that was a controversial split decision. He has fought two draws since against Zovek Barajas and Hedgemon Lewis.

Regalado lead isn't very safe

Ford scatters gallery but helps Palmer at Clambake

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Mexican Victor Regalado—and possibly a couple of others, depending on how you figure it—took the lead Friday while former President Gerald Ford helped Arnold Palmer three strokes in the second round of the $200,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament.

"I thought he played pretty well considering he hasn't had a golf club in his hand for three moths," Palmer said of Ford's effort over the 6,356-yard Shore course at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

The par-71 layout threw the leadership of this confusing event into considerable doubt.

Ford's score was in the high 90s—97 or 98. Under the format for this unique tournament he is not required to putt out on every hole, and he picked up several times. He also hit into the swarming gallery several times and once—on the 18th—asked "did anyone get bruised?"

He and Palmer combined for a better-ball 68, three under par. It included Ford's 18 handicap. They are at 142 for two rounds and must play in the very low 60s, or even the 50s, today at Pebble Beach if they are to survive the cut for the final round Sunday.

Palmer's individual score was 71 and he's at 145 in the pro competition—11 strokes behind Regalado.

Regalado's lead is questionable, however. He has a 134 total. That's nine under par for his two rounds at Pebble Beach and the short, Shore course at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Tom Watson, with a second round 69, and Lee Elder, with a 66 in the mild, sunny weather, have 135 totals but also are nine under par. They've played the tougher Pebble Beach and Cypress Point layouts and have a definite advantage going into today's third round. They play the shorter, easier Shore course while Regalado must face potentially dangerous Cypress Point.

To make it even more confusing, Tony Jacklin also was at eight under par—but tied with Watson

Carnival atmosphere at Arena

The Southern California Indoor Games, the biggest track and field carnival ever staged under a Southland roof, began its two-day run in the Long Beach Arena Friday night, and like every circus, the best shows were in the center ring.

Open division competitors in the long jump, pole vault and shotput ignored the dizzying effects of a constant swirl of runners around the red 160-foot oval track to produce the day's best marks.

Larry Doubley, who last year carried the colors of L.A. Fremont High to the state championship in the long jump, showed that Trojan red and gold suits him equally well. The USC freshman leaped 25-2 to upset veteran Stan Whitley, who entered the meet with the best mark of any competitor at 26-8.

Whitley sprang 24-¼ for second, ahead of Long Beach State's Kevin Wilson at 23-2½.

Former 49er Bill Chew and Bill Hayes of the West Adams Garden Track Club were the only vaulters to clear an opening height, but saved the event with an exciting duel. Each topped 16 feet, Hayes winning on fewer misses.

Muscleman Kent Pagel of the Maccabi Track Club lofted the 16-pound ball 58-10¾ for victory in the shotput. He easily outdistanced Ron Engle of Long Beach State (51-2¼) and UC Riverside's Steve Strong (48-4¼).

The meet even featured a world record, albeit an obscure one. Masters miler Mauro Hernandez of the Santa Monica Track Club established a mark in that event for 54-year-olds, appropriately clocking 4:54, and dipping 24 seconds below his previous best.

Long Beach area preps were out in force and made their best showing in the sprints. Jordan's Darryl Sidney and Wilson's Tony Allen equalled the day's fastest time for 60 yards, posting victories in 6.5. Mike Dyer (6.6) of Jordan was also a victor in the 60. Poly's 640 relay team (1:09.6) and Lakewood's 2-mile quartet (8:22.9) scored impressive wins and Ken Margerum of Fountain Valley blazed 7.7 in the 60-yard hurdles.

Long Beach City College won the JC 640 relay (1:10.2) while shotputter Dave Fuller captured his event in 49-4.

Sophomore guard Randy Rico hit an off-balance, 30-foot jump shot at the buzzer Friday night as Mission College upset Long Beach City, 60-58, in Metropolitan Conference basketball action before 92 people at Kennedy High in Granada Hills.

Rico, a 5-9 guard who led all scorers with 22 points, took an inbounds pass from teammate David Duran with two seconds remaining. He dribbled once before pumping an archer from 15 feet to the left of the key.

The ball hit the far end of the rim, caromed against the glass and appeared to be heading toward the floor.

As it came off the backboard, the ball caught the lip of the hoop. It hung on the iron after the buzzer had sounded before dropping through.

Millikan wins in triple overtime

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Going three overtimes to prove the third time around is a charm seems to be carrying things a bit far.

That's what Millikan High did Friday night, getting two free throws by John Paez with five seconds remaining in the third overtime to nip Compton, 73-72, in an emotion-draining Moore League contest.

While Friday's game was the first time Millikan has beaten the Tarbabes in three meetings this season, the outcome continued what has become an intense rivalry.

Compton's wins in December tournaments had been 63-57, and 75-72 in double overtime.

But now two games into Moore League play and it's Millikan that has a share of first place with Poly at 2-0. Compton, which was rocked by Poly on Wednesday, is 0-2 after going 11-1 in pre-league.

Paez' only two points of the game gave the Rams a 73-70 advantage—their biggest lead since midway through the third quarter.

Compton sophomore Melvin Herndon scored at the buzzer to account for the final score.

Millikan, which had fought an uphill battle most of the second half, staged an incredible rally in the final 50 seconds of the first overtime after trailing, 62-56.

The key plays were a 14-foot jumper by Jose Slaughter that was off mark when Compton had the ball and was ahead by four points, and Johnny Watson's free throw miss at 0:17. If either shot had gone down, Compton coach Eddie Thomas felt his team would have been a winner.

Instead, the momentum swung to Millikan. John White followed Slaughter's miss with an 18-footer that cut the margin to 62-60. After Watson missed his one-and-one opportunity, Sherman Johnson picked up a loose ball under his basket and dropped in a short jumper.

"We should never have let them get back in the game after leading by six points," said a subdued Thomas. "That was the game as far as I was concerned."

After baskets by Herndon and White, neither team was able to score in the final 67 seconds of the second overtime.

The third OT saw Millikan finally nudge ahead for good, 71-69, when Rich Oglesby scored on a short hook shot.

Oglesby and Johnson had spent a tough night trying to contain 6-7 Purvis Miller, who scored 32 points for Compton—the third time he's had 30 or more against the Rams.

White had 25 points to lead Millikan. The Rams also received big games out of Boatright (16) and

Jabbar destroys Knicks

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar put on one of his more powerful performances of the season Friday night and got help from reserve Johnny Neumann in lifting the Lakers to a 108-94 victory over the New York Knicks.

A sellout crowd of 17,505 — the first in 104 games spanning two and one-half years — watched the Lakers struggle at the start before rolling to their 15th consecutive home victory with a big second half.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 35 points, grabbed 24 rebounds to tie his season high and converted 13 of 24 shots as the Lakers posted their 16th win in the last 20 games.

Coach Jerry West couldn't find enough words to describe the kind of performance Abdul-Jabbar gave.

"What can I say about him that I haven't already said?," West asked. "How can you improve on perfection? He's magnificent to work with and responds to every challenge."

Muscled effectively by New York rookie Lonnie Shelton in the first 14 minutes, Abdul-Jabbar missed six of his first seven shots and it appeared his streak of 20 consecutive games of shooting 50 per cent or better would finally come to an end.

But he kept on firing, got Shelton in foul trouble and then scored almost at will in the final three periods, hitting 12 of his last 17 shots. He also made nine of 10 from the free throw line.

Two slender forwards, Bob McAdoo and Tom McMillen, tried to stop Jabbar after Shelton left and they had no chance. Kareem maneuvered inside for close-range shots that he doesn't often miss.

LBCC falls to Mission's impossible

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

Sophomore guard Randy Rico hit an off-balance, 30-foot jump shot at the buzzer Friday night as Mission College upset Long Beach City, 60-58, in Metropolitan Conference basketball action before 92 people at Kennedy High in Granada Hills.

Rico, a 5-9 guard who led all scorers with 22 points, took an inbounds pass from teammate David Duran with two seconds remaining. He dribbled once before pumping an archer from 15 feet to the left of the key.

The ball hit the far end of the rim, caromed against the glass and appeared to be heading toward the floor.

As it came off the backboard, the ball caught the lip of the hoop. It hung on the iron after the buzzer had sounded before dropping through.

Millikan wins in triple overtime

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Going three overtimes to prove the third time around is a charm seems to be carrying things a bit far.

That's what Millikan High did Friday night, getting two free throws by John Paez with five seconds remaining in the third overtime to nip Compton, 73-72, in an emotion-draining Moore League contest.

While Friday's game was the first time Millikan has beaten the Tarbabes in three meetings this season, the outcome continued what has become an intense rivalry.

Compton's wins in December tournaments had been 63-57, and 75-72 in double overtime.

But now two games into Moore League play and it's Millikan that has a share of first place with Poly at 2-0. Compton, which was rocked by Poly on Wednesday, is 0-2 after going 11-1 in pre-league.

Paez' only two points of the game gave the Rams a 73-70 advantage—their biggest lead since midway through the third quarter.

Compton sophomore Melvin Herndon scored at the buzzer to account for the final score.

Millikan, which had fought an uphill battle most of the second half, staged an incredible rally in the final 50 seconds of the first overtime after trailing, 62-56.

The key plays were a 14-foot jumper by Jose Slaughter that was off mark when Compton had the ball and was ahead by four points, and Johnny Watson's free throw miss at 0:17. If either shot had gone down, Compton coach Eddie Thomas felt his team would have been a winner.

Instead, the momentum swung to Millikan. John White followed Slaughter's miss with an 18-footer that cut the margin to 62-60. After Watson missed his one-and-one opportunity, Sherman Johnson picked up a loose ball under his basket and dropped in a short jumper.

"We should never have let them get back in the game after leading by six points," said a subdued Thomas. "That was the game as far as I was concerned."

After baskets by Herndon and White, neither team was able to score in the final 67 seconds of the second overtime.

The third OT saw Millikan finally nudge ahead for good, 71-69, when Rich Oglesby scored on a short hook shot.

Oglesby and Johnson had spent a tough night trying to contain 6-7 Purvis Miller, who scored 32 points for Compton—the third time he's had 30 or more against the Rams.

White had 25 points to lead Millikan. The Rams also received big games out of Boatright (16) and

Jabbar destroys Knicks

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar put on one of his more powerful performances of the season Friday night and got help from reserve Johnny Neumann in lifting the Lakers to a 108-94 victory over the New York Knicks.

A sellout crowd of 17,505 — the first in 104 games spanning two and one-half years — watched the Lakers struggle at the start before rolling to their 15th consecutive home victory with a big second half.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 35 points, grabbed 24 rebounds to tie his season high and converted 13 of 24 shots as the Lakers posted their 16th win in the last 20 games.

Coach Jerry West couldn't find enough words to describe the kind of performance Abdul-Jabbar gave.

"What can I say about him that I haven't already said?," West asked. "How can you improve on perfection? He's magnificent to work with and responds to every challenge."

Muscled effectively by New York rookie Lonnie Shelton in the first 14 minutes, Abdul-Jabbar missed six of his first seven shots and it appeared his streak of 20 consecutive games of shooting 50 per cent or better would finally come to an end.

But he kept on firing, got Shelton in foul trouble and then scored almost at will in the final three periods, hitting 12 of his last 17 shots. He also made nine of 10 from the free throw line.

Two slender forwards, Bob McAdoo and Tom McMillen, tried to stop Jabbar after Shelton left and they had no chance. Kareem maneuvered inside for close-range shots that he doesn't often miss.

Control of each aspect of competition would be in the hands of the people involved in their own particular sport.

The president of the defunct Minnesota Fighting Saints hockey team says the St. Paul business community killed the World Hockey Association team. "There's many factors why, but even if everything else had gone perfectly, it was the business community that killed this team," said Rob Brown. "If the businessmen had kept their promises, St. Paul would have kept the Saints—probably for as long as people would have wanted them."...

Robert Parrish, a former New York Jets lineman, filed suit against the team and the National Football League, seeking $185,400 damages plus attorney's fees.

Poly 'held' to 51

But Hares foil Lakewood's plan

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Poly High School broke open a tight contest with an 18-9 third-period outburst and then held off a tempo-conscious Lakewood team, 51-38, in a Moore League duel at Long Beach City College Friday night.

"Give Lakewood the credit, they deserve it," Poly coach Ron Palmer said after watching the Lancers restrict his team to its lowest winning point total of the year.

"They did a good job," continued Palmer. "They are well coached and they ran their game plan with a great deal of discipline."

The game plan for the Willard Foerster-coached Lancers was to run their offense with a great deal of deliberation, for two reasons.

First, to seek the high-percentage shot, and secondly, to keep the ball from the talented and taller Rabbits, currently the No. 1 team in CIF.

The tactic worked for a time, too. Poly led by one point after eight minutes and by only two points at halftime.

The Lancers even tied matters twice early in the third period at 23-23 on a driving shot by Keith Harrington, the game's leading scorer with 17 points, and at 25-all on a 20-footer by slender Craig Dykema.

"We expected this," admitted Palmer. "We expect it from everyone in league, and we're preparing for it. We'll do a little something every game to make people play basketball with us for four or five minutes at a time."

Palmer's counterattack Friday night was a half-court, trapping zone defense that enabled his Rabbits to run off a 10-0 spurt midway through the third period.

Reserve Sidney Farrington had four points in the spree as did Philadelphia transfer Dino Gregory, who led Poly with 15 points.

Johnson (14). The 6-5 Johnson, who attended Compton last year, scored 10 points in the fourth quarter and in the first two OTs before fouling out.

Millikan, which led by six at halftime, was outscored, 16-6, in the third quarter.

Compton seemingly had the game under control in regulation, leading 56-53 in the final 41 seconds only to let Ed Brown fly through for two points, be fouled on the play and then sink the free throw to end regulation at 56-all.

"The kids just didn't want to lose," understated Millikan coach Bill Odell, who once survived a six-overtime game with Jordan. "They just seem to get turned on more for league games."

TRACK RESULTS

Age group competition was frenzied but Long Beach athletes emerged from the chaos quite respectably.

The Long Beach Lancers boys team won 640 relays in the 10-11 and 12-13 age groups while the Comets girls team won the event in 10-11, 12-13 and 14-15 divisions.

Dennis Price zipped 60 yards in 7.4 seconds in the 10-11 class to lead a Lancers sweep of the event while LaTanya Dawkins and Andria Rolfe scored big wins for the Comets over 500 yards.

Crosby south: Fleisher has 4-stroke lead

Bruce Fleisher tied an Irvine Coast Country Club record with a seven-under-par 71 Friday to take a solid four-stroke lead in the 36-hole Bing Crosby Pro-Am: Southern golf tournament.

Fleisher had only one bogey during his round which tied a course record set by last year's winner, Bob Eastwood.

The final round will be held today with a shotgun start at 10 a.m. The top five finishers among 72 participants qualify for next week's Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Perfect-record St. Anthony holds off Servite 71-69

By DENNIS BROSTERHOUS
Staff Writer

St. Anthony High survived some sloppy ball handling in the final two minutes and stopped visiting Servite, 71-69, in an Angelus League crucial before a full house in the Saints' gym Friday evening.

The Saints, now 3-0 in league play, led 65-60 with 2:06 remaining when Chuck Nelson put in a rebound basket for Servite (2-1). Eight seconds later Nelson tossed in a pair of free throws to cut the lead to 1.

The Saints turned the ball over twice in succession on inbounds plays, and sophomore Steve Buechele converted one of the errant passes into a basket to put Servite in front, 66-65, with 1:54 left.

St. Anthony took the lead for good when Tony Spanier broke loose under the basket and tossed in a layin with 1:06 left. The Saints added two free throws by Cormac Carney and a Spanier layin, while Garretson fired in a last-second, 30-foot shot for the Friars to complete the scoring.p St. Anthony coach Tony Marques was visibly relieved following the victory.

"We really tried to throw that one away, didn't we? I was really proud of the way those kids hung in there at the end, though," he said.

Servite led through most of the contest following an even first quarter. The Friars built a seven-point advantage, 39-32, early in the second half and led by three at the end of three quarters.

But the Saints went on a 10-2 spurt in the first four minutes to take a five-point advantage.

"I was especially happy with the play of Jim Donnelly," said Marques. "He hit some shots for us when we really needed them."

LBCC—

Long Beach coach Bill Frazer argued vehemently that the basket was no good, claiming Rico fired his game-winner too late. Referee Jim Bandito ruled otherwise.

The loss was the third in four Metro tries for the Vikings (14-8 over-all) and a blow to LBCC's hopes of returning to the state playoffs as conference champion for the fifth consecutive year.

The three Long Beach losses have been by a total of only five points. LBCC has lost four of its last seven. Mission is 1-3 in conference play and 8-12 for the season.

The Vikings had their best night from the floor against Metro foes, shooting 57 per cent (25 of 54), buoyed by a 61 per cent second half that enabled them to erase a 52-38 deficit.

Long Beach, which never led, outscored the Free Spirits, 18-4, during one stretch in the second half. A David Oliver basket tied the score, 56-56, with 3:53 remaining.

The teams traded baskets and—with 2:39 to play—Mission chose to stall for the final shot. The Free Spirits retained possession for all but final nine seconds when Rico's pass to Duran, underneath the basket, hit the backboard and Oliver recovered.

Seven seconds later guard Danny Chislock of Long Beach drove the key in a last hurrah for the Vikings. Chislock lost control of the ball enroute and the Free Spirits controlled to set up Rico's game-winner.

Wilson edges Jordan

Wilson High posted only its third win of the season, at the expense of host Jordan, on Friday night, taking command in the fourth quarter and outshooting the Panthers from the free throw line en route to a 69-64 decision.

The Bruins, 1-1 in Moore League action and 3-12 over-all, sank 23 of 29 attempts from the foul stripe while Jordan, 0-2 and 7-8, suffered through a 16-of-29 peformance.

Wilson broke a 48-48 tie with less than four minutes remaining with four successive points. Jordan advanced within one point, but no closer.

The Bruins were in front at halftime, 30-27.

Bruin guard Chris Smith paced the winners' free throw efforts with a 10-of-11 assault and finished with 20 points. Teammates Mark Oberjuerge (16) and Jeff Younger (10) also were in double figures.

Jordan, which lost for the seventh time in its last nine games, was led by Bill Campbell with 21 points and Moby Oliver with 18.

UN Las Vegas 113, UC Santa Barbara 69

Guard Glenn Gondrezick poured in 26 points Friday night as seventh-ranked Rebels set two NCAA records. They extended to 12 the number of consecutive games in which they have scored 100 points or more—an NCAA record. They also share the nation's longest home court winning streak—53 games—with Cincinnati, and UNLV could extend that streak tonight when it hosts Pepperdine.

Poly 'held' to 51

But Hares foil Lakewood's plan

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Poly High School broke open a tight contest with an 18-9 third-period outburst and then held off a tempo-conscious Lakewood team, 51-38, in a Moore League duel at Long Beach City College Friday night.

"Give Lakewood the credit, they deserve it," Poly coach Ron Palmer said after watching the Lancers restrict his team to its lowest winning point total of the year.

"They did a good job," continued Palmer. "They are well coached and they ran their game plan with a great deal of discipline."

The game plan for the Willard Foerster-coached Lancers was to run their offense with a great deal of deliberation, for two reasons.

First, to seek the high-percentage shot, and secondly, to keep the ball from the talented and taller Rabbits, currently the No. 1 team in CIF.

The tactic worked for a time, too. Poly led by one point after eight minutes and by only two points at halftime.

The Lancers even tied matters twice early in the third period at 23-23 on a driving shot by Keith Harrington, the game's leading scorer with 17 points, and at 25-all on a 20-footer by slender Craig Dykema.

"We expected this," admitted Palmer. "We expect it from everyone in league, and we're preparing for it. We'll do a little something every game to make people play basketball with us for four or five minutes at a time."

Palmer's counterattack Friday night was a half-court, trapping zone defense that enabled his Rabbits to run off a 10-0 spurt midway through the third period.

Reserve Sidney Farrington had four points in the spree as did Philadelphia transfer Dino Gregory, who led Poly with 15 points.

Johnson (14). The 6-5 Johnson, who attended Compton last year, scored 10 points in the fourth quarter and in the first two OTs before fouling out.

Millikan, which led by six at halftime, was outscored, 16-6, in the third quarter.

Compton seemingly had the game under control in regulation, leading 56-53 in the final 41 seconds only to let Ed Brown fly through for two points, be fouled on the play and then sink the free throw to end regulation at 56-all.

"The kids just didn't want to lose," understated Millikan coach Bill Odell, who once survived a six-overtime game with Jordan. "They just seem to get turned on more for league games."

TRACK RESULTS

Age group competition was frenzied but Long Beach athletes emerged from the chaos quite respectably.

The Long Beach Lancers boys team won 640 relays in the 10-11 and 12-13 age groups while the Comets girls team won the event in 10-11, 12-13 and 14-15 divisions.

Dennis Price zipped 60 yards in 7.4 seconds in the 10-11 class to lead a Lancers sweep of the event while LaTanya Dawkins and Andria Rolfe scored big wins for the Comets over 500 yards.

Crosby south: Fleisher has 4-stroke lead

Bruce Fleisher tied an Irvine Coast Country Club record with a seven-under-par 71 Friday to take a solid four-stroke lead in the 36-hole Bing Crosby Pro-Am: Southern golf tournament.

Fleisher had only one bogey during his round which tied a course record set by last year's winner, Bob Eastwood.

The final round will be held today with a shotgun start at 10 a.m. The top five finishers among 72 participants qualify for next week's Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Perfect-record St. Anthony holds off Servite 71-69

By DENNIS BROSTERHOUS
Staff Writer

St. Anthony High survived some sloppy ball handling in the final two minutes and stopped visiting Servite, 71-69, in an Angelus League crucial before a full house in the Saints' gym Friday evening.

The Saints, now 3-0 in league play, led 65-60 with 2:06 remaining when Chuck Nelson put in a rebound basket for Servite (2-1). Eight seconds later Nelson tossed in a pair of free throws to cut the lead to 1.

The Saints turned the ball over twice in succession on inbounds plays, and sophomore Steve Buechele converted one of the errant passes into a basket to put Servite in front, 66-65, with 1:54 left.

St. Anthony took the lead for good when Tony Spanier broke loose under the basket and tossed in a layin with 1:06 left. The Saints added two free throws by Cormac Carney and a Spanier layin, while Garretson fired in a last-second, 30-foot shot for the Friars to complete the scoring.p St. Anthony coach Tony Marques was visibly relieved following the victory.

"We really tried to throw that one away, didn't we? I was really proud of the way those kids hung in there at the end, though," he said.

Servite led through most of the contest following an even first quarter. The Friars built a seven-point advantage, 39-32, early in the second half and led by three at the end of three quarters.

But the Saints went on a 10-2 spurt in the first four minutes to take a five-point advantage.

"I was especially happy with the play of Jim Donnelly," said Marques. "He hit some shots for us when we really needed them."

LBCC—

Long Beach coach Bill Frazer argued vehemently that the basket was no good, claiming Rico fired his game-winner too late. Referee Jim Bandito ruled otherwise.

The loss was the third in four Metro tries for the Vikings (14-8 over-all) and a blow to LBCC's hopes of returning to the state playoffs as conference champion for the fifth consecutive year.

The three Long Beach losses have been by a total of only five points. LBCC has lost four of its last seven. Mission is 1-3 in conference play and 8-12 for the season.

The Vikings had their best night from the floor against Metro foes, shooting 57 per cent (25 of 54), buoyed by a 61 per cent second half that enabled them to erase a 52-38 deficit.

Long Beach, which never led, outscored the Free Spirits, 18-4, during one stretch in the second half. A David Oliver basket tied the score, 56-56, with 3:53 remaining.

The teams traded baskets and—with 2:39 to play—Mission chose to stall for the final shot. The Free Spirits retained possession for all but final nine seconds when Rico's pass to Duran, underneath the basket, hit the backboard and Oliver recovered.

Seven seconds later guard Danny Chislock of Long Beach drove the key in a last hurrah for the Vikings. Chislock lost control of the ball enroute and the Free Spirits controlled to set up Rico's game-winner.

Wilson edges Jordan

Wilson High posted only its third win of the season, at the expense of host Jordan, on Friday night, taking command in the fourth quarter and outshooting the Panthers from the free throw line en route to a 69-64 decision.

The Bruins, 1-1 in Moore League action and 3-12 over-all, sank 23 of 29 attempts from the foul stripe while Jordan, 0-2 and 7-8, suffered through a 16-of-29 peformance.

Wilson broke a 48-48 tie with less than four minutes remaining with four successive points. Jordan advanced within one point, but no closer.

The Bruins were in front at halftime, 30-27.

Bruin guard Chris Smith paced the winners' free throw efforts with a 10-of-11 assault and finished with 20 points. Teammates Mark Oberjuerge (16) and Jeff Younger (10) also were in double figures.

Jordan, which lost for the seventh time in its last nine games, was led by Bill Campbell with 21 points and Moby Oliver with 18.

A EULOGY FOR AN OLD FRIEND

An obligatory task of a featured columnist in any sports section is to compose eulogies of those who leave this world of fun and games.

In the Independent, Press-Telegram, this duty fell to Hank Hollingworth, which is ironic because when Hank died this week there was nobody on the sports staff to write one about him.

Hank was good at this because he always was able to find something nice to say about everybody, even those who had suffered his barbed criticism during his 26 years on the I, P-T.

This is not to say that Hank disliked nobody, because that would not be true. He particularly delighted in attacking those sports figures whose personalities he considered to be less than genuine, and he was as relentless as a bulldog once he sank his teeth into you.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

As columnist George Robeson wrote Friday, Hank's bag was controversy, and let it be said that he was controversial even among his colleagues.

A typical evening on the sports copy desk would begin with the question, "What's old Triple-H writing about tonight?"

The reply often would inspire an exclamation of, "Oh, no!"

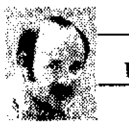
Hank had a knack for cutting through the niceties of giving a target the benefit of the doubt if, in his mind, there was no doubt at all. He did not waste time seeking glossed-over explanations, and it made for many snappy columns and considerable discussion along the boulevards.

When Hank was on the prowl, the powers of sport opened their daily papers with great apprehension—and they always opened them, you can be sure.

In a strange way, they'll miss him, too.

A sadness is that Hank had never been more productive than in the months leading to his sudden and shocking death at 52. His priorities were clear, his rapier sharp.

In his final column appearing the day of his passing, Hank twitted Ram coach Chuck Knox for picking Mando Muniz to beat Carlos Palomino tonight because "he fights like the Rams play ball."



RICH ROBERTS

Hank asked the impertinent and open question, "Is that a kiss of death for Mando?"

Hank would bear a chance remark like that and seize upon it with sadistic delight.

We knew Hank for more than 20 years and he never changed. He could at the same time be painfully blunt in his writing but thoughtful to his colleagues, quicker to praise another's work than he was to speak of his own.

Truthfully, in the old days when he did double duty he was a better columnist than he was a boss because he wasn't tough enough to keep employees in their place. He was a soft touch, a benevolent patsy because, always, he was a good friend first.

Behind a typewriter, he was something else. If some of the stuffier set considered his style of writing to be less than straight reporting, they could not deny that it was good reading.

That's all Hank wanted it to be. Somewhere, he has the last laugh.

49ers facing cage exam

FRESNO — Dale Dillon admits to being disappointed in Long Beach State's 11-4 record.

"We shouldn't have four losses," contends Dillon. "All of the games were close, games we could have won, but games in which we didn't play well enough to get the job done."

Dillon is hopeful that the defeats had at least some academic benefit.

"They taught us something that coach (Dwight) Jones has been trying to tell us all year," says Dillon—"that we can't win games by simply showing up."

"I hope they've learned that lesson," says Jones, whose athletes will get another quiz on the subject here tonight at 8:15 when they take on Fresno State in Selland Arena.

"We played with great intensity last week against Santa Barbara and for the first time this season we sustained the effort through an extended period of time," says Jones.

"I still don't think this team has played 40 minutes of the basketball it's capable of, but it is moving toward that goal and that's all I ask," said Jones.

"It's too early to tell," adds Jones, "but I think the kids know now that they have to play hard all the time to win league games."

It would be easy for the 49ers, seeking their eighth consecutive Pacific Coast Athletic Association title, to be cocky.

They are unbeaten in two league games, averaging 81.5 points and shooting nearly 70 per cent as a unit.

Tonight they take on a Fresno team mired in a seven-game losing streak.

Jones will open with his regular lineup of Richard Johnson and Dale Dillon at guards, Clarence Ruffen at center and Lloyd McMillian and Larry Hudson at forwards.

Pro skiers tackle Snow Summit

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

BIG BEAR LAKE— Fifty-four professional skiers gather today at Snow Summit to compete in the $40,000 Dodge Cup giant slalom.

The event is the fourth stop on this year's 12-race, $250,000 World Pro Skiing circuit and is expected to draw 15,000 spectators for today's race and Sunday's special slalom, to be conducted on Summit Run in front of the main lodge.

Former World Cup champion Henri Duvillard of Megeve, France, enters the competition as the leading racer this year, having won four of the first six races and $28,125 in prize money. In 2½ years on the tour, Duvillard has won 29 of 51 dual challenge finals and $119,200 in prizes.

Sentimental favorites with the Southern California crowd figure to be Perry Thompson of Bishop, Calif., son-in-law of Mammoth Mountain owner Dave McCoy, and Hank Kashiwa, 1975 pro champion who is making a comeback after knee surgery.

Today's giant slalom head-to-head eliminations, with a field of 32, begin at 10 a.m. The afternoon round of 16 match eliminations on dual parallel courses begin at 2.

A EULOGY FOR AN OLD FRIEND

An obligatory task of a featured columnist in any sports section is to compose eulogies of those who leave this world of fun and games.

In the Independent, Press-Telegram, this duty fell to Hank Hollingworth, which is ironic because when Hank died this week there was nobody on the sports staff to write one about him.

Hank was good at this because he always was able to find something nice to say about everybody, even those who had suffered his barbed criticism during his 26 years on the I, P-T.

This is not to say that Hank disliked nobody, because that would not be true. He particularly delighted in attacking those sports figures whose personalities he considered to be less than genuine, and he was as relentless as a bulldog once he sank his teeth into you.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

—30—

As columnist George Robeson wrote Friday, Hank's bag was controversy, and let it be said that he was controversial even among his colleagues.

A typical evening on the sports copy desk would begin with the question, "What's old Triple-H writing about tonight?"

The reply often would inspire an exclamation of, "Oh, no!"

Hank had a knack for cutting through the niceties of giving a target the benefit of the doubt if, in his mind, there was no doubt at all. He did not waste time seeking glossed-over explanations, and it made for many snappy columns and considerable discussion along the boulevards.

When Hank was on the prowl, the powers of sport opened their daily papers with great apprehension—and they always opened them, you can be sure.

In a strange way, they'll miss him, too.

A sadness is that Hank had never been more productive than in the months leading to his sudden and shocking death at 52. His priorities were clear, his rapier sharp.

In his final column appearing the day of his passing, Hank twitted Ram coach Chuck Knox for picking Mando Muniz to beat Carlos Palomino tonight because "he fights like the Rams play ball."

RICH ROBERTS

Hank asked the impertinent and open question, "Is that a kiss of death for Mando?"

Hank would hear a chance remark like that and seize upon it with sadistic delight.

We knew Hank for more than 20 years and he never changed. He could at the same time be painfully blunt in his writing but thoughtful to his colleagues, quicker to praise another's work than he was to speak of his own.

Truthfully, in the old days when he did double duty he was a better columnist than he was a boss because he wasn't tough enough to keep employees in their place. He was a soft touch, a benevolent patsy because, always, he was a good friend first.

Behind a typewriter, he was something else. If some of the stuffier set considered his style of writing to be less than straight reporting, they could not deny that it was good reading.

That's all Hank wanted it to be. Somewhere, he has the last laugh.

49ers facing cage exam

FRESNO — Dale Dillon admits to being disappointed in Long Beach State's 11-4 record.

"We shouldn't have four losses," contends Dillon. "All of the games were close, games we could have won, but games in which we didn't play well enough to get the job done."

Dillon is hopeful that the defeats had at least some academic benefit.

"They taught us something that coach (Dwight) Jones has been trying to tell us all year," says Dillon—"that we can't win games by simply showing up."

"I hope they've learned that lesson," says Jones, whose athletes will get another quiz on the subject here tonight at 8:15 when they take on Fresno State in Selland Arena.

"We played with great intensity last week against Santa Barbara and for the first time this season we sustained the effort through an extended period of time," says Jones.

"I still don't think this team has played 40 minutes of the basketball it's capable of, but it is moving toward that goal and that's all I ask," said Jones.

"It's too early to tell," adds Jones, "but I think the kids know now that they have to play hard all the time to win league games."

It would be easy for the 49ers, seeking their eighth consecutive Pacific Coast Athletic Association title, to be cocky.

They are unbeaten in two league games, averaging 81.5 points and shooting nearly 70 per cent as a unit.

Tonight they take on a Fresno team mired in a seven-game losing streak.

Jones will open with his regular lineup of Richard Johnson and Dale Dillon at guards, Clarence Ruffen at center and Lloyd McMillian and Larry Hudson at forwards.

Pro skiers tackle Snow Summit

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

BIG BEAR LAKE—Fifty-four professional skiers gather today at Snow Summit to compete in the $40,000 Dodge Cup giant slalom.

The event is the fourth stop on this year's 12-race, $250,000 World Pro Skiing cicuit and is expected to draw 15,000 spectators for today's race and Sunday's special slalom, to be conducted on Summit Run in front of the main lodge.

Former World Cup champion Henri Duvillard of Megeve, France, enters the competition as the leading racer this year, having won four of the first six races and $28,125 in prize money. In 2½ years on the tour, Duvillard has won 29 of 51 dual challenge finals and $119,200 in prizes.

Sentimental favorites with the Southern California crowd figure to be Perry Thompson of Bishop, Calif., son-in-law of Mammoth Mountain owner Dave McCoy, and Hank Kashiwa, 1975 pro champion who is making a comeback after knee surgery.

Today's giant slalom head-to-head eliminations, with a field of 32, begin at 10 a.m. The afternoon round of 16 match eliminations on dual parallel courses begin at 2.

Mayfair all alone in first

Win in 3 OTs; Bellflower loses

Mayfair High moved into sole posession of the Suburban League basketball lead Friday night when it beat Artesia in three overtimes while Bellflower was being upset by Paramount.

The Monsoons (6-0) erupted for 15 points in the final overtime to stop host Artesia, 80-67, while visiting Bellflower (5-1) trailed most of the way in its loss to Paramount, 59-49.

It was only the second loss of the season for the No. 8-rated CIF, 2-A Bellflower squad.

Artesia led most of the way but needed a basket by Bill Woolsey with one second remaining to send the game into overtime.

Neither team scored in the first two overtimes, after Artesia had controlled the opening tips and waited until the final seconds before missing shot attempts that would have won the game.

The Monsoons took advantage of some hot free throw shooting in the final three-minute stanza (11-of-12 attempts) to pull out the win. For the game, the winners hit 22 of 29 from the charity strip.

Gary Kuyper led all scorers with 28 points.

Paramount (4-2) broke up a close contest with Bellflower to take a 51-38 lead into the final period.

Bellflower came within five with 58 seconds remaining in the contest, but was forced to foul to try to get the ball and the Pirates were able to convert at the line.

The Bucs had only one less field goal in the game than did Paramount, but were outscored at the free throw line, 19-11.

Keith Korver (18) and John Gonzales (16) led the Pirates.

In other games, Glenn, behind junior Mark Van Holland's 20 points, defeated Norwalk, 68-52, and Neff, with center Jeff Young scoring 23, edged Excelsior, 61-56.

Edison squeaks past Westminster, 52-51

Mike McCourt's free throw with 29 seconds remaining Friday night gave Edison High a narrow 52-51 Sunset League triumph over host Westminster, improving the winners' record to 2-0.

Westminster saw its chance for victory evaporate when Tim Page missed three free throws in the final 2:15, and Mitch Siemens committed a backcourt violation after McCourt's free throws.

Fountain Valley didn't have as much trouble winning its second in succession, knocking off Newport Harbor, 82-66.

George Barrios' 29 points led the Barons, who shot 55 per cent from the field. Rob Galey had 20 points for Newport and Steve Timmons tallied 18.

Newport led 21-20 after the first quarter but fell apart in the next eight minutes, being outscored 19-7.

Ron Hawkins sank a free throw with 39 seconds remaining to secure Marina's first league win, 61-60 over Huntington Beach.

The Oilers, who fell to 1-1, made it a one-point game on Cary Burt's two free throws at 0:05. But after they stole the ball, Greg Steinhaus missed a shot at the buzzer.

Leland Bruce led Marina with 19 points and Burt topped Huntington Beach with 17.

SIMS LEADS ST. JOHN BOSCO TO DEL REY LEAGUE WIN

Senior forward Bobby Sims scored 20 points to propel St. John Bosco High to a 79-58 Del Rey League basketball win over host St. Francis Friday night.

Sims' runningmate at forward, Fred Stephen, chipped in with 12 as the Braves improved their league mark to 2-1. Mike Sexton led the losers (0-3) with 17 points.

Murphy (3-0) moved into sole possesion of first place in the league with a 63-60 over host Loyola (2-1).

Junior forward Kelvin Bowers led Murphy with 16 points, while another junior, Paul Boken of Loyola, led all scorers with 18.

La Mirada bounced back after its 29-28 Mission Valley League opening loss Wednesday by hammering host Mountain View, 76-47.

Forward Jeff Brewer led the way with 33 points.

Los Al, Katella stay atop Empire

Los Alamitos and Katella remained in control of first place in the Empire League Friday.

Los Alamitos, exploded for 26 fourth-quarter points, hitting 14-of-18 free throws and sinking 6-of-10 floor shots to stop Kennedy, 72-56.

Katella, behind Joe Rennon's 30 points, stopped Saddleback, 72-65.

In the Los Alamitos contest, Bill Way forged Kennedy into a third period tie, but the Griffins took the lead for good with 4:30 remaining.

Scott Jones, who was 8-of-12 from the floor, led the Griffins with 20 points. Dave Baker addd 19. Tom Beckerle, who added 15 points, was the contest's leading rebounder with 12.

Rennon sank 14-of-22 floor shots in leeading Katella. Randy Wheldon, who added 14 for the victors, was 6-of-6 from the floor in the second half.

Cypress scored its first win of the league season when it stopped Loara, 60-58, in overtime.

Grant Taylor, who scored 26 for Cypress, scored the winning basket in the extra period. Scott Baldwin of Loara sank two free throws with 30 seconds remaining to lift Loara into the overtime.

Grant Taylor also had 15 rebounds to go with his 26 points.

Banning in Marine tie

Banning, behind Earl Williams' 12 points and 17 rebounds, moved into a tie for first in the Marine League with a 73-70 win over Carson Friday.

It was Carson's first league loss. Both clubs are 4-1.

Greg Grant, who tallied 16 for the winners, scored what proved to be the winning points on a layin with 1:14 remaining in the game.

Locke won its second consecutive game when Darryl Theus scored 23 points to carry the Saints to a 59-46 win over Narbonne.

Warren upends Lynwood

Warren High scored a surprisingly easy 80-62 win over host Lynwood and Cerritos stunned visiting Downey, 68-67, to highlight a hectic night in San Gabriel Valley League basketball play Friday night.

Dominguez defeated Gahr in the other SGVL contest and is tied for first with Warren. Both are 2-0.

Senior forward Mark Mullane was the dominant force for Warren (14-4 over-all) as his teammates continually found him open against the Lynwood zone defense.

The 6-5 senior forward led all scorers with 26 points, two above his season average. He also found time to grab 16 rebounds. Mullane spent a great deal of the evening at the free throw line, where he converted 14 of 17 attempts.

Lynwood, now 0-2, was led by Tyren Naulls (23) and Tom Freeman (17).

Mike Dilts scored the winning layup with four seconds remaining as Cerritos surprised Downey.

The Vikings immediately called a timeout after Dilts' bucket, but the ensuing inbounds pass hit a beam in the ceiling and the ball was turned over the Cerritos.

Downey, the CIF's No. 2-rated team, was suffering only its third loss of the season against 14 wins.

Soli captures American golf in overtime

PALM SPRINGS — Husky Mick Soli, former Northern Illinois University golfer from Lombard, Ill., won the first American Golf Tour tournament at the Cathedral Canyon course Friday on the seventh extra hole of a playoff with former Stanford star Gary Vanier.

They tied the first six overtime holes on the par-72, 705-yard course after finishing the regular 54-hole tourney at 202, 14-under-par, as each fired 67 to complete his final round.

Soli earned $5,000 of the $25,000 purse with a four-foot birdie putt on the huge seventh green, after Vanier had missed from six feet. Vanier earned $3,000.

Both compete in the next AGT event starting Wednesday at the Quail Lake course east of Riverside.

Other finishers were Chuck Moren, who closed with 68 for 205; Greg Pitzer, 68-206; John G. Adams, 70-208; Bill Schwenneker, 71-209; Ed Byman, 69-209; Ray Carrasco, 69-209; Bob Risch, 68-210; John Fiedler, 70-210; Arnie Dokka, 73-211; Bill Teasdall, 73-211; Melvin Rifman, 70-212; Steve Andreason, 74-212; Tim Macy, 72-212; Bob Clark, 70-212, and Dave Brownlee, 702-12.

Proctor first L.B. marathoner

Gordon Proctor led a pack of 13 Long Beach YMCA runners in the 26-mile Mission Bay Marathon by finishing 216th out of 1,560 entries.

The Long Beach attorney was timed in 3:00.10. Vic McCarty was the second Long Beach finisher, completing the serpentine San Diego course in 3:01. Third Long Beach runner was Brad Armstrong (3:18), followed by Lou Dexter (3:19), Dick Moore (3:23) and Jerry Lane (3:26).

Proctor will represent the L.B. Y in the Orange County Marathon at Chapman College on Jan. 30.

Kings deal 2 vets for Gary Simmons

Goaltender Gary Simmons made quite an impression on the Kings in a game at the Forum last November.

While wearing the colors of the Cleveland Barons, Simmons frustrated the Kings with 37 saves, including 11 from the stick of Marcel Dionne. Eight of his stops were from point-blank range and he was the reason the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Apparently the Kings were awed. On Friday, they gave up veteran center Whitey Widing and backup netminder Gary Edwards to acquire the 32-year-old Simmons and winger Jim Moxey from Cleveland.

Simmons and Moxey are expected to arrive in time for tonight's game against the New York Rangers at the Forum.

Simmons, who will fill Edwards' skates as a backup for Rogie Vachon, appeared in 15 games for Cleveland this season, permitting 64 goals for a 3.64 average. He is large as goaltenders go — 6-2, 200 pounds — and is nicknamed "The Cobra" because of his sprawling style. Simmons will also mix it up on occasion and holds a Cleveland team record for penalty minutes by a goalie, 26.

Moxey is considered a strong checker and can play either right wing or center. He had 17 goals and 39 points for the Barons over parts of two seasons.

Widing came to the Kings in February of 1970 and was the team leader in terms of continuous service prior to Friday's trade. He led the team in scoring for three seasons and netted a total of 131 goals, third on the all-time King list.

Edwards was acquired in the 1971 inter-league deaft from Buffalo and appeared in 155 games while spelling Vachon. His lifetime record was 54-68-22 with five shutouts and a 3.35 goals-against average.

RANGER ROOKIE PROVES A POINT

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

The importance of first-round amateur draft choices to NHL clubs is clearly demonstrated in a check of the leading scorers among rookies this season.

Six of the top 10 rookie pointmakers were first-round choices during the last three amateur drafts, headed by the New York Rangers' right winger, Don Murdoch, who is cruising toward a league record for goals by a newcomer.

The 20-year-old native of Cranbrook, B.C., whose older brother Bob is with Cleveland, is just a little behind the pace Rick Martin of Buffalo set in 1971-72 when he scored 44 goals to set the rookie goal-scoring mark. After 48 games, Murdoch has 30 goals and 20 assists for 50 points. Martin had 32 goals at the same stage in his first campaign with the Sabres.

Murdoch, along with Phil Esposito, Rod Gilbert and Ken Hodge, will come storming onto the Forum ice tonight when the Rangers engage the Kings in a match starting at 8:05. A crowd of 13,500 is expected.

Surprisingly, the Rangers haven't beaten the Kings in their last eight encounters, including a frustrating 5-4 loss a week ago when Esposito scored three goals and Murdoch had a penalty shot smothered by goalie Rogie Vachon.

The acrobatic little goaltender is 2-0-1 this season vs. the Rangers and 13-16-11 lifetime.

LAKERS—

Neumann, erratic but exciting, pumped in 18 points, hitting nine of 15 from the field. It was perhaps his finest game of the season considering that the starting guards couldn't buy a basket.

Don Chaney, hampered by a sore arch, missed nine of 10 shots and Lucius Allen missed on four of six while playing only 23 minutes because he was in early foul trouble.

The Lakers received a strong effort from Don Ford on defense against McAdoo, the seventh-leading scorer in the NBA with a 23.2 average. McAdoo scored 27 but very few of them when Ford was in the game.

West acknowledged Ford's strong performance by saying, "I felt Don played McAdoo as well as any man could."

Ford played 28 minutes, his longest stint in more than two months. His shooting and rebounding have been so mediocre that West has normally employed Kermit Washington for 35 to 40 minutes, mostly in place of Ford.

But this was a defensive battle from the start and Ford was so effective that he earned the right to remain in the game.

The Knicks, who had beaten the Lakers twice this season, seemed to struggle in adjusting to McAdoo, who has played 16 games with them since being traded by Buffalo. Normally the Knicks pass effectively and hit the open man. But McAdoo seldom passes. He put up 25 shots Friday and made 11.

Guards Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe, perhaps the best backcourt tandem in the NBA, rarely received a return pass from McAdoo and were much less effective than they had been in the previous two meeting against the Lakers. Frazier had 16 points and Monroe 11. The Lakers started poorly, missing 21 of 29 shots in the first period.

"It's like old times," said the personable Jacklin, a former British and American Open champion who has been mired in a deep, dismal slump for five years. "It's nice to be in the hunt again. Happy days are here again."

Bill Rogers, with a 66 at the Shore course, was at 136 and Australian Bruce Devlin, 68 at Pebble Beach, was at 137. Jack Nicklaus was five under par at 138 after a 69 at the Shore course that included birdies on his last two holes.

"Obviously," said Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, "I'm in very good shape, very good position."

TITLE FIGHT—

Although he ran short of sparring partners, the champion says he won't be rusty.

"I've felt really good in the gym. Sometimes a big layoff affects the sharpness, but I've worked hard and I'm mentally and physically ready."

Muniz says, "Like Carlos, I'm in tip-top condition. If the layoff affected me in any way, it affected him the same."

The pair's paths have run parallel until now, when they must cross.

ROBERTS' ROUSER:
Palomino in 11

Muniz got Palomino started in boxing through contacts in the Army, in which both served.

Both were born in Mexico and brought to the U.S. as children.

Both are college graduates, Palomino most recently from Long Beach State, Muniz three years ago from L.A. State.

Muniz is five classes short of a Masters degree. Palomino is thinking about it.

They will be friends before and after the fight, Mando says, but not during.

Palomino says, "I don't think there's any secret about Mando's plans. He'll come right at me."

Muniz says his style has not harmed his faculties.

"I've been in more than 50 fights and I'm still alive," he says. "I think I'm still intelligible."

The winner is committed to defend the title for English promoter Mickey Duff, although not necessarily against Stracey.

"If I can keep the title for 4 or 5 defenses," Palomino says, "I don't think I'd want to go beyond that. The training you have to go through physically and mentally for a fight is very difficult. I think I'd like to enjoy myself a little."

Mayfair 'all alone in first

Win in 3 OTs; Bellflower loses

Mayfair High moved into sole posession of the Suburban League basketball lead Friday night when it beat Artesia in three overtimes while Bellflower was being upset by Paramount.

The Monsoons (6-0) erupted for 15 points in the final overtime to stop host Artesia, 80-67, while visiting Bellflower (5-1) trailed most of the way in its loss to Paramount, 59-49.

It was only the second loss of the season for the No. 8-rated CIF, 2-A Bellflower squad.

Artesia led most of the way but needed a basket by Bill Woolsey with one second remaining to send the game into overtime.

Neither team scored in the first two overtimes, after Artesia had controlled the opening tips and waited until the final seconds before missing shot attempts that would have won the game.

The Monsoons took advantage of some hot free throw shooting in the final three-minute stanza (11-of-12 attempts) to pull out the win. For the game, the winners hit 22 of 29 from the charity strip.

Gary Kuyper led all scorers with 28 points.

Paramount (4-2) broke up a close contest with Bellflower to take a 51-38 lead into the final period.

Bellflower came within five with 58 seconds remaining in the contest, but was forced to foul to try to get the ball and the Pirates were able to convert at the line.

The Bucs had only one less field goal in the game than did Paramount, but were outscored at the free throw line, 19-11.

Keith Korver (18) and John Gonzales (16) led the Pirates.

In other games, Glenn, behind junior Mark Van Holland's 20 points, defeated Norwalk, 68-52, and Neff, with center Jeff Young scoring 23, edged Excelsior, 61-56.

Edison squeaks past Westminster, 52-51

Mike McCourt's free throw with 29 seconds remaining Friday night gave Edison High a narrow 52-51 Sunset League triumph over host Westminster, improving the winners' record to 2-0.

Westminster saw its chance for victory evaporate when Tim Page missed three free throws in the final 2:15, and Mitch Siemens committed a backcourt violation after McCourt's free throws.

Fountain Valley didn't have as much trouble winning its second in succession, knocking off Newport Harbor, 82-66.

George Barrios' 29 points led the Barons, who shot 55 per cent from the field. Rob Galey had 20 points for Newport and Steve Timmons tallied 18.

Newport led 21-20 after the first quarter but fell apart in the next eight minutes, being outscored 19-7.

Ron Hawkins sank a free throw with 39 seconds remaining to secure Marina's first league win, 61-60 over Huntington Beach.

The Oilers, who fell to 1-1, made it a one-point game on Cary Burt's two free throws at 0:05. But after they stole the ball, Greg Steinhaus missed a shot at the buzzer.

Leland Bruce led Marina with 19 points and Burt topped Huntington Beach with 17.

SIMS LEADS ST. JOHN BOSCO TO DEL REY LEAGUE WIN

Senior forward Bobby Sims scored 20 points to propel St. John Bosco High to a 79-58 Del Rey League basketball win over host St. Francis Friday night.

Sims' runningmate at forward, Fred Stephen, chipped in with 12 as the Braves improved their league mark to 2-1. Mike Sexton led the losers (0-3) with 17 points.

Murphy (3-0) moved into sole possesion of first place in the league with a 63-60 over host Loyola (2-1).

Junior forward Kelvin Bowers led Murphy with 16 points, while another junior, Paul Boken of Loyola, led all scorers with 18.

La Mirada bounced back after its 29-28 Mission Valley League opening loss Wednesday by hammering host Mountain View, 76-47.

Forward Jeff Brewer led the way with 33 points.

Los Al, Katella stay atop Empire

Los Alamitos and Katella remained in control of first place in the Empire League Friday.

Los Alamitos, exploded for 26 fourth-quarter points, hitting 14-of-18 free throws and sinking 6-of-10 floor shots to stop Kennedy, 72-56.

Katella, behind Joe Rennon's 30 points, stopped Saddleback, 72-65.

In the Los Alamitos contest, Bill Way forged Kennedy into a third period tie, but the Griffins took the lead for good with 4:30 remaining.

Scott Jones, who was 8-of-12 from the floor, led the Griffins with 20 points. Dave Baker addd 19. Tom Beckerle, who added 15 points, was the contest's leading rebounder with 12.

Rennon sank 14-of-22 floor shots in leeading Katella. Randy Wheldon, who added 14 for the victors, was 6-of-6 from the floor in the second half.

Cypress scored its first win of the league season when it stopped Loara, 60-58, in overtime.

Grant Taylor, who scored 26 for Cypress, scored the winning basket in the extra period. Scott Baldwin of Loara sank two free throws with 30 seconds remaining to lift Loara into the overtime.

Grant Taylor also had 15 rebounds to go with his 26 points.

Banning in Marine tie

Banning, behind Earl Williams' 12 points and 17 rebounds, moved into a tie for first in the Marine League with a 73-70 win over Carson Friday.

It was Carson's first league loss. Both clubs are 4-1.

Greg Grant, who tallied 16 for the winners, scored what proved to be the winning points on a layin with 1:14 remaining in the game.

Warren upends Lynwood

Warren High scored a surprisingly easy 80-62 win over host Lynwood and Cerritos stunned visiting Downey, 68-67, to highlight a hectic night in San Gabriel Valley League basketball play Friday night.

Dominguez defeated Gahr in the other SGVL contest and is tied for first with Warren. Both are 2-0.

Senior forward Mark Mullane was the dominant force for Warren (14-4 over-all) as his teammates continually found him open against the Lynwood zone defense.

The 6-5 senior forward led all scorers with 26 points, two above his season average. He also found time to grab 16 rebounds. Mullane spent a great deal of the evening at the free throw line, where he converted 14 of 17 attempts.

Lynwood, now 0-2, was led by Tyren Naulls (23) and Tom Freeman (17).

Mike Dilts scored the winning layup with four seconds remaining as Cerritos surprised Downey.

The Vikings immediately called a timeout after Dilts' bucket, but the ensuing inbounds pass hit a beam in the ceiling and the ball was turned over the Cerritos.

Downey, the CIF's No. 2-rated team, was suffering only its third loss of the season against 14 wins.

Soli captures American golf in overtime

PALM SPRINGS — Husky Mick Soli, former Northern Illinois University golfer from Lombard, Ill., won the first American Golf Tour tournament at the Cathedral Canyon course Friday on the seventh extra hole of a playoff with former Stanford star Gary Vanier.

They tied the first six overtime holes on the par-72, 705-yard course after finishing the regular 54-hole tourney at 202, 14-under-par, as each fired 67 to complete his final round.

Soli earned $5,000 of the $25,000 purse with a four-foot birdie putt on the huge seventh green, after Vanier had missed from six feet. Vanier earned $3,000.

Both compete in the next AGT event starting Wednesday at the Quail Lake course east of Riverside.

Other finishers were Chuck Moren, who closed with 68 for 205; Greg Pitzer, 68-206; John G. Adams, 70-208; Bill Schwenneker, 71-209; Ed Byman, 69-209; Ray Carrasco, 69-209; Bob Risch, 68-210; John Fiedler, 70-210; Arnie Dokka, 73-211; Bill Teasdall, 73-211; Melvin Rifman, 70-212; Steve Andreason, 74-212; Tim Macy, 72-212; Bob Clark, 70-212, and Dave Brownlee, 702-12.

Proctor first L.B. marathoner

Gordon Proctor led a pack of 13 Long Beach YMCA runners in the 26-mile Mission Bay Marathon by finishing 216th out of 1,560 entries.

The Long Beach attorney was timed in 3:00.10. Vic McCarty was the second Long Beach finisher, completing the serpentine San Diego course in 3:01. Third Long Beach runner was Brad Armstrong (3:18), followed by Lou Dexter (3:19), Dick Moore (3:23) and Jerry Lane (3:26).

Proctor will represent the L.B. Y in the Orange County Marathon at Chapman College on Jan. 30.

Kings deal 2 vets for Gary Simmons

Goaltender Gary Simmons made quite an impression on the Kings in a game at the Forum last November.

While wearing the colors of the Cleveland Barons, Simmons frustrated the Kings with 37 saves, including 11 from the stick of Marcel Dionne. Eight of his stops were from point-blank range and he was the reason the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Apparently the Kings were awed. On Friday, they gave up veteran center Whitey Widing and backup netminder Gary Edwards to acquire the 32-year-old Simmons and winger Jim Moxey from Cleveland.

Simmons and Moxey are expected to arrive in time for tonight's game against the New York Rangers at the Forum.

Simmons, who will fill Edwards' skates as a backup for Rogie Vachon, appeared in 15 games for Cleveland this season, permitting 64 goals for a 3.64 average. He is large as goaltenders go — 6-2, 200 pounds — and is nicknamed "The Cobra" because of his sprawling style. Simmons will also mix it up on occasion and holds a Cleveland team record for penalty minutes by a goalie, 26.

Moxey is considered a strong checker and can play either right wing or center. He had 17 goals and 39 points for the Barons over parts of two seasons.

Widing came to the Kings in February of 1970 and was the team leader in terms of continuous service prior to Friday's trade. He led the team in scoring for three seasons and netted a total of 131 goals, third on the all-time King list.

Edwards was acquired in the 1971 inter-league deaft from Buffalo and appeared in 155 games while spelling Vachon. His lifetime record was 54-68-22 with five shutouts and a 3.35 goals-against average.

RANGER ROOKIE PROVES A POINT

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

The importance of first-round amateur draft choices to NHL clubs is clearly demonstrated in a check of the leading scorers among rookies this season.

Six of the top 10 rookie pointmakers were first-round choices during the last three amateur drafts, headed by the New York Rangers' right winger, Don Murdoch, who is cruising toward a league record for goals by a newcomer.

The 20-year-old native of Cranbrook, B.C., whose older brother Bob is with Cleveland, is just a little behind the pace Rick Martin of Buffalo set in 1971-72 when he scored 44 goals to set the rookie goal-scoring mark. After 48 games, Murdoch has 30 goals and 20 assists for 50 points. Martin had 32 goals at the same stage in his first campaign with the Sabres.

Murdoch, along with Phil Esposito, Rod Gilbert and Ken Hodge, will come storming onto the Forum ice tonight when the Rangers engage the Kings in a match starting at 8:05. A crowd of 13,500 is expected.

Surprisingly, the Rangers haven't beaten the Kings in their last eight encounters, including a frustrating 5-4 loss a week ago when Esposito scored three goals and Murdoch had a penalty shot smothered by goalie Rogie Vachon.

The acrobatic little goaltender is 2-0-1 this season vs. the Rangers and 13-16-11 lifetime.

LAKERS—

Neumann, erratic but exciting, pumped in 18 points, hitting nine of 15 from the field. It was perhaps his finest game of the season considering that the starting guards couldn't buy a basket.

Don Chaney, hampered by a sore arch, missed nine of 10 shots and Lucius Allen missed on four of six while playing only 23 minutes because he was in early foul trouble.

The Lakers received a strong effort from Don Ford on defense against McAdoo, the seventh-leading scorer in the NBA with a 23.2 average. McAdoo scored 27 but very few of them when Ford was in the game.

West acknowledged Ford's strong performance by saying, "I felt Don played McAdoo as well as any man could."

Ford played 28 minutes, his longest stint in more than two months. His shooting and rebounding have been so mediocre that West has normally employed Kermit Washington for 35 to 40 minutes, mostly in place of Ford.

But this was a defensive battle from the start and Ford was so effective that he earned the right to remain in the game.

The Knicks, who had beaten the Lakers twice this season, seemed to struggle in adjusting to McAdoo, who has played 16 games with them since being traded by Buffalo. Normally the Knicks pass effectively and hit the open man. But McAdoo seldom passes. He put up 25 shots Friday and made 11.

Guards Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe, perhaps the best backcourt tandem in the NBA, rarely received a return pass from McAdoo and were much less effective than they had been in the previous two meeting against the Lakers. Frazier had 16 points and Monroe 11. The Lakers started poorly, missing 21 of 29 shots in the first period.

"It's like old times," said the personable Jacklin, a former British and American Open champion who has been mired in a deep, dismal slump for five years. "It's nice to be in the hunt again. Happy days are here again."

Bill Rogers, with a 66 at the Shore course, was at 136 and Australian Bruce Devlin, 68 at Pebble Beach, was at 137. Jack Nicklaus was five under par at 138 after a 69 at the Shore course that included birdies on his last two holes.

"Obviously," said Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, "I'm in very good shape, very good position."

TITLE FIGHT—

Although he ran short of sparring partners, the champion says he won't be rusty.

"I've felt really good in the gym. Sometimes a big layoff affects the sharpness, but I've worked hard and I'm mentally and physically ready."

Muniz says, "Like Carlos, I'm in tip-top condition. If the layoff affected me in any way, it affected him the same."

The pair's paths have run parallel until now, when they must cross.

ROBERTS' ROUSER: Palomino in 11

Muniz got Palomino started in boxing through contacts in the Army, in which both served.

Both were born in Mexico and brought to the U.S. as children.

Both are college graduates, Palomino most recently from Long Beach State, Muniz three years ago from L.A. State.

Muniz is five classes short of a Masters degree. Palomino is thinking about it.

They will be friends before and after the fight, Mando says, but not during.

Palomino says, "I don't think there's any secret about Mando's plans. He'll come right at me."

Muniz says his style has not harmed his faculties.

"I've been in more than 50 fights and I'm still alive," he says. "I think I'm still intelligible."

TALE OF THE TAPE

Carlos Palomino		Mando Muniz
27	Age	30
5-9	Height	5-7½
147	Weight	147
74	Reach	71
39	Chest (nor)	38½
41½	Chest (exp)	41
31	Waist	29½
15½	Neck	16
15	Calf	14
15	Biceps	15½
12	Forearm	12
7½	Wrist	8
13	Fist	13½

The winner is committed to defend the title for English promoter Mickey Duff, although not necessarily against Stracey.

"If I can keep the title for 4 or 5 defenses," Palomino says, "I don't think I'd want to go beyond that. The training you have to go through physically and mentally for a fight is very difficult. I think I'd like to enjoy myself a little."

Mutuel pool — $135,141. Exacta pool — $310,385

ASCARI fell far back early, saved ground while maneuvering through traffic, found an opening on the rail to move up and take the lead at the sixteenth pole and won on his own courage. CANNEL COAL held a slim lead until downed late by the winner. SWIFT SOCKS forced the pace and tired.

Scratched — Strong Award.

$5 EXACTA, 5-ASCARI & 7-CANNEL COAL, PAID $349.50.

1177 — SIXTH RACE. 1-1/16 miles. 4 year olds & up. Maidens. Purse $10,000.

Mutuel pool — $310,867.

DUSK TO DUSK had enough speed to be kept close up with a clear path, rallied into the stretch to get the lead, drew clear but was all out to hold. SENTRY II, unhurried while slow to settle, caught his full stride on the far turn, rallied wide and finished with good speed. JACKS FIVE raced well off the pace, maneuvered through traffic to finish in a rally along the rail.

Scratched — Romantic Reveler.

1178 — SEVENTH RACE. 6 furlongs. 4 year olds & up. Allowances. Purse $17,000.

SUN FESTIVAL, in close attendance of the leaders around the turn, checked when blocked into midstretch, found a narrow opening and responded gamely to squeeze through and won going away. PET LABEL found room outside to close on the pace into the far turn, became fanned out leaving the quarter pole, kept to her task and volleyed for the lead in midstretch then could not match strides with the winner late. POWERFUL LADY raced forwardly in a good try making her strongest bid about the sixteenth pole.

Bastonera returning as favorite

Multiple stakes winner Bastonera II faces nine older fillies and mares when she carries top weight of 125 pounds in Santa Anita's $46,950 Santa Monica Handicap, today's seven-furlong headliner.

Runnerup to Proud Delta for Eclipse Award honors last year, Bastonera II captured Aqueduct's Ladies Handicap in November following three victories in Hollywood Park stakes events last summer.

The Argentine-bred mare will be making her first Southland start start since Oct. 30 when she narrowly missed to Vagabonda in Oak Tree's Las Palmas Handicap. In her last 15 United States outings, she has never raced at a distance shorter than 1 1/16 miles. Marco Castaneda has the ride.

Sun Festival, an 8-year-old mare, carried jockey Darrel McHargue to his third victory of the day Friday in the $16,000 feature race. Sun Festival covered six furlongs in 1:10⅘ and returned $10.40, $4.40 and $3.40.

She's Precious goes in Las Damas

She's Precious, a bargain $4,000 purchase with more than $250,000 in career earnings, attempts to break a two-race losing streak tonight when she faces eight of the country's best fillies and mares in the $25,000-added Las Damas at Los Alamitos Race Course.

She will be joined in the nine-horse field by Reller's Image, Vim And Vigor, Maryon's Rocket, Little Blue Sheep, Have More Fun, Fleet N' Fickle, Delilah Go and Hyjonijet.

She's Precious was voted horse of the meeting last summer after capturing the $20,000 Miss Princess, $50,000 Go Man Go and $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship. She established a track record over 400 yards in the Go Man Go when she raced 19.57 seconds and carried a personal record 129 pounds to victory in the Miss Princess.

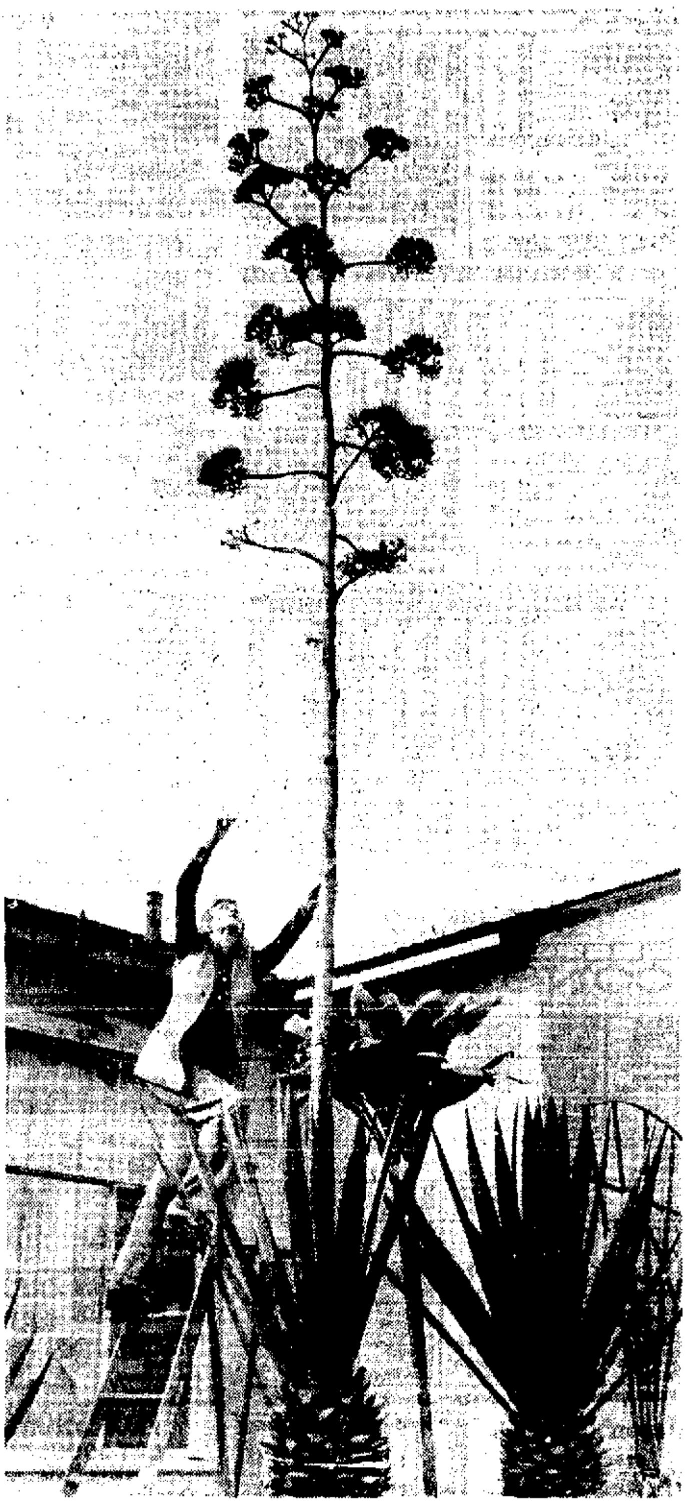
* GARDENING *



The giant named Sisal

Mrs. Ruth Drummond of 3832 Palo Verdehas a giant growing in her backyard named Sisal, maybe better known as Agave Sisalina to real gardening fanciers. Mrs. Drummond started this 25-foot Sisal 14-years-ago from a four- inch shoot she brought back from Hawaii. As you can see in the pictureeven on her five-foot ladder she is dwarfed by the plant's size. Sisal is a commercial source of sisal hemp. —Staff photo By CURT JOHNSON

It's the season to prune roses

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

The gardener in charge of the rose garden told his gardener associate in charge of the Japanese garden, "that guy Littlefield is a phony on his garden chats TV show. He pruned a hybrid tea rose bush in four and one half minutes. Nobody, but nobody can prune a rose bush that fast. Hemust have marked the back side of each branch with white wash which the camera couldn't see, so he'd know exactly where to cut each branch!"

he rose gardener evidentally missed the most important factor of rose pruning principles or wasn't listening intently. Gardeners should alwaysfirst look for the basal canes which grew up last year. Some of the canes might be thicker than the others which are several years older.

Those new basal canes less han a year old, probably grew out from some bare area of the bud union. (The bud union is a swollen portion atop the rose trunk, from which all the rose bush canes grow). A few basal canes grow out from the lower portion of an old thick cane which hassturdy secondary branches.

The basal cane first is a bud, a swelling likea large pimple, and botanically it is called an adventitious bud. The rose bush, however, gladly welcomes them.

The gardener having determined which are the new basal canes, proceeds to completely cut off an equal number of the oldest, woodiest with as many secondary branches, as there are of the basal canes. That rose bush immediately has been rejuvenated by as much as 30 percent or more.

Finish cutting back the remainder of branches down to about knee height-length up from the ground. But . . . the gardener cuts the branches back to special selected buds, and cuts them on a downward slant within an eighth of an inch of the buds.

The selected buds means buds facing the gardener, or to either side of the branch depending upon where the gardener wants the buds to sprout. The gardener may occasionally cut to a bud on the inside bush part to help fill in the shape of he bush.

This is all there is to the pruning.

Now remove any remainder manure mulch that hasn't filtered into the soil. Rose bushes then are sprayed with a combination of horticultural oil and fungicide spray. Handfuls of bone meal and soil sulphur are scattered over the soil, and lightly scratched in. Three-inch layer of aged weed-free steer manure is evenly spread around each bush, then thoroughly watered down and kept moist for a few days.

Garden jobs

1. Don't let azaleas suffer for lack of water. They need to be watered during the winter between the rainy spells. Sometimes the rain isn't sufficient if the azalea is dry, and gardners assume the plant received enough water.

2. Fuchsias in frost free areas can be heavily pruned. Otherwise gardeners should wait till possible frost spells are over. The basket fuchsias can be trimmed back to the container top edge. Upright plants can be pruned back well into the secondary branch growth.

3. Don't prune flowering peaches until they begin to bloom. Then prune them to shape as you cut the flower branches for indoor decoration.

4. Best time to scatter snail-slug bait is right after a rain or after the garden has been watered. Itis also better to do it late in the afternoon or evening.

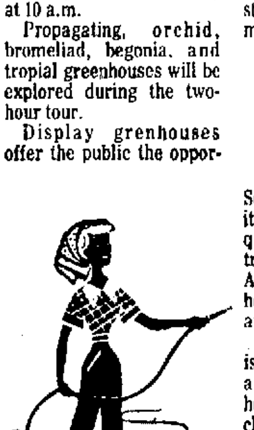
Arboretum tour is scheduled

A public tour of the major greenhouses at the Los Angles State and County Arobretum in Arcadia will be given by Arboretum horticulurist Tim Lorman Sunday morning, Jan. 30, starting at 10 a.m.

Propagating, orchid, bromeliad, begonia, and tropial greenhouses will be explored during the two-hour tour.

Display grenhouses offer the public the opportunity to see plants not ordinarily seen in the urban lanscape, plants such as uncommon species and varieties of orchids, begonias, fern and bromeliads.

There is no admission charge to the tour which starts in front of the Information Center.



CLUB NOTES

The South Coast Orchid Society, Inc., will install its 1977 officers at a banquet Monday in the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. There will be a social hour at 6:30 p.m.; dinner at 7:30 p.m.

The South Coast Society is celebrating its 27th anniversary and will honor Fred A. Stewart Orchid organization for its 30-years of leadership and cooperation with all orchid societies. Theme of the banquet is "Better Living with Living Beauty."

Bastonera returning as favorite

Multiple stakes winner Bastonera II faces nine older fillies and mares when she carries top weight of 125 pounds in Santa Anita's $46,950 Santa Monica Handicap, today's seven-furlong headliner.

Runnerup to Proud Delta for Eclipse Award honors last year, Bastonera II captured Aqueduct's Ladies Handicap in November following three victories in Hollywood Park stakes events last summer.

The Argentine-bred mare will be making her first Southland start start since Oct. 30 when she narrowly missed to Vagabonda in Oak Tree's Las Palmas Handicap. In her last 15 United States outings, she has never raced at a distance shorter than 1 1/16 miles. Marco Castaneda has the ride.

Sun Festival, an 8-year-old mare, carried jockey Darrel McHargue to his third victory of the day Friday in the $16,000 feature race. Sun Festival covered six furlongs in 1:10⅕ and returned $10.40, $4.40 and $3.40.

She's Precious goes in Las Damas

She's Precious, a bargain $4,000 purchase with more than $250,000 in career earnings, attempts to break a two-race losing streak tonight when she faces eight of the country's best fillies and mares in the $25,000-added Las Damas at Los Alamitos Race Course.

She will be joined in the nine-horse field by Reller's Image, Vim And Vigor, Maryon's Rocket, Little Blue Sheep, Have More Fun, Fleet N' Fickle, Delilah Go and Hyjonijet.

She's Precious was voted horse of the meeting last summer after capturing the $20,000 Miss Princess, $50,000 Go Man Go and $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship. She established a track record over 400 yards in the Go Man Go when she raced 19.57 seconds and carried a personal record 129 pounds to victory in the Miss Princess.

The giant named Sisal

Mrs. Ruth Drummond of 3832 Palo Verdehas a giant growing in her backyard named Sisal, maybe better known as Agave Sisalina to real gardening fanciers. Mrs. Drummond started this 25-foot Sisal 14-years-ago from a four- inch shoot she brought back from Hawaii. As you can see in the pictureeven on her five-foot ladder she is dwarfed by the plant's size. Sisal is a commercial source of sisal hemp. —Staff photo By CURT JOHNSON

It's the season to prune roses

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

The gardener in charge of the rose garden told his gardener associate in charge of the Japanese garden, "that guy Littlefield is a phony on his garden chats TV show. He pruned a hybrid tea rose bush in four and one half minutes. Nobody, but nobody can prune a rose bush that fast. Hemust have marked the back side of each branch with white wash which the camera couldn't see, so he'd know exactly where to cut each branch!"

he rose gardener evidentally missed the most important factor of rose pruning principles or wasn't listening intently. Gardeners should alwaysfirst look for the basal canes which grew up last year. Some of the canes might be thicker than the others which are several years older.

Those new basal canes less han a year old, probably grew out from some bare area of the bud union. (The bud union is a swollen portion atop the rose trunk, from which all the rose bush canes grow). A few basal canes grow out from the lower portion of an old thick cane which hassturdy secondary branches.

The basal cane first is a bud, a swelling likea large pimple, and botanically it is called an adventitious bud. The rose bush, however, gladly welcomes them.

The gardener having determined which are the new basal canes, proceeds to completely cut off an equal number of the oldest, woodiest with as many secondary branches, as there are of the basal canes. That rose bush immediately has been rejuvenated by as much as 30 percent or more.

Finish cutting back the remainder of branches down to about knee height-length up from the ground. But . . . the gardener cuts the branches back to special selected buds, and cuts them on a downward slant within an eighth of an inch of the buds.

The selected buds means buds facing the gardener, or to either side of the branch depending upon where the gardener wants the buds to sprout. The gardener may occasionally cut to a bud on the inside bush part to help fill in the shape of he bush.

This is all there is to the pruning.

Now remove any remainder manure mulch that hasn't filtered into the soil. Rose bushes then are sprayed with a combination of horticultural oil and fungicide spray. Handfuls of bone meal and soil sulphur are scattered over the soil, and lightly scratched in. Three-inch layer of aged weed free steer manure is evenly spread around each bush, then thoroughly watered down and kept moist for a few days.

Garden jobs

1. Don't let azaleas suffer for lack of water. They need to be watered during the winter between the rainy spells. Sometimes the rain isn't sufficient if the azalea is dry, and gardners assume the plant received enough water.

2. Fuchsias in frost free areas can be heavily pruned. Otherwise gardeners should wait till possible frost spells are over. The basket fuchsias can be trimmed back to the container top edge. Upright plants can be pruned back well into the secondary branch growth.

3. Don't prune flowering peaches until they begin to bloom. Then prune them to shape as you cut the flower branches for indoor decoration.

4. Best time to scatter snail-slug bait is right after a rain or after the garden has been watered. Itis also better to do it late in the afternoon or evening.

Arboretum tour is scheduled

A public tour of the major greenhouses at the Los Angles State and County Arobretum in Arcadia will be given by Arboretum horticulurist Tim Lorman Sunday morning, Jan. 30, starting at 10 a.m.

Propagating, orchid, bromeliad, begonia, and tropial greenhouses will be explored during the two-hour tour.

Display grenhouses offer the public the opportunity to see plants not ordinarily seen in the urban lanscape, plants such as uncommon species and varieties of orchids, begonias, fern and bromeliads.

There is no admission charge to the tour which starts in front of the Information Center.

CLUB NOTES

The South Coast Orchid Society, Inc., will install its 1977 officers at a banquet Monday in the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. There will be a social hour at 6:30 p.m.; dinner at 7:30 p.m.

The South Coast Society is celebrating its 27th anniversary and will honor Fred A. Stewart Orchid organization for its 30-years of leadership and cooperation with all orchid societies. Theme of the banquet is "Better Living with Living Beauty."

3 judges in 1976 quit under probe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three California judges left office last year while under investigation by the Commission on Judicial Performance, the commission reported Friday.

The report to Gov. Brown does not identify the judges who resigned or retired. It shows there were no recommendations to the California Supreme Court for censure or removal of any judges during 1976.

The commission recommended Jan. 7 that Supreme Court Justice Marshall McComb be retired or removed from office because of alleged senility resulting in inability and failure to perform his duties. A special tribunal made up of seven Court of Appeal justices selected by lot will consider the allegations.

The commission report said 251 complaints involving jurists were received in 1976 and of these 188 were closed because they were outside its jurisdiction.

Most of these, it said, dealt with dissatisfaction with rulings or other legal or personal differences. The agency conducted 63 inquiries or investigations, including 46 cases where a judge was asked to relate his version of the events or situation.

Found near death

Navy teaches eagle to fly

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A bald eagle that lost the ability to fly because of human cruelty, will fly again soon because of human kindness.

The bird was found near death in 1971, apparently shot down in violation of federal laws protecting the bald eagle as an endangered species. Most of his left wing was blasted away.

The eagle, named Ishi, was taken to the San Francisco Zoo for treatment and long-term care. In 1972 he was moved to the Alexander Lindsey Junior Museum in Walnut Creek.

His feathers came back in good shape this year.

But Ishi just sat on a perch acting more like an oversized house cat than a bird capable of soaring as high as 18,000 feet at speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour.

Workers at the small museum finally coaxed the bird into the air, but he fell with a thud on the first try at flying.

Last Nov. 3, the nine-pound eagle was taken to San Clemente Island, where the Navy is trying to build a giant wildlife preserve.

"The initial training consisted of picking up Ishi, carrying him bodily up the steep slopes to a promontory, where he was released to fly," biologist Jan Larson said Thursday.

"THE MUSCLES in his wings probably were almost to the point of atrophy for lack of exercise. At first, all he could do was just soar clumsily back to the beach."

But gradually the handlers increased the height from which the eagle was released until be could fly for half a mile. Then came short horizontal flights skimming the water. The handlers began to stay away, except to leave food twice a week.

They say Ishi will soon be flying normally.

Bar delays prostitute law policy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California State Bar's Board of Governors wrestled with prostitution Friday, but postponed taking a stand on a proposal to sponsor decriminalizing legislation.

It did vote 13-4 to adopt the same course it took last year on marijuana — to support such legislation if introduced by others.

The board rejected motions to take no action on the recommendations made in resolutions submitted by the 1976 Conference of Delegates.

The board was asked to sponsor lgislation that would prohibit criminal punishment for engaging in prostitution

AFTER hearing some of the pros and cons, the attorneys voted to send the matter to the Bar's Committee on Criminal Justice for technical analysis of the particular language of the bill. Recommendations, including any possible alternatives, are to be returned within 90 days.

Several board members argued whether there was sufficient expertise on the subject among themselves and this brought titters from the audience at the open hearing.

3 judges in 1976 quit under probe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three California judges left office last year while under investigation by the Commission on Judicial Performance, the commission reported Friday.

The report to Gov. Brown does not identify the judges who resigned or retired. It shows there were no recommendations to the California Supreme Court for censure or removal of any judges during 1976.

The commission recommended Jan. 7 that Supreme Court Justice Marshall McComb be retired or removed from office because of alleged senility resulting in inability and failure to perform his duties. A special tribunal made up of seven Court of Appeal justices selected by lot will consider the allegations.

The commission report said 251 complaints involving jurists were received in 1976 and of these 188 were closed because they were outside its jurisdiction.

Most of these, it said, dealt with dissatisfaction with rulings or other legal or personal differences. The agency conducted 63 inquiries or investigations, including 46 cases where a judge was asked to relate his version of the events or situation

Navy teaches eagle to fly

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A bald eagle that lost the ability to fly because of human cruelty, will fly again soon because of human kindness.

The bird was found near death in 1971, apparently shot down in violation of federal laws protecting the bald eagle as an endangered species. Most of his left wing was blasted away.

The eagle, named Ishi, was taken to the San Francisco Zoo for treatment and long-term care. In 1972 he was moved to the Alexander Lindsey Junior Museum in Walnut Creek.

His feathers came back in good shape this year.

But Ishi just sat on a perch acting more like an oversized house cat than a bird capable of soaring as high as 18,000 feet at speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour.

Workers at the small museum finally coaxed the bird into the air, but he fell with a thud on the first try at flying.

Last Nov. 3, the nine-pound eagle was taken to San Clemente Island, where the Navy is trying to build a giant wildlife preserve.

"The initial training consisted of picking up Ishi, carrying him bodily up the steep slopes to a promontory, where he was released to fly," biologist Jan Larson said Thursday.

"THE MUSCLES in his wings probably were almost to the point of atrophy for lack of exercise. At first, all he could do was just soar clumsily back to the beach."

But gradually the handlers increased the height from which the eagle was released until he could fly for half a mile. Then came short horizontal flights skimming the water. The handlers began to stay away, except to leave food twice a week.

They say Ishi will soon be flying normally.

Bar delays prostitute law policy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California State Bar's Board of Governors wrestled with prostitution Friday, but postponed taking a stand on a proposal to sponsor decriminalizing legislation.

It did vote 13-4 to adopt the same course it took last year on marijuana — to support such legislation if introduced by others.

The board rejected motions to take no action on the recommendations made in resolutions submitted by the 1976 Conference of Delegates.

The board was asked to sponsor lgislation that would prohibit criminal punishment for engaging in prostitution

AFTER hearing some of the pros and cons, the attorneys voted to send the matter to the Bar's Committee on Criminal Justice for technical analysis of the particular language of the bill. Recommendations, including any possible alternatives, are to be returned within 90 days.

Several board members argued whether there was sufficient expertise on the subject among themselves and this brought titters from the audience at the open hearing.
